Senators Grill F.D.R. Aids; Rap Bungling.

Heavy U-Boat Toll

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, today branded as exaggerated a German claim that 13 to 16 allied tankers, in a recent convoy to Gibraltar, had been sunk. Davis declined to discuss figures on total allied losses in merchant ships. He said losses were "very heavy," but not nearly as bad as the Germans claim." Earlier in the day, Sen. David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], discussing the seriousness of the fuel oil shortage in the east, said the German radio had reported the recent sinking of 13 tankers in a convoy across the Atlantic.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Sharp criticism of the administration's plans for a huge standing army was voiced today by Democratic senators from the farm states as they grilled three high officials on bungling of the man power program.

The senators bluntly informed Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, Man Power Chief Paul V. McNutt, and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, that they seriously questioned the need of an army of 7½ million men and a total of nearly 10 million men in the army and navy by the end of this year.

The occasion was a hearing by the senate committee on agriculture and forestry on a resolution by Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] to investigate the likelihood of attaining the high food production goals set for this year in view of present restrictions and the loss of farm labor to the army and war industries.

Hershey Ducks Question.

Hershey was asked directly for an explanation and justification for the goal of 7½ million men in the army by the end of 1943, but ducked the question, replying:

"It would be presumptuous on my part to make any statement on that."

McNutt also avoided any public statement on this policy, but it was disclosed recently that McNutt was urging that army goals be scaled down.

Sen. Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], member of the committee, remarked after the hearing that the issue of the permanent size of the army must be determined immediately.

"If responsible authorities do not satisfy the congress on the necessity of present plans, then the congress will have to make the decision itself thru the handling of appropriations," said Thomas, who also is a member of the appropriations committee.

"All the fighting is on foreign soil, so why should it be necessary to maintain 5½ million men at home? Some of the troops have been training here for two years or more and are being worn out in training."

Asks About Ships.

Thomas said he also supported the proposal made by Sen. John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.] in committee that more war material be furnished the fighting allies instead of trying to equip and send vast numbers of American troops abroad.

"There isn't any one in this committee who doesn't want to raise a sufficient army to win the war," asserted Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], acting chairman of the committee. "But where in the name of God are you going to send all these men when you don't even have sufficient shipping to feed and supply them? Where are you going to get the ships, especially when you're going to ship food and materials all over the world?"

Expect Potato Rationing as Supply Drops

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Potatoes probably will be the next major food product to be rationed, information made available by the department of agriculture disclosed today.

Commenting that the supply "is small in view of greatly expanded government and civilian demands," department officials said some program to assure equitable potato distribution may be necessary.

They revealed that the per capita consumption of this major staple has fallen sharply recently because consumers have been unable to obtain all the supplies they could eat. They said further and sharper reductions could be expected within the next year.

Chicago Shipments Gain.

An indication of the expanded consumer and government demand is the sharp increase in rail shipments from producing sections to the major markets, officials said. Potato shipments to Chicago and other major terminals now are running 20 to 21 per cent larger than a year ago.

While part of the increased movement by rail can be attributed to gasoline and tire rationing, aids to Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard reported, it is more of an indication of a much larger potato consumption.

Heavy Overseas Demand.

The department has set a goal of 390 million bushels of potatoes for this year. From this crop between 45 and 50 million bushels will be required for lend-lease and military needs. The average crop over the last 10 years has been about 370 million bushels, so that consumer supplies, if crop goals are achieved, probably will be at least 20 million bushels short of normal supplies.

Ration Babies' Milk.

19% Pay-Now Taxes Studied by Treasury

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Proponents of the plan to place American wage earners on a current basis in payment of their income taxes continued to gather strength today in their drive to secure congressional action before the March 15 deadline when the first quarterly income tax instalment falls due.

It is expected that the administration will accept the pay as you go principle, which provides for skipping 1942 taxes to bring taxpayers up to date, if it is combined with a weekly or monthly withholding levy against each pay envelope.

Might Total 24 Per Cent.

Meanwhile the treasury was reported to be giving favorable consideration to a bill introduced by Sen. Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] for a 19 per cent withholding tax on pay rolls, payments to be applied against income taxes with a year-end adjustment for those whose taxes are larger or smaller than this amount. With the 5 per cent Victory tax, if it is not increased in the form of compulsory savings, the total amount withheld at the source thus would be 24 per cent.

It was learned that the administration also is preparing its own version of a withholding tax.

The pay as you go plan gained impetus on Monday when President Roosevelt requested an additional 16 billion dollars in new revenue thru taxes or enforced savings. Only by collection of income levies at the source out of current earnings, leaders declared, will taxpayers be able to bear the shock of so drastically increased taxes.

May Double Victory Tax.

In addition, according to informed sources, it may be necessary to double the 5 per cent victory tax and impose a new 10 per cent sales tax or a tax on spending before the President's goal is approached.

Informed sources disclosed that the treasury had requested the department of agriculture to inquire into the possible effects of a sales tax on farm parity prices.

SOVIETS CLAIM 50 MI. ADVANCE IN CAUCASUS

LONDON, Jan. 14 [Thursday]—(AP).—The German radio last night reported that Russian tanks had breached the main German line in the Caucasus and that the soviets had opened a new drive in the Voronezh area.

Reuters news agency quoted the German news agency DNB as announcing the break in the line while the high command reported the Voronezh action.

Reuters also quoted its Moscow correspondent as saying that the Germans were evacuating their high officers from Stalingrad by air.

Voronezh is the anchor of the entire Russian line running southward to Stalingrad and the Caucasus. The city is about 300 miles southeast of Moscow and the same distance northwest of Stalingrad.

This drive, if confirmed by the Russians, indicates that the Red army might attempt a sweeping move to the west and southwest into the Ukraine toward Kursk and Kharkov. It would be the soviets' fifth winter offensive.

Advance 50 Miles.

thru sagging German forces in the Caucasus yesterday, advancing 50 miles due north from the Georgievsk-Mineralnye Vody area to Zhuravskoye, it was announced officially early today.

The offensive also continued to roll forward at a slower pace northwest of Mineralnye Vody, where sharp Nazi counter-attacks were beaten off. Altogether the Russians said they seized 12 towns and railway points.

Smash Nazi Counter-Attacks.

Along the lower Don river where the Russians are threatening the Nazis on the approaches to Rostov, the midnight communique said, "the Russians had smashed a series of heavy Nazi counter-attacks. No specific Russian gains were claimed in this area. Here the offensive was hampered by heavy snow and cold winds. The Russians said yesterday that a German break thru by masses of tanks and infantry momentarily threatened an important soviet communication line, but declared regrouped Red forces threw the enemy back and repaired the breach.

In the fighting inside Stalingrad the Russians said their units in one sector of the factory district successfully penetrated to the western outskirts of the Volga river city. This was the 143d day of Stalingrad's siege.

On the central front southwest of captured Veliki Luki the Russians said they repulsed a Nazi counter-attack.

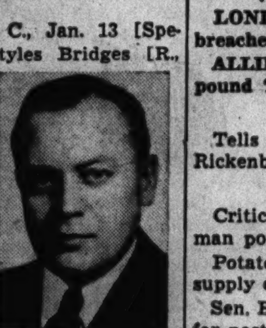
Charges Flynn 'Unfit' to Hold Post as Envoy

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 [Special].—Sen. H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] made charges of "unfitness" today against Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, Democratic national chairman and minister-designate to Australia, who retorted that the statements were "wanton falsehoods" which would be "definitely nailed" at a hearing before the senate foreign relations committee.



Sen. Styles Bridges.

While Democratic leaders expressed confidence that Flynn's nomination would be confirmed, Sen. Bridges told reporters that he had been informed by some Democrats that they would oppose the appointment. With the Republicans leading the attack on Flynn, they would need at least 11 more votes to assure his defeat if the 38 Republican senators cast a solid ballot against him.

Exhibits Paving Block.

Exhibiting a paving block taken from Flynn's Lake Mohopac [N. Y.] estate and presented to him by the New York Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case, Sen. Bridges at a press conference this afternoon gave reporters a preview of charges which he will make in a senate speech tomorrow.

With Bridges as he conducted his press conference was Sidney Baron, New York public relations counsellor and member of the Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case.

Baron gave Bridges the paving block from those "which figured in the grand jury investigation of 9,000 city owned blocks and 38 city employés" who installed them in a courtyard on Flynn's estate. With the block went a note to Bridges which said:

Hoped for Arrest

When reporters expressed interest in Baron's possession of a paving block taken from Flynn's estate, the New Yorker said that it had been dug up by a "righteous and indignant" citizen, who preferred to remain anonymous, but who had hoped that Flynn would arrest him in connection with the theft.

Speed Subway for Election; Voter to Pay

The city finance committee agreed yesterday to pay half the overtime costs for union electricians working on the State street subway in order to meet Mayor Kelly's desire to have the subway completed before the municipal elections in April.

The action will permit members of Michael J. Boyle's electrical workers' union to draw as much as $170 per week, with the taxpayers footing $25.50 of each weekly check and the contractors the balance. It is subject to full council approval.

Charles E. De Leuw, chief engineer for the city department of subways and superhighways, said that the State street subway work other than electrical contracts easily can be completed in March.

Rate Doubles for Overtime.

The 65 union electricians now working on the subway draw $68 a week for 40 hours of work at $1.70 an hour. They are paid double time for all work in excess of 40 hours.

The finance committee agreed to set a 70 hour a week ceiling, with a $170 a week maximum salary for the union men, in order to keep the electrical contracts abreast of the other work, even tho taxpayers will have to contribute liberally to meet the election deadline.

Aldermen defending the action said contractors should not be asked to pay all of the overtime.

Must Double Number.

Aldermen contended that contractors are unable to get sufficient electricians to complete the subway in March by paying them $102 for a 50 hour week, and that the $170 a week salaries will attract sufficient men.

De Leuw said that it will require 170 electricians, double the number now at work, to meet the deadline.

ARMY DISPATCH RIDER HELD UP; PAPERS RIFLED

North Kingston, R. I., Jan. 14 [Thursday]—(AP).—Four men held up an unarmed army dispatch rider at gun point last night, thumbed thru official dispatches carried in the glove department of his small truck, then fled without taking anything, State Police Lt. Joseph Marceau reported.

Marceau quoted the soldier, Pvt. Raymond L. Mosher of Springfield, Mass., as saying that one of the men, after carefully examining the papers, declared:

"It isn't here."

FOUR ORANGES ONLY FOOD FOR 8 ON 3 TINY RAFTS

Captain Offers $100 to First Man to See a Ship.

(This is the third installment of the day by day story—told here in full for the first time—of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and his seven companions who for three weeks faced death in tiny rubber rafts on the southwest Pacific. It is told by Lt. James C. Whittaker of the army transport command, co-pilot of the Flying Fortress which set them adrift Oct. 21 after running out of fuel.)

As Told to CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

With sharks slicking about among our vulnerable rubber rafts, we took stock of our situation. We were eight men in three rafts, at least 200 miles—probably more—from land.

In the first of the two three-man rafts were Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, whom we had been carrying on a war department mission, Col. Hans Adamson, his military aide, and Pvt. John Bartek, our engineer on the plane. We had been forced down, out of fuel, after a takeoff accident at Hickam field, Honolulu, damaged our octant. Its inaccuracies sent us far off our course.

Rafts 4 by 7 Feet.

In the second three-place raft were Capt. William T. Cherry, pilot and commander of the plane; Staff Sergt. James W. Reynolds, our radio operator, and myself.

The tublike, two-man boat was shared by Lt. John F. De Angelis, our navigator, and Sergt. Alex Kaczmarzyk, who had been en route to rejoin his unit in the southwest Pacific after 45 days in the hospital with yellow jaundice.

Just a few words now about those rafts. The large ones, intended for five men (!) were about 4 by 7 feet over-all. Inside they were about 2½ by 5½ feet. In them, three IS a crowd. The two-man raft, as the designer calls it, actually is small for one man. I don't want to say too much against those craft, however. They stood up well.

Painted Bright Yellow.

The inflated sides of rubberized canvas and the bottom were painted a brilliant yellow to make them conspicuous against the sea. Our equipment included an air pump for the rafts, two sheath knives, three Very pistols with 18 flares—half of which were duds—a .45 caliber pistol, and sets of aluminum oars. Johnny De Angelis had some fish hooks and line.

The only food, however, was four anemic oranges. Our emergency rations—chocolate and biscuit—had been in an aft compartment whose door jammed when our plane struck the water. We decided upon a ration of an eighth of an orange per man per day and turned the fruit over to Col. Adamson for safe keeping.

Afloat 6 Minutes.

It had been 4:30 p. m. Honolulu time, Oct. 21, when Bill Cherry set our big Fortress into a trough in a masterful sea landing of a land plane. Never before, so far as I can learn, had a four motored bomber been put

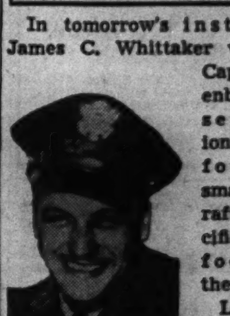
In tomorrow's instalment Lt. James C. Whittaker will tell how Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and his seven companions—then adrift four days in small rubber life rafts in the Pacific — obtained food to keep them alive.



Lt. John F. De Angelis.

Lt. John F. De Angelis, the navigator of the ill-fated plane, produced fishhooks, but there was no bait.

Lt. Whittaker will describe an "amazing interruption"—a sea swallow alighting on Rickenbacker's head. The manner in which the bird was captured and used as bait for fish is given in detail.

The story is one of the highlights of the entire diary.

N. Y. Bears Up Bravely Under Ordeal of War

New York, Jan. 13 [Special].—New Yorkers are bearing up bravely under war time restrictions. Owners of private cars, deprived of gas, have moved into taxicabs. There is just as much traffic as formerly.

It does not seem that a pound of rubber or a gallon of gasoline is being saved. Whatever may be the condition of the rubber stockpile, the stocks of the cab companies are growing, and the cab drivers are prospering. These rugged individualists know when they have a good thing and make plain to the riders that double tips are in order.

The theatergoers and night club boys are told not to wear their evening clothes, but an abundance of fine English woolens furnishes a refreshing variety.

Tuesday is a meatless day—widely advertised on all the restaurant bills of fare, but still one does not starve. A typical Park avenue restaurant offered four kinds of oysters and clams, six kinds of hors d'oeuvres, six kinds of soup, 10 kinds of fish including caviar, and in lieu of meat the following:

Stuffed Philadephia Capon, Americaine, Braised Celery, Corn Fritters
Boiled Spring Chicken with Rice, Curry Sauce [half]
Braised Sweetbreads with Creamed Spinach
Ring of Spinach with Creamed Mushrooms
Croquettes Portland with Fried Apple, Potato, and Cheese Pie
Fried Spring Squab-Chicken, Maryland
Patty of Quenelles of Chicken with Mushrooms, Shrimps, White Wine Sauce
Risotto Carolina with Tomato and Mushroom Sauce
Broiled Maine Baby Lobster [whole]
Gnocchi Parisienne
Stewed Spring Chicken Bordelaise
Royal Squab en Casserole Grand'mere
Chicken and Sweetbreads
Salmis of Guinea Hen, Bohemienne, Wild Rice
Guinea Hen — Fresh Chicken Reine
Royal Squab — Hot House Chicken Grain
Long Island Duck — Fresh Spring Broiler
Mallard Duck — Pheasant

This together with a dozen or more different kinds of vegetables makes life bearable. One does not live the life of Hopkins in New York, but one does manage to get along.

British Women of 19 Now Subject to War Work Call

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP).—King George signed a proclamation today lowering from 20 to 19 the age at which single women are liable to be drafted for national service. They will have the privilege of choosing between work in war industry and the uniformed services, or they may volunteer for nursing before being called up. The proclamation also extended the operation of the service act to men who have reached 18 and to those who are not yet 46.

CITY'S TAX RATE IS FORECAST AT NEW HIGH, $10.45

Expected to Be Increased at Least 5%.

Chicago property owners may look forward into 1943 and groan. The best educated guesses are that the city realty owners will pay a 1942 tax rate at least 5 per cent higher than that of 1941. That was the highest in history.

The 1941 rate was $9.89 on the $100 of assessed value; it was a steep increase from the $9.52 of 1940. The estimates for the 1942 rate [for taxes to be paid this year] ranged yesterday from a minimum of $10.35 to a maximum of $10.55, with the probable final figure about $10.45.

Sutherland Foresees Boost.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the civic federation, said that there was no possibility, as far as he could see, of less than $10.35. The federation several weeks ago estimated the rate at $10.12. This was revised in view of the announcement by Assessor John S. Clark that the personal property valuation over the entire county would be 95 millions less than his assessment of the previous year and 62 millions under the amount on the rolls after the county board of tax appeals had made its revisions.

Much of this decrease, Clark explained, was due to the necessity of taking off the taxable list the personalty of firms that shifted to war work and are operated by the Defense Plant corporation. Another reason was the dwindling stock of merchandise in the city.

Chief of the factors going to make up the final tax rate is what reductions the new board of tax appeals, composed of former County Treasurer John Toman and former Ald. James J. McDermott, may make in assessments.

Taxpayer Takes "Trimming."

Sutherland estimated that reductions from the assessment rolls would total something like 85 millions: the 62 million on personalty, 3 million in railroad assessments, and up to 20 millions by the board of appeals—the last a pure guess.

"The taxpayer," he said, "is taking a trimming. Rentals are frozen and wages are frozen and the freezes date back to the time when 1941 taxes became due. The owner has seen nearly a dollar increase, or 10 per cent, since last March in taxes."

Seek New Collection Laws.

A legislative program to make more certain and easier the collection of taxes will be discussed in the county building this morning, with county officials and representatives of civic bodies participating.

At a meeting in the Union League club yesterday a proposal for tax legislation, urged by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, was considered. One recommendation is that the state's attorney be forced by law to foreclose on all tax delinquent realty and hold it for the full amount of taxes and penalties due.

Condition Better

KATE SMITH.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Improvement in the condition of Kate Smith, 33 year old radio star who was described earlier in the day as critically ill with an abdominal ailment, was reported tonight by her manager, Ted Collins.

Collins said doctors, called into consultation, had decided that an operation probably would not be necessary to relieve a gall bladder condition with which she was stricken last Friday. Since the attack Miss Smith has been confined to bed at her Park avenue home. Collins said her pain was so great today that she was under an opiate.

Collins said her radio programs would be called off indefinitely. This Friday's radio show will be the first major broadcast she has missed in 13 years.

MRS. ROOSEVELT OFFERS 4 POINT 'WIN PEACE' PLAN

New York, Jan. 13 [Special].—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight outlined four general principles for 'winning the peace," but expressed opposition to open discussions now between the United States and Great Britain on the structure of the post-war world. She spoke at the McMillen Academic theater at Columbia university.

"Our first objective is to win the war," she said. 'The minute we start talking about what is going to happen later, it creates division and disunity."

The four general principles which she outlined for preserving peace were: A knowledge of the causes and events before and after the last war; the imagination to realize what the people of England and other countries have gone thru to attain unity in the present war; education in economics and language to promote better understanding between nations, and a 'spiritual change" in which people must want peace enough to work for it.

APPROVE SCHOOL BUDGET; RESTORE 1931 PAY LEVELS

22,000 to Get Boosts; 10 Month Term Back.

The Chicago school board yesterday approved a 1943 budget of $70,890,958 to cover its operating expenses and declared that it would provide for a 5½ per cent salary increase for 22,000 school teachers and other employés, restoring their pay to 1931 levels.

The budget will be financed by a city school tax levy of $66,442,333, a net reduction of $3,006,511 from the levy set for 1942, said James B. McCahey, president of the board.

State to Supply Difference.

The difference between the tax levy and the budget total will come from a $4,115,000 aid fund paid to the city school board by the state and other school income. The state aid fund includes a fixed sum paid for education of handicapped children, plus $11 for each Chicago school child.

Altho the new budget is 1 million dollars higher than the $69,835,862 one for 1942, it is considerably lower than the $96,395,939 budget of 1931, the last to include the salary figures now to be restored, McCahey said.

The new school budget, McCahey added, also provides for restoration of the 10 month school year instead of a nine month term. He also pointed out that the 1942 school tax levy was $69,448,844, almost as much as the 1943 budget.

Yates Gets New Job.

The school board also approved the appointment of Harry F. Yates as principal of Fenger Evening school for the remainder of the school year. Yates replaced Miss Ruth Whitaker, who resigned.

Yates recently figured in an exchange of school principalships which resulted in many protests by civic groups. Under it Yates was transferred from Harper High school [academic] to Lindblom High school [technical], replacing Butler Laughlin. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, said the shift was made because Laughlin was not qualified to administer a technical school successfully. Yates will hold the Lindblom principalship in addition to his new duties at Fenger Evening school.

Mrs. Walter F. Heineman, a board member, cast the only dissenting vote against Yates' appointment, charging that appointments were made from an "inner clique." She said she did not question Yates' ability.

U. S. INDICTS 10 IN NAVAL SUPPLY DEPOT INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Attorney General Francis Biddle announced today that a Harrisburg, Pa., federal grand jury had returned six indictments naming 10 persons and charging conspiracy to defraud, bribery, extortion, and theft in connection with the building of a naval supply depot at Mechanicsburg, Pa.

It was in connection with this investigation that United States Commissioner Sidney Friedman charged at Harrisburg last month that Washington, D. C., officials had hampered the inquiry. Biddle denied the charges and described them as the "irresponsible statements of an uninformed minor official."

One indictment charged Paul Lewis Schlintz, Guy Rupp, Walter H. Shaull, and William J. Millard with conspiracy to defraud the United States.

N. Y.-Miami Streamliner Derailed; Five Injured

FLYNN DEFENSE DENIES CHARGES OF YOUNG GIRLS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP).—Errol Flynn's attorney told a Superior court jury of nine women and three men today that the actor was innocent of charges that he raped two teen age girls.

In his opening statement shortly before the trial was recessed for the day, Jerry Giesler, Flynn's chief counsel, also asserted the defense would attempt to prove that Betty Hansen, 17 year old Lincoln, Neb., girl, was so bent on getting movie rôles that she was willing to resort to intimacies to accomplish her purpose.

He also declared it would prove Peggy La Rue Satterlee, 16 year old Hollywood entertainer whom the state charges Flynn raped twice on a yachting trip in August, 1941, was "at that time living in the apartment of a man about 40 years of age."

Eight of the 12 jurors chosen to decide the case are parents. All but one of the nine women in the panel are married. Two of the women have relatives working in motion picture studios.

JURY VINDICATES TRIBUNE IN FOES' BIGGEST ATTACK

Midway Battle Espionage Inquiry Proves Flop.

(This is the fourth in a series of articles telling of the attitude toward and treatment of the press of the nation by the New Deal. Subsequent articles will tell of the New Deal's attitude toward The Chicago Tribune and other newspapers.)

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

The cabal against THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE came out in the open with its big offensive last summer when a federal grand jury was called upon to prosecute this newspaper, the managing editor and a famous war correspondent. But the move fizzled. The grand jurors decided there was no case and refused to indict.

Climaxing a series of other harassments in Washington's "Get the Tribune" campaign, which came to nothing, the purported case presented to the grand jury involved a story furnished by Stanley Johnston, the correspondent who immortalized the navy's great victory over the Japanese in the Coral sea.

Johnston's story consisted of his estimate of the probable size and strength of the Japanese fleet which figured in the battle west of Midway and was printed for the purpose of showing the magnitude of the American victory. It was regarded as helpful to morale at home and within the ranks of the fighting forces.

Story Just Expert's Calculation.

J. Loy Maloney, THE TRIBUNE's managing editor, collaborated with Johnston in some phases of the account. As an expert on fighting ships, Johnston calculated the probable makeup of the enemy armada the United States navy had shattered. It was also stated the strength of the Jap units moving on Midway was known before the battle was joined, a fact brought out by other correspondents and military writers besides Johnston.

The account was a companion or sidepiece to the big news story of the Midway battle itself. It was printed alongside the official battle score card set forth in the communique of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet.

Official Washington, using its vast grant of wartime powers, seized on the Johnston story to press charges that THE TRIBUNE had violated federal statutes prohibiting unlawful communication of documents or information relating to national defense. The claim was advanced that in some way this newspaper had divulged confidential military information.

Action No Surprise.

Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle's announcement of a grand jury investigation came as no surprise. For months THE TRIBUNE had been criticizing fumbling and blundering in the government's conduct of the war, a feeling the voters expressed in another way in the last election. This newspaper was demanding an all-out effort for victory, even tho that might mean the termination of the political careers of proven incompetent officials in the nation's capital.

Such a drastic reprisal was not unexpected because for months secret service operatives, "G-men" from the federal bureau of investigation, and agents from naval intelligence had been swarming into Tribune Tower on a series of petty inquiring expeditions. They were all acting on express orders from higherups in Washington.

Furthermore, THE TRIBUNE had good reason to believe Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was using his high official position for the benefit of his failing Chicago newspaper. The newspaper had been paying him $60,000 a year for his "advice" while in the cabinet.

Favor Navy Chief's Paper.

On a number of occasions the navy showed unfairness in naval assignments and release of news in favor of the secretary's property and against THE TRIBUNE. This was unavailing because of the outstanding superiority of Tribune correspondents.

Finally an election was coming on. If THE TRIBUNE could be discredited and its patriotism impeached in the eyes of its great middle western audience, the better the chances of some of the officials to keep on warming their swivel seats in Washington.

It is understood from excellent sources that certain persons who made a preliminary investigation of Johnston's Midway battle story counseled strongly against carrying the matter any further because there was no case. However, this recommendation was overridden by higherups in the government.

Another theory of the motives behind the attempted prosecution and persecution of THE TRIBUNE was that official Washington wanted to focus public attention on the case and use it as a smoke screen to cover up the grievous losses suffered in both personnel and planes in the battle of Midway.

Blame for the death of these heroic flyers could be fastened on the officialdom in Washington, because evidence points to the fact they were fighting with antiquated equipment.

Fly Slow, Unarmored Planes.

Naval air heroes who survived the Midway engagement have described the slow, unarmored planes they had to fly against the Nipponese. Lt. Irvin H. McPherson of Glen Ellyn, Ill., one of the survivors, said in his diary published recently in THE TRIBUNE's Sunday Graphic section that he and his mates were flying "old, slow planes, with our number all too few."

Who are these men—Maloney and Johnston—upon whom the administration trained its big guns in order to "get THE TRIBUNE"?

Managing Editor Maloney, "Pat" Maloney to his staff and friends outside, is not only a veteran in the service of this newspaper but a veteran of the first World war. Except for something more than two years spent in army training and overseas duty, he has been an employé of THE TRIBUNE since Feb. 18, 1917. In the World war he was a first lieutenant of the 94th aero squadron, flying over the enemy lines under the command of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Maloney participated in the battle of Château Thierry. After the armistice he was transferred to G. H. Q. at Chaumont, Gen. Pershing's headquarters. There he aided in the preparation of a manual on scout plane fighting.

Harass Managing Editor.

Naval intelligence agents began to harry Maloney and representatives from other government departments started investigations. Thru it all, however, the managing editor continued to bend his efforts toward aiding enlistment of soldiers, sailors, marines and merchant marine seamen, and the selling of war bonds and stamps.

The seagoing navy and hard working naval officers outside political Washington appreciated THE TRIBUNE's efforts, and said so by letter and word of mouth on numerous occasions.

Stanley Johnston is a native of Australia and enlisted in the Australian army at the age of 14½ years in the last war. He has a 20 year old son serving in the front lines with the Australian forces of this war.

Sidetrack Bravery Citation.

As a result of Johnston's own personal heroism at the time of the sinking of the aircraft carrier Lexington during the Coral sea engagement, he was recommended for a bravery citation. It has been sidetracked ever since by the noncombatant naval officials in Washington.

Johnston's citation was recommended by Capt. Frederick Sherman, now a rear admiral, who commanded the Lexington. It was indorsed by Rear Adm. Aubrey Fitch, commander of the Lexington flotilla, and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet. From these naval officials THE TRIBUNE first learned of Johnston's heroism—not from the correspondent himself.

Exhibiting the same cool courage he showed as a youngster in the last war, Johnston stood on the open and unprotected signal bridge of the Lexington during the Coral sea fight while the great carrier was racked by machine gun fire, bombs, and torpedoes.

Stays to Aid in Rescues.

Even after "abandon ship" orders, Johnston stayed aboard the "Lex" and rescued a number of sailors overcome by smoke, or injured by explosions and flames. Afterward the Tribune correspondent was rescued from the water by a launch from a nearby cruiser and in turn helped save American sailors who were struggling in the sea.

Johnston, of course, was a civilian newspaper correspondent and observer aboard the Lexington, with no duties whatsoever. But when he saw wounded men trapped by flames and smoke on the lower decks, and later sailors struggling in the water, Johnston went into action as tho he were a regular member of the carrier's complement, rescuing his mates in the heat of battle.

Contrast this scene with Johnston's reception in Washington. His credentials as a war correspondent were withdrawn and suspicion cast on his patriotism. Many officers of the seagoing navy are anxious to get him back on the quarterdeck as an observer, but the political navy has refused permission.

Desk Admirals Refuse Data.

When Johnston proposed to write a book about the last glorious days of the "old Lex," the desk admirals in Washington frostily refused to give him any supplementary data. In spite of the obstacles, Johnston's book, "Queen of the Flat-Tops," was a smashing success. Sixty thousand copies were sold in the first 23 days and sales are still climbing.

During the early part of this war Johnston was attached to THE TRIBUNE's London bureau as an expert on warships and ordnance. Then, after the usual thoro checking of his background by army and navy intelligence, Johnston was given his credentials and sent to the Pacific.

These are the records, briefly, of the two men Atty. Gen. Biddle went gunning for. Biddle, incidentally, served in the United States army from Oct. 23 to Nov. 29, 1918, according to "Who's Who in America." The armistice was signed on Nov. 11.

How was the grand jury inquiry inaugurated? Some of the circumstances surrounding it were peculiar in themselves and shed light on the political backdrop for the whole affair.

In the first place the government attempted to sidestep the political charge by appointing a Republican as the special prosecutor to handle the case. The man named was William De Witt Mitchell, former attorney general of the United States under President Hoover.

Mitchell was a member of Long Island society. He was induced to take the prosecuting rôle by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, a Republican whose cabinet appointment was part of the deal that resulted in the Presidential nomination of Wendell Willkie as the G. O. P. candidate and his defeat by Roosevelt.

As a rule, grand jury investigations are secret procedures. The scrupulous prosecutor guards against either damaging innocent parties by premature publicity or giving guilty ones foreknowledge before the jury has acted. Not so in this case.

This time the government gained nation-wide publicity by Atty. Gen. Biddle's announcement in Washington on Aug. 7, 1942, that a grand jury investigation would be started in Chicago into the publication "by certain newspapers on Sunday, June 7, 1942, of confidential information concerning the Battle of Midway." He disclosed he was following the recommendation of the navy department under Secretary Knox.

Another Burocrat Names Papers.

While Biddle did not give the names of the papers, the instigators of the investigation took care of that with a simultaneous announcement from Robert W. Horton, head of the news bureau of the office of war information. Horton said the papers involved were THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the New York Daily News, and the Washington Times-Herald.

It is said that Special Prosecutor Mitchell was outraged at this premature publicity.

These three papers had been most forthright in their criticism of the inefficiency of the war program in Washington and had incurred the administration's wrath before Pearl Harbor because of their American views. Col. R. R. McCormick is editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. His cousin, Joseph Patterson, publishes the New York paper and the latter's sister, Eleanor Patterson, is the owner of the Washington paper.

However, the story in question was printed by a total of seven papers. Aside from the three mentioned, the others that used the Johnston story were not subjected to the inquiry. They were the Kansas City Star, Portland Oregonian, Omaha World Herald, and San Francisco Chronicle. These papers, along with the New York Daily News and Washington Times-Herald, received the story via the Chicago Tribune Press Service.

Attack Tribune as Jury Meets.

Mitchell arrived in Chicago on Aug. 11 to start the investigation and the grand jury turned down Biddle's request for an indictment on Aug. 19. In the meanwhile, did the administration preserve silence when the jury was deliberating so the case would not be prejudiced?

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes gave the answer to that one in the midst of the investigation when, on Aug. 13, he gratuitously stated that "in my view THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE was giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

At the same time Rep. Elmer J. Holland, a puny Democratic politician from Pennsylvania who failed to return to congress, acted as the administration's sounding board in the house. He attacked THE TRIBUNE nearly every day.

Even before the investigation was announced, the administration allowed some details to leak out to one of its principal newspaper apologists in New York and to Walter Winchell, Peeping Tom radio columnist, who used the "inside" story to "smear" THE TRIBUNE.

Such purported information could have emanated from only two sources, the navy or the department of justice. The stories given out and spread by these administration mouthpieces were absolute falsehoods.

Voluntarily Goes to Washington.

Despite the political complexion of the case, Managing Editor Maloney voluntarily went to Washington and appeared before navy officials. He arrived in Washington on July 9 to make a statement on the facts surrounding publication of the story and to submit to any questions the admirals wanted to put to him.

He gave his testimony before Vice Adm. Russell Willson, chief of staff to the commander in chief of the United States fleet, and other high ranking officials. Maloney, who had no lawyer with him, was astounded to find himself confronted also by Prosecutor Mitchell and a stenographer to take down his words.

At this hearing Maloney characterized as "ridiculous" the idea that Johnston or THE TRIBUNE would do anything subversive. He asserted THE TRIBUNE had carefully observed censorship regulations despite "injustices" the paper had suffered at the hands of Knox.

He declared that so careful was THE TRIBUNE in adhering strictly to the rules of voluntary censorship that the record had been repeatedly commended by both Washington censors and local army and navy officers to whom stories are submitted. Maloney recalled this newspaper had been told frequently that if all newspapers were as careful as THE TRIBUNE there would be no need of censorship.

Then THE TRIBUNE's managing editor painted the background leading up to the writing and publication of the Midway story. He recalled that when Johnston was in England he became a friend of Francis McMurtrie, editor of "Jane's Fighting Ships," the world authority on men-o'-war. Johnston, as THE TRIBUNE's expert on warships, frequently discussed with McMurtrie the probable makeup of the Jap fleet, including secret units, along with the fighting navies of other countries.

As a result of the correspondent's studies, his managing editor said, Johnston was familiar with the characteristics of practically every capital ship, aircraft carrier, cruiser, and smaller war vessel listed in Jane's.

Adds to Knowledge at Sea.

Before the battle and during it, according to Maloney, Johnston added to his already large store of naval lore thru the experiences he underwent and the close association he had with the officers. Then, after the battle he and the officers were together on the transport which brought them back to the shores of the United States. In fact, three of them bunked with him and a dozen or more visited his room daily.

On the homeward voyage there were numerous discussions of the Jap fleet, of how much strength the enemy had after the Coral sea losses. Johnston led in these talks and had at hand an old friend, a dog-eared copy of "Jane's Fighting Ships."

As Maloney pointed out, the makeup of the Jap navy, its fire power, speed, etc., had been and was being discussed everywhere among naval men, armchair strategists and even ordinary citizens. Soldiers, sailors and airmen in this war, as in other wars, were trying continually to figure out the forces opposing them and discussing the best ways to defeat them. That's what Johnston and his comrades on shipboard did.

When Johnston arrived at a west coast port on June 2, he called Maloney on the long distance telephone. Pressed for details, Johnston said that under navy regulations he would first have to submit the outline of his stories to the navy authorities. This he did the next day, June 3.

"Scoop" Given to the World.

Back in Chicago, Johnston began work on his great series of articles on the five day battle in the Coral sea. One by one the stories were sent to navy censorship in Washington. Altho THE TRIBUNE was fortunate enough to have a correspondent at this sea battle where no one else was represented, Col. R. R. McCormick, the publisher, ordered Johnston's stories turned over to the newspapers of the world.

Thus, THE TRIBUNE, as a contribution to American morale, relinquished a great scoop and shared the greatest story of the war with other newspapers so that people in every corner of the country might read it.

While Johnston was writing his stories in Chicago, the sea battle west of Midway was being fought. Dutch Harbor had been attacked. News stories carried accounts to the effect that the assault was expected, that the station on Midway was not surprised, that forces at both Dutch Harbor and Midway were on the alert, and that we were ready to give the Japs a hot reception.

On the night of June 6 came Adm. Nimitz's victory announcement. Johnston hurried to the desk of The Tribune's managing editor.

Offers to Estimate Fleet.

He told Maloney he was certain the attack on Dutch Harbor was a feint and the thrust at Midway was a prelude to an all-out attempt to take Hawaii. According to Johnston's view, the Nimitz communique showed clearly that an immense Japanese naval force, as big as the Japs could scrape together, was in action. He said he could make a good estimate based on his experience and knowledge of the makeup of the enemy armada.

Johnston was told to go ahead with the story. Maloney told the admirals he felt publication of this estimate of the might of the Jap forces enhanced the greatness of the American victory and Johnston, too, sincerely believed he was helping the allied cause.

THE TRIBUNE printed the story on June 7 and on the next morning was notified the bureau of censorship had cited the paper for violating the censor's code.

Arthur Sears Henning, head of the Washington bureau of THE TRIBUNE, answered the citation in writing. He called the censors' attention to the fact that there was nothing in the code which prevented a newspaper from attributing to the navy advance knowledge of the enemy's strength outside American territorial waters. This was a case of our navy going out to meet enemy ships outside American waters.

Censorship Bureau Drops Case.

The censorship bureau agreed and announced it "had no further quarrel with THE TRIBUNE in this matter."

A few hours later the bureau issued a supplementary rule requesting newspapers hereafter to impute to the United States navy no advance knowledge of the disposition of enemy ships. This, in effect, was an admission that the previously promulgated regulations did not forbid such publication.

However, the navy department purported not to be content with the censorship ruling. It was then that both Maloney and Johnston voluntarily offered to go to Washington and discuss the story with the admirals.

On the question of imputing advance knowledge Maloney reminded the admirals that the correspondent of the secretary of the navy's own newspaper in Chicago, in writing of the Midway battle, said that Adm. Yamamato, the Japanese commander, "knew as did everybody else that never in history had such a force been launched against the United States."

Told of "Gathering of Clans."

Mr. Knox's correspondent also said the Japs were so cocksure they made no attempt at concealment. With this foreknowledge, the American commanders began to concentrate all available warships in the vicinity. The secretary of the navy's paper told about the "gathering of the clans" at a certain "rendezvous."

Thus, Maloney contended, the secretary's own paper in its description of prebattle strategy, certainly imputed advance knowledge of enemy size and dispositions. Yet the secretary's correspondent and paper had never been reprimanded or investigated.

Johnston followed Maloney to Washington and gave his version of the case on July 13. To refresh the memory of his hearers, Johnston quoted from the first Nimitz communique to show the naval commander himself had intimated foreknowledge of the Japs. The Jap invasion force, "far from surprising the defenders of Midway," wrote Nimitz, was intercepted by the American navy more than 1,000 miles from its objective.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Mitchell asked Johnston why he believed the navy had advance knowledge of the size and disposition of the enemy fleet units. Johnston thereupon pointed out that for several days before the attack American airplanes had been observing the hostile fleet and, at times, had even attacked it. United States submarines were constantly on watch in waters controled by the Japanese.

Admiral Bares "Foreknowledge."

Adm. Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, himself revealed to a press conference in Washington on June 7 that the navy had received foreknowledge of the movements of Jap fleet units thru submarine reconnaissance.

According to King's disclosure, the navy lost touch with the enemy fleet for purposes of immediate reconnaissance after the Japs took the licking in the Coral sea battle. But he reminded the newspapermen at the press conference that we had "considerable numbers of submarines sprinkled about the western Pacific and they were able to give us a good deal of at least negative information."

Johnston also recalled that a week before the Midway attack broke, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson issued a warning that an attack was on the way. There were black-outs on the west coast and warnings, he recalled.

He noted further that the later communiques on the Midway engagement plainly indicated reconnaissance aircraft and submarines had witnessed the withdrawal of enemy ships from the southwest Pacific toward Japan. This was the same as imputing advance knowledge of enemy forces, he contended.

Quotes Naval Ambush Stories.

Also, Associated Press dispatches, which were based on official communiques, set forth: "Japanese invasion armada ran into an American ambush in the battle of Midway, official reports disclosed today." Johnston observed that people don't lie in ambush for other people unless they have advance knowledge the other people are coming.

These frank discussions by the managing editor and the war correspondent failed to satisfy the avid promotors of an investigation of THE TRIBUNE, however.

Biddle's unprecedented announcement touched off a storm on the floor of the senate. Various senators charged it was an administration move to "get THE TRIBUNE" and an effort to limit freedom of the press.

Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], himself a victim of vicious attacks from administration partisans because of his pre-Pearl Harbor efforts to keep the nation out of war, told his colleagues the Biddle order was part of a smear and purge campaign engineered by those who opposed the Roosevelt foreign policy.

The Illinois senator, who was re-elected recently by a landslide plurality of more than 200,000 votes, charged the drive was promoting American disunity and jeopardizing the war effort.

Brooks Gets Strong Support.

Brooks received strong support from Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.] and Sen. Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.]. The Ohioan declared that if attacks like this one could stand no editor in the United States could safely publish any battle story unless it was issued word for word by a communications officer of the army or navy.

Then Mitchell arrived in Chicago to the accompaniment of the administration fanfare of publicity and Mr. Ickes' remarks. A procession of naval officers went before the grand jury as witnesses, but Mitchell gave no indication that THE TRIBUNE's side of the story would be told.

Therefore, Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for THE TRIBUNE and representing Maloney and Johnston in the case, wrote to Mitchell requesting that his clients be heard. The letter was dated Aug. 13.

Kirkland declared the two men were ready and anxious to appear before the grand jury. He said the circumstances involved, along with Johnston's record of bravery in the Coral sea and Maloney's service with Rickenbacker in the last war, entitled them to a hearing.

Gets No Answer to Letter.

No answer to this letter was received. In the meanwhile, Mitchell did call Wayne Thomis, aviation editor of THE TRIBUNE, who had done some collaborating with Johnston on the story. Finally, on Aug. 17 Maloney and Johnston visited the United States courthouse and asked to see Mitchell. A secretary said Mitchell did not wish to see them but would communicate with them if he had anything to say.

Two and three-quarter hours later Mitchell announced he had given the grand jury Kirkland's letter and the jury had decided to hear the two men the following day.

On the afternoon of Aug. 19 the grand jury refused to indict THE TRIBUNE or the two editorial staff members who had been accused of violating the espionage act.

The decision was announced to the public in a brief statement by Mitchell, who said he had been instructed to see that all the facts were laid before the investigating body, and added he had done so as fairly as he knew how.

"Matter Settled," Says Mitchell.

"The jury has considered the case fully, and its conclusion that no violation of law was disclosed settles the matter," he wrote.

Col. McCormick issued a statement for THE TRIBUNE in which he said he never had any doubt of the outcome because of his confidence in the integrity of the two men.

"The attitude of THE TRIBUNE is today what it was before the grand jury investigation was launched and as it was the day after Pearl Harbor," continued Col. McCormick. "Our whole effort is to win the war and we will not indulge in any factionalism excepting insofar as we are persecuted and have to defend ourselves."

When Col. McCormick, Maloney, and Johnston walked into the local room of THE TRIBUNE late that afternoon, the editorial staff staged a spontaneous demonstration. Every man and woman in the room clustered about the men and cheered.

In Washington attempts were made to get the reaction of Messrs. Biddle, Knox, and Ickes but none made himself available for comment.

In Springfield, Gov. Dwight Green and Senator Brooks both expressed their gratification at the action of the grand jury. Gov. Green asserted it was vindication of freedom of the press and renewed the recognition by the American people of the imperishable need for that freedom, as well as freedom of speech and thought, if our constitutional rights are to survive.

The next morning, Aug. 20, THE TRIBUNE sold 1,062,325 copies, as compared with 1,040,470 the previous morning.

Sen. George A. Wilson of Iowa and Mrs. Wilson in Chicago en route to Washington.

"I'm going to take a look at that new budget as soon as I get to Washington," declared George A. Wilson, Iowa's new Republican senator, upon his arrival in Chicago yesterday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and left later in the afternoon for Washington, D. C.

Sen. Wilson said he had given little attention lately to federal affairs, being busy winding up his second term as Iowa governor. He left Des Moines only a few hours before Bourke B. Hickenlooper, who had served under Wilson as lieutenant governor, took the oath as Iowa's new chief executive.

4 ORANGES ONLY FOOD IN RICK'S TINY LIFE RAFT

down at sea without casualties. I feel we all owe our lives to Cherry.

So perfect was the landing that the Fortress stayed afloat more than six minutes. As we drifted apart I watched her gallantly riding the swells in all her war plumage. I had a sudden wave of melancholy that I could almost feel physically. I thought the old gal deserved better than this.

Our raft plunged into a deep trough and when we came up again she was gone. I am glad I didn't see her go.

Those eight foot swells hadn't looked so bad from 5,000 feet, but down among them they seemed like mountains. When we were down in a trough we were virtually alone, our taut line disappearing into the heart of the wave. When we were on a crest we could look down into the trough and see our line attached to the other rafts.

Rick Makes Offer.

The spray drenching us was very annoying. And at that time, annoyance was our only reaction. We wanted the planes to hurry to our rescue so we wouldn't have to spend a night in these pesky rafts.

"I'll give $100 to the first man to sight the ship or plane that rescues us," Rickenbacker yelled. There was a cheer and the boys really began searching the sky. Most of us stared into the sun which was setting like a great crimson ball. "Red sun at night, sailors' delight," some one quoted. But no planes flew out of the west.

When the sun disappeared it was almost as if an electric light had been snapped off, so quickly did the equatorial dusk descend. A fair sized moon showed up and we could see from one raft to another. Finally we gave up hope of rescue that night. We played a long shot and fired off one of the flares, watched it burn out in the sky, then settled down to try for sleep.

In Rickenbacker's raft, Col. Adamson doubled up crossways in one end, while Rick and Bartek lay fore and aft in the other. Rick kept his arm around Bartek to prevent him falling out, to save space, and to keep both of them warm. In our raft we started out with me in the end, leaning against the seat; Cherry on the bottom, leaning back against me, and Reynolds in the other end, curled around the seat.

Two Men in a Tub.

In the tub the situation gave us all a laugh at first, tho it grew pretty terrible for those two fellows before it was over. There was only one possibility. De Angelis and Kaczmarzyk had to sit facing one another, each with his legs over the other's shoulders. This was in day time as well as at night.

Well, we found very quickly that we couldn't sleep. Those who didn't want to have spray dashing down their necks had to lie in five inches of water to find shelter.

Dawn of the second day broke clear and we forgot our grogginess by beginning to scan the sky, hoping to earn Rick's $100. Cherry fired a flare in the hope it would be seen by some one on dawn patrol.

"I am confident we will be picked up today," Rick assured us. "They couldn't have missed getting a cross bearing on our SOS. They had plenty of time. That $100 still is up."

Sun Like Molten Metal.

As the sun rose higher, Rick told us to cover our heads with undergarments, to move about as little as possible so as to save energy, and to talk little and thus avoid drying our mouths. Our eighth of an orange apiece was little help. The value of Rick's advice became apparent at 11 a. m. when the sun neared the zenith. Its rays were like molten metal.

To escape them we took off our shorts, wet them with salt water and put them on our heads. This made us sweat, however, and Rick warned we were losing valuable body salt thru perspiration. We just held the garments up as sunshades after that. The salt water had felt good at the time, but we were to pay and pay later for this respite.

While the heat was at its worst—from 11 to 4 p. m.—the wind and waves began banging the rafts together, bringing out the first displays of temper. They probably were justified, because those sharp aluminum oars could have easily punctured an air chamber. Cherry solved the problem by splitting his undershirt down the back and rigging a sail, using oars as masts. The wind sent our raft ahead, stringing the others out in a safe line.

Often Read His Bible.

When calm had been restored and the terrible heat had passed, I looked back and saw Johnny Bartek reading his Testament. I had a strange feeling.

It was almost like a premonition. It seemed to me particularly fitting that I should see the boy reading a Bible, tho it was nothing new. Often in the past I had seen Johnny with the khaki covered, zipper bound book. It was pocket sized and waterproof.

I think it would be a great thing if every soldier and sailor boy could be provided with one of those indestructible little volumes. There are times in this war—in any war—when those kids need something more than just themselves to hang on to.

Wind Roughens Sea.

We all saw Johnny reading his Bible that night, his freckled face solemn as an owl's and the sun glinting on his red hair. No one kidded him. Maybe they had a prescience of just how much that little book was going to mean to us all.

Whatever consolation Johnny got, he needed it that night. At dusk the wind blew hard, roughening the sea and drenching us all. And it was cold. This amazed us. In daylight the sea, the spray, and the air were too warm. Now we were chilled and huddled together with our teeth chattering. There was real danger, too, of falling overboard to the sharks.

There was no use trying to sleep. We shot off a flare shell, which proved to be a dud, then settled down to make the best of a miserable situation. None of us yet felt any real apprehension.

JAP PLANE KILLS ONE AMERICAN IN RAID ON GUADALCANAL FIELD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—A Japanese plane dumping bombs near Henderson field on Guadalcanal Island killed one man and wounded several others while American aircraft continued to pound the enemy air field at Munda, the navy reported today.

The single plane attack on Henderson field, in which five bombs were dropped on positions southwest of the airfield, was the first bombing there since Dec. 14.

No aerial opposition, the navy said, was encountered by American bombers continuing their regular attacks on the Japanese airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island. Anti-aircraft batteries were reported active, however. In ground action on Guadalcanal small scale offensives against enemy outposts were continued satisfactorily, the navy said, with several enemy positions surrounded.

NEW SEAPLANE TO BE BUILT AT NEW ORLEANS

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP).—Consolidated Aircraft corporation's model 31, described as the world's fastest seaplane, will be manufactured at the firm's new plant in New Orleans, Rear Adm. Ralph E. Davison, assistant chief of the bureau of aeronautics, announced today. Capt. William Nelson, production representative here, has been named acting division manager for the New Orleans project. L. O. Cederwall, chief project engineer, and R. M. Zerbe of the same department have been transferred to New Orleans.

FIRE FROM CHRISTMAS TREE.

Defective Christmas tree wiring set fire to the home of Wallace T. Combiths, 5915 North Rockwell street, early yesterday, causing damage of $1,300. Combiths was slightly burned when he tried to extinguish the blaze.

BRITISH TELL HOW BOMBERS 'SWEPT' MAGNETIC MINES

LONDON, Jan. 14 [Thursday] (AP).—The air ministry today told how Wellington bombers helped clear the seas around Britain of magnetic mines which once were Hitler's "secret weapon" and which threatened England's supply lines late in 1939.

"Coastal Command," a new booklet in the series on the British air force, disclosed that the mine sweepers of the air were equipped with a "hoop shaped casing extending all around them and secured to their nose, wings, and tail." The casing held a magnetic coil and the current was supplied by an auxiliary engine of the ordinary Ford V-8 type. The equipment set up a magnetic current which exploded the then new type of mine.

Mine sweeping from the air, the booklet said, continued "some four months, after which it became no longer necessary, the [surface] ships having been fitted with gear" which nullified the magnetic mines.

Swedish Ship Torpedoed and Sunk in Atlantic

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—The torpedoing and sinking of the 2,608 ton Swedish motor freighter Brageland, probably in South American waters, was announced today by the American-Swedish News agency. No additional details of the sinking were available, the news agency said. The Brageland, built at Gothenburg in 1937, was owned by the Tirfing Line.

Wounded, Floats Off as Northampton Dives.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP).—The heavy cruiser Northampton, one of those announced as lost by the navy department Monday, sank two Jap destroyers before it went down in the battle off Guadalcanal on Nov. 30, her commander, Capt. Willard A. Kitts, said today.

Kitts, 48, is visiting his family in San Francisco.

"We were fortunate to save a large per cent of our crew due to their discipline," he declared. "My most lasting impression was the wonderful spirit of my men. They are beyond all praise. They are cheerful—witty—you can't get them downhearted."

He said he believed every one able to leave the ship was saved. Part of this was attributed to the fact that "sharks operate by daylight."

Seaman's Narrow Escape.

He mentioned, too, the miraculous escape of a wounded seaman in that hell-like fury when his big ship was flaming to destruction and ammunition was exploding.

The severely wounded seaman was in a watch loft high in the mainmast. Shipmates were able to get him to a slightly lower level. He was given an opiate, but this helped little. He demanded that if the ship was abandoned, he be left there, as he couldn't bear the pain of being moved another inch. They left the youth, with two life jackets, in his elevated station. In a short time all others took to lifeboats and rafts.

He Floats to Safety.

As the big cruiser keeled over slowly and the mainmast dipped into the sea, the injured man floated out. He was picked up quickly and now is recovering in a field hospital.

The captain had another story: From his lifeboat, as the Northampton slowly overturned and then poised, bottom up, he saw two figures dashing madly across the upturned keel. Then he decided that such things couldn't be.

But after the rescue, he said, he learned that his eye had not betrayed him; that two Negro mess attendants—non-swimmers—had been so loath to take to the water that they stuck with the ship, and as she rolled over they scrambled across the bottom like loggers riding a spinning log, and then jumped into the sea.

LT. COL. JIMMY ROOSEVELT WINS NAVAL AWARD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, eldest son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was among 15 members of a marine corps raider group announced by the navy today as having each received a navy cross for a successful attack on Makin Island in the Pacific last August.

The decoration, the navy said, was awarded Roosevelt, then a major, by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief, Pacific fleet, on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons last October.

Corp. Joseph Sepock, son of Mrs. Mary Sernik, 14606 Winchester avenue, Harvey, Ill., was among the others receiving the navy cross.

HORNET SINKING WAS IN REVENGE FOR RAID ON TOKIO, SAY JAPS

"I'd swear that at least one of the Jap pilots who attacked the Hornet was a woman," Anthony Panico, 19 years old, aviation machinist mate aboard the lost ship, told his mother, Mrs. Rose Panico, 817 South Ashland boulevard, while on leave here. The navy announced Tuesday the Hornet had been so badly damaged in the Santa Cruz Island battle that it had to be sunk.

"Some of the planes came in so low we could see the pilots' faces plainly," the sailor said. "I'd swear that one was a woman. Why, she was so close we could almost count her teeth."

Panico was in the water three and a half hours before being picked up by a destroyer.

Another veteran of a Pacific battle, Gerald A. Baer, is visiting his father, Lawrence, 6300 North Hermitage avenue. Baer and a buddy, Patrick Biggy, 4414 North Spaulding avenue, both gunners, were slightly hurt when the destroyer Benham was sunk off Guadalcanal on Nov. 15.

"The southwest Pacific, once called a paradise where no one ever grew old, now is dubbed by sailors as the land where you don't get a chance to grow old," Baer said.

NIGHT BOMBERS RAID GERMANY 3D NIGHT IN ROW

LONDON, Jan. 14 [Thursday]—(AP).—Royal air force bombers attacked targets in Germany last night for the third successive night, it was said authoritatively today. The raid was the eighth night attack on Germany this year.

It was announced also that bomber forces and American and allied fighters—nearly 400 in all—made one of the greatest series of daylight raids of the war yesterday on France and Holland.

The American Flying Fortresses and royal air force bombers blasted these targets:

LILLE—High altitude attacks by the Fortresses on Nazi controled war material plants and railways were successful.

ST. OMER—R. A. F. bombers scored many hits on the German occupied airfield.

ALLIES BOMBARD FOUR JAP BASES ON GUINEA FRONT

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 14 [Thursday]—(AP).—Slowed down on the ground by rain that turned the Sanananda sector of New Guinea into a swampy bog, allied commanders broadened their air attack against the Japanese with raids on four bases.

A single Liberator raided Madang and Finschafen on the northern New Guinea coast. Flying Fortresses, supported by medium bombers and fighters, struck at Lae and Salamaua. Over Gasmata, New Britain, a Liberator shot down two and probably got a third out of six Zeros.

In the area of Lae large fires were started among barges, stores, and harbor installations. A Japanese fighter was destroyed on the ground at the Malabang inland airstrip adjacent to Lae.

KILL 15 JAPS FOR EACH YANK SLAIN ON GUADALCANAL

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Dec. 30 [Delayed].—Col. R. H. Jeschke of Benton Harbor, Mich., a University of Chicago graduate, now commanding a marine sector of the western island front, said today it is only a question of time when the Japs will be cleared out of Guadalcanal.

"We have had very good luck in patrol actions," he said. "We have a score of something like 15 Japs to 1 American killed during the last two weeks. And our men have to see them dead before we count them."

Have Good Machine Gun.

"We have been running into Jap patrols with every other man in them carrying a light machine gun," he continued. "This gun is of 25 caliber and easily portable. Most of the marines killed were victims of this gun. The Jap soldiers are very brave and do not surrender. They also are very skilful in the use of cover and terrain."

The patrol which killed 17 Japs was led by Lt. Henry H. Czeswick of International Falls, Minn., who has been recommended for the silver star. Others in the patrol included Pvt. H. D. T. Stack of Tripoli, Ia., and Platoon Sergt. Michael P. Kontz of 3252 North 7th street, Milwaukee, Wis.

I visited the front held by Col. Jeschke's men, escorted by Capt. Wilmot J. Shires of Winnsboro, S. C. With glasses I saw a lone Jap cautiously approach the water's edge, 2,000 yards away, and stand motionless for some time behind a fallen tree.

Marines Well Dug In.

The marines were in well dug-in positions, with plenty of machine guns and artillery. The Jap positions were less than 300 yards away and Capt. Shires pointed to a wooded draw in which were at least eight Jap machine guns, so protected that it was impossible to get them out without huge loss of American lives.

A recent patrol in his sector killed more than 100 Japs with a loss of 12 marines.

Captains Martin W. Kynett and Clyde D. Joy, both of Chicago, led a party to an area held by the Japs. Two days before, the enemy soldiers had dug themeselves into holes and tree bases, and had left many clips of machine gun bullets behind. There were skulls and bones and rapidly deteriorating uniforms and supplies.

AUSTRALIA TO ACCEPT FLYNN AS ENVOY, SAYS MELBOURNE HERALD

MELBOURNE, Jan. 13 (AP).—The proposed appointment of Edward J. Flynn as United States minister to Australia drew from the Melbourne Herald today the editorial comment that "Australia is prepared unquestioningly to accept President Roosevelt's nomination."

"Australians are sufficiently well versed in the ways of domestic political strife not to allow their judgment to be influenced by the clamor raised in some quarters in America over President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn as ambassador to Australia," the Herald stated.

"In the tradition of his predecessors, Mr. Roosevelt does not allow himself to be cramped by the timidities characteristic of the older burocracies," the editorial continued. "His ambassadors abroad are men of his own personal choosing, men whose capabilities he knows and trusts."

ALLIES MAY SEIZE RULE IN AFRICA, FRENCH WARNED

Rivals Must Reach Pact Soon, M. P. Says.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 14 [Thursday].—American-British differences over the situation in North Africa may be solved by the two governments themselves "taking the responsibility of trusteeship on behalf of the French people," Vernon Bartlett, Independent member of parliament, said today.

Writing in Thursday's News Chronicle, he asserts that unless rival French groups themselves reach an agreement shortly the American and British governments probably "will seek the coöperation of as representative a body of Frenchmen as they can find—who would resemble a council of administration rather than ministers in government."

Would Free Leaders' Hands.

Such men would be chosen for personal integrity rather than for their political pasts, he says, and should "be able to make this burden of Anglo-American responsibility so light as to be almost unnoticed" and at the same time enable the American, British, and French commanders to concentrate all their energies on the battlefield.

Bartlett challenges the belief, which he says is held by the public of London, Algiers, and Washington, that Gen. Charles de Gaulle is the British candidate and Gen. Henri Giraud the American for control of all Frenchmen outside of France and insists, "to a degree unrealized in the United States" the British government has discouraged the political ambitions of De Gaulle and at no time favored establishment of a De Gaullist provisional government.

Slap at U. S. Seen.

Meanwhile, De Gaulle took occasion in a BBC broadcast tonight to France in praise of Brig. Gen. Leclerc's exploits in southern Libya as chief of the French force there, to emphasize that "that section of the world which is carrying on by our side in the great war of liberation . . . may understand it would be absurd to expect to find the heart and soul of France in a system of tottering hierarchies and sordid schemes."

The Daily Herald interpreted the statement as aimed directly at the United States and headlined its report of the broadcast "De Gaulle's Plain Words to the United States."

The concerted campaign against Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's appointment of the late Adm. Jean Darlan as North African high commissioner even extended to the league of nations union meeting in London yesterday at which Victor Alexander Lytton, long a leader of the league, assailed the deal with Darlan despite its military expediency.

"It is a mighty dangerous doctrine if we are to accept as a fact that anything wrong is justifiable if it be for military advantage," he said. "To allow such a man to pose as an honorable and worthy ally is a stain on our course."

Backs De Gaulle as Leader.

He described De Gaulle as "a symbol of clean, honorable, and courageous France and a pivot around which Frenchmen could unite."

Regarding the lack of news from North Africa, the Daily Telegraph said in an editorial that the British public as well as the Americans had cause for complaint, but "in neither case can complaints be sustained against British censorship which was originally blamed by American authorities themselves, who are not wholly guiltless either of favoritism or undue delays."

Even allowing for difficulties of communication and the speed of the original advance, the Telegraph protested that "two months should have been time enough to organize something better."

Capt. James G. Kandaras, 28 years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kandaras, 6949 Indiana avenue. He was an R. O. T. C. officer at the University of Illinois, which he attended for three years after graduating from Parker High school. He was associated with his father in the wholesale grocery business at 437 West Ontario street before joining the air forces two years ago.

Court Quashes Charge of Christmas Eve Slaying

A warrant charging Vincent Lucchese, 43 years old, a loop barber, with the Christmas eve slaying of Walter Sheffer, business agent of an Electricians union local, was ordered withdrawn yesterday by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Felony court after the grand jury refused to return an indictment. Earlier, Lucchese, who said he killed Sheffer in self-defense when the business agent attempted to interfere in a quarrel between him and a manicure in the shop, was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

FORTRESSES RAID TRIPOLI AIR FIELD; SMASH 34 PLANES

Yankees Blast Rommel's Waning Air Cover.

ALLIED HDQ., North Africa, Jan. 13 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses, destroying 34 axis planes aground and aloft in a raid on Castel Benito air field, 10 miles south of Tripoli, have torn a considerable hole in the thin air cover on which Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel is depending for an effective retreat from Libya into Tunisia.

In the heaviest assault delivered from the west on the axis in Tripolitania, not an American plane was lost, allied headquarters announced today.

Among the crews of Fortresses which shot down planes over Tripoli was Sergt. R. E. Allen, Evanston, Ill.

Smash 20 Planes on Ground.

The attack, delivered yesterday, topped all action in North Africa, where land operations were marked only by patrol encounters between Bou Arada and Goubellat in Tunisia.

While the allied communique stated 14 planes were shot down during the Castel Benito raid, an air force spokesman said at least 20 more German planes were smashed on the ground.

[In Libya the British announced air attacks on Tripoli and Homs, Libya, and on targets in Crete, Sicily, and on Lampedusa Island. The British communique spoke only of patrol action aground in Libya.]

Aside from the Castel Benito attack, allied headquarters announced American planes attacked bridges between Sousse and Sfax on the Tunisian east coasts.

NAZI AND ITALIAN CLAIMS.

The German high command yesterday reported 14 allied tanks were destroyed in local fighting in Tunisia. Italy admitted Agrigento, on southern Sicily, was bombed Tuesday. It told only of reconnaissance activity in northern Libya.

2 FRENCH WOMEN DRIVE WOUNDED YANKS IN TUNISIA

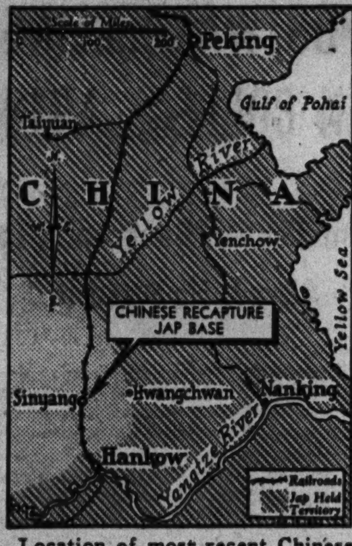
BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. TASK FORCE IN TUNISIA, Jan. 9 [Delayed]. — This United States task force was augmented today by two French women ambulance drivers who had volunteered for duty on American front lines.

They are Mlle. Elizabeth Le Febvre, 28 years old, of Mezieres en Brenne, Indre department of France, and Mme. Fernande Mahoux, 32, of Paris, who was born in Rufisque, Senegal, French West Africa. Apparently they are the only women ambulance drivers with the American army in North Africa.

This is not the first time the two women have assisted this task force. The day Col. Edson D. Raff's paratroopers jumped near here in Tunisia, Mme. Mahoux used her ambulance to carry two injured men to the hospital. As members of the French Red Cross Mme. Mahoux and Mlle. Le Febvre previously drove a headquarters ambulance.

Chinese Success



Location of most recent Chinese success against Japanese troops.

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 13 (AP).—Sinyang, important Japanese base in southern Honan province on the Peking-Hankow trunk railway, has been recaptured by the Chinese, the Chinese high command announced tonight. This was considered the most significant Chinese victory in months.

The communique also reported the recapture of Hwangchwan, east of Sinyang, in a battle in which 600 Japanese were slain. It also reported renewed fighting in western Yunnan, near the Burma border, where the Japanese attacked Mengma Jan. 8. They encountered Chinese resistance and fighting was continuing two days later.

Sinyang, a key point in the Japanese defense in southern Honan, has been a base for their operations since 1939.

The communique said the Chinese attacked the city on the evening of Jan. 9 and at dawn the next day one column penetrated the west gate. Severe street fighting ensued.

GERMANS SEEK AFRICA ENVOYS FOR AMERICANS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The state department disclosed today that Germany is trying to obtain the release of its North African armistice commission—captured by American troops last November—by making the exchange of American diplomats held in France contingent upon the release of the German officials.

When the Vichy government broke relations with the United States in November the state department announcement explained, the United States "proposed thru the Swiss government an agreement to exchange the American group in France for the former French officials here."

The announcement said that "the answer as reported by the Swiss government was that no consideration would be given to the departure of the American officials from France until information was furnished about the German armistice commission in Africa and the German consul in Algiers."

Leave for Baden-Baden.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 13 (AP).—Americans held in France will leave Lourdes tonight for Baden-Baden, Germany, the United States legation in Berne announced today.

[Among the 133 interned by the Germans are David Darrah, Chicago Tribune correspondent at Vichy, his wife and her mother.]

WINDSORS' HOST HELD AS TRADER WITH THE ENEMY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Charles E. Bedaux, friend of Edward Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, has been arrested in North Africa on a charge of trading with the enemy, the state department said today. Secretary Hull said he had no further details.

Charles E. Bedaux.

Bedaux, an American industrial engineer, who made a fortune out of an efficiency system for labor, was host to Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson when the abdicated king of England made her his bride in 1937 at Bedaux's castle near Tours, France. Bedaux is a French born, naturalized American, married to the former Fern Lombard of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Won Enmity of Labor.

Bedaux also was designated by Windsor to arrange his proposed American tour in 1937—a trip which was called off after a storm of criticism against Bedaux came from American labor unions.

The criticism was based upon their condemnation of the "Bedaux system" of rating workers.

In New York Albert Ramond, president of the Bedaux company, said Bedaux had not been associated with the companies for more than five years, and that when Bedaux left this country for Europe he severed his connection.

Elmer Davis, director of war information, said today that the state department has received information that all North Africa Fighting French sympathizers have been released from jail.

Royalist Plot Reported.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—A French royalist plot to set up a monarchy in North Africa has failed and some French royalists have been implicated in the Christmas eve assassination of Adm. Jean Darlan, CBS Correspondent Charles Collingwood reported tonight in a broadcast from Algiers. Collingwood said Darlan apparently was killed because he "refused to play the game" with the royalists.

He added the royalists included men in "high places" in North Africa and they apparently hoped to set up the count of Paris as king over a French monarchy in North Africa.

GERMANY BUILDS U-BOATS FASTER THAN THEY SINK

Authorities Regard Subs as 'First Enemy.'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The German navy, it was learned on high authority today, is turning out submarines faster than the sea and air forces of the allied nations can destroy them. This despite the heavy bombings of German factories from British and American bases in England.

At the same time, the allies are building cargo and transport ships faster than they are being sunk. They also are building escort and patrol vessels—destroyers, corvettes, and subchasers—at about top speed.

The number of enemy submarines operating in the Atlantic at any one time is reported to be more than 100, which represents possibly from one-third to one-fourth of their actual sub strength. The rest of enemy undersea craft are either operating in other waters or are at home for repairs and crew relief.

Regarded as "First Enemy."

These factors were described by qualified authorities, who cannot be identified by name, as being among the reasons why the U-boat is considered by the navy to be, in the words of Adm. Harold R. Stark, its "first enemy." They are reasons, too, why allied shipping losses still are, in Stark's opinion, "something to be mighty uncomfortable about." Other naval authorities are known to take an equally serious view of the situation.

Bombing raids on submarine bases along the German and French coasts are not too successful. The Germans house their subs in concrete shelters with walls and roofs said to be 15 feet or more thick. The destructive force of explosions simply does not penetrate to the ships.

Move to New Locations.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 31 [Delayed] — (AP). — American naval counterblows have made enemy submarine operations in this U-boat "hot spot" of the western hemisphere increasingly hazardous, but it is a continuing battle and much remains to be done.

This is the opinion of Rear Adm. J. B. Olendorf, commanding the Trinidad sector of the Caribbean sea frontier.

"This has been one of the hottest spots for subs in the whole western hemisphere,' the admiral said. "But for the last couple of months it has been relatively quiet. It isn't because we've licked the submarines, but because they have moved elsewhere."

WOULD KEEP MEN IN UNIFORM FOR POST-WAR STUDY

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13 (AP).—Men in the army and navy would be kept in service after the war for retraining in civilian pursuits and then be mustered out at a controled rate under a plan advocated today by Dr. Joseph W. Barker, special assistant to the secretary of the navy.

Releasing men at planned intervals would tend to prevent dislocations of the nation's economic machinery, he told the Northeastern university convocation.

Dr. Barker, who is dean of the faculty of engineering at Columbia university, asserted new industries would arise from wartime developments, and said:

"The mustered-out soldier or sailor may well have to be trained for these newer applications. Even should he return to his old job he will have lost some of his civilian skills and he should be retrained therefor."

MOTHER FEARS MISSING FLYER FELL TO DEATH

The mother of Ted Rapala, 26 year old flyer who disappeared last Sunday in a training plane, believes her son is dead.

"If he was alive I would have heard from him," said Mrs. Antoinette Rapala of 3116 Avondale avenue, last night. "I know he intended to go into the army Tuesday," she said, "because he sold his automobile, and even bought a zipper bag in which to carry his clothes when he left home."

Rapala's draft board has sent him a notice of suspected draft delinquency.

Despite the fact that 365 airports in 12 middle western states have been notified to watch for Rapala and the plane, no trace of him has been reported. J. F. Reed, superintendent of safety regulations for the civil aeronautics administration, said a description of the pilot and plane had been sent out after patrol planes had sought for them in vain.

Mrs. Rapala said she feared her son may have plunged into Lake Michigan. He took off from American airport in Park Ridge about 4 p. m. Sunday, after renting the plane from Maynard Dowell, manager of the airport. Dowell said Rapala frequently had rented planes from him.

SEDITION TRIAL JURY LOCKED UP AFTER SIX HOURS

After deliberating for six hours last night without reaching a verdict the federal court jury considering sedition charges against three Chicago defendants was locked up at midnight and will resume deliberations today.

The three defendants are Newell Mecartney, 52 years old, 800 North avenue; Elmer Hartzel, 51, of 21 West 110th street, and Elmer Soller, 39, of 4233 North Moody avenue, whom the government charges wrote, printed, and distributed pamphlets designed to destroy the morale of American fighting forces and assist in the defeat of the united nations.

William J. O'Connor, assistant United States district attorney, made the government's closing plea and told the jury that the pamphlets the men distributed were seditious and that they followed the Hitler philosophy of "divide and conquer."

Ode Rankin, attorney for Hartzel, termed his writing "political opinions" and said the case involved the freedom of speech. He added that none of Hartzel's writing contained "the language of sedition."

Sixth USO Lounge to Open in Dearborn Street Station

The United Service Organizations will open their sixth railway terminal lounge for traveling service men and women next Wednesday in the Dearborn street railway station. The first Chicago lounge was opened in the Illinois Central station in April, 1942. The Union station lounge was opened in May, La Salle street in June, North Western in July, and Grand Central in September. The five lounges now open have been catering to an average of 40,000 uniformed men and women monthly.

HUTCHINS FEARS POSTWAR DECLINE IN COLLEGE AIMS

Intellectual Bankruptcy Is Ahead, He Asserts.

Large universities will emerge from the war as prosperous as they went into it, but they face a real danger of intellectual bankruptcy, Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, told the trustees for the faculty at their annual dinner meeting last night in the South Shore Country club.

Hutchins said colleges and universities have entered a new phase of their history—education by contract. He predicted that it would be continued after the war because a government which once has discovered that universities can be used to solve immediate problems is likely to intensify the practice as its problems grow more serious.

Sees Sweeping Changes.

Violent and unplanned changes are now being made in colleges and universities, Hutchins said. He laid the blame on educational forces who "now reap the whirlwind for sowing the wind of football, fraternities, and fun, and for presenting their institutions as combination trade schools and clubs."

"Since clubs must disappear under the stress of the national emergency," Hutchins continued, "the country is left with the vision of universities as trade schools, a vision uninspiring in the best of times and terrible to behold when the fate of the world is hanging in the balance."

He said the government is establishing in the public mind the doctrine that technical training is the only education for war, and therefore the public mind may conclude that technical training is the only education for peace.

Plans Stronger Faculty.

"On Armistice day," Hutchins said, "the world will not be pleasant to look upon—millions dead, crippled and homeless in every part of the world. Until there is an international conscience there cannot be an international state. We cannot expect an international conscience to spring up in the next three or four years."

To meet the changes coming with peace, Hutchins said the university will do two things now. It will strengthen its faculty, especially in departments where there are likely to be few students for the duration. And it will support worthy research projects, whether the faculty member who is doing it has any students or not.

LEADER OF DRYS HELD FOR POSING AS ARMY OFFICER

Charge Gaston Wore Uniform Illegally.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Edward Page Gaston, self-styled founder and American director of the World Prohibition federation, has been arrested on charges of illegally wearing the uniform of an army captain, the department of justice announced tonight.

The department said that on many occasions the tall, gray haired, and pink cheeked advocate of the return of prohibition has appeared in public in an army uniform in connection with publicity for his various dry activities. He has also circularized photographs showing himself in a uniform with army insignia.

Never Served in Army.

Gaston has never served in the army. For a time he served in the New York guard, which was never federalized, so that its members were never recognized as part of the army.

Gaston is known as the most active prohibition lobbyist on Capitol Hill.

By refusing to take no for an answer, he installed himself in an office in the house office building. There, maintained by the taxpayers, he has had his propaganda mimeographed on government machines.

Gaston, a former Chicago archaeologist, last summer called Chicago, Baltimore, Md., and Norfolk, Va., the nation's three moral black spots where vice and alcohol were rampant. He contended that the return of prohibition was the only remedy that would save "drink fuddled officers from swarms of axis spies."

Includes Old Dry Groups.

Thru a series of interlocking committees the World Prohibition federation serves as the main outlet for such old time dry groups as the Anti-Saloon league, the Women's Christian Temperance union, the Methodist board of temperance, the International Reform federation, and the National Prohibition party.

Gaston is a brother of the late Lucy Page Gaston, who won notoriety as an anti-cigaret crusader.

BRITISH TO LOSE SOME LIBERTIES, PRIMATE WARNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Dr. William Temple, the archbishop of Canterbury, warned the people today—as did Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin yesterday—that they will have to put up with less personal liberty after this war. The archbishop voiced his warning in inaugurating a two month series of lunch hour sermons in St. Paul's cathedral on the subject, "The National Balance Sheet—A Christian Audit."

"Why did the war happen?" asked Dr. Temple. "We have, for the most part, been content to say that it was the work of Hitler and his Nazi colleagues," but, continued the archbishop, whether this is true, it is a commentary on the inability of the people to restrain "bandits when they have taken control of their country."

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

JEFFERS, BALKED BY NELSON, TAKES FIGHT TO BYRNES

Rubber Program Snagged by Priorities.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers, unsuccessful in his efforts to get top priorities from the war production board to step up the synthetic rubber construction program, has laid his demands before Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes at the White House, it was disclosed today.

Byrnes has been asked to referee the dispute between Jeffers and other governmental agencies which are seeking top priorities for high octane gasoline production, naval vessels, and other "must" programs. It was reported that a compromise arrangement giving Jeffers a go-ahead signal on 50 per cent of the rubber program has been placed before Byrnes. It was reported that Byrnes will announce his plan to settle the dispute tomorrow.

Conflict with Nelson.

Since his appointment to the rubber post last September Jeffers has waged a constant fight with WPB Chairman Donald Nelson to keep the rubber program on schedule. The program has fallen behind, however, because of the competition for materials and equipment among Jeffers, army and navy officials, and other claimant agencies for priorities.

Jeffers recently predicted that the entire rubber construction program "faces disaster" unless a top rating for equipment is assigned to 65 to 70 per cent of rubber plant construction.

The best he has been able to obtain from Nelson, however, is a top rating on 20 per cent of the rubber program. This rating, granted last month, is shared with 20 per cent of the high octane gasoline construction program.

Nelson, it was reported, has refused to take the responsibility for assigning a special preferential status to any additional portion of the synthetic rubber facilities in the face of opposition by other officials responsible for keeping gasoline, shipping, and aircraft construction on schedule. Nelson and other officials agreed, however, to place the entire problem before Byrnes for a decision.

Foresees Inventory Crisis.

The rubber goal fixed by the WPB calls for the completion by next September of facilities capable of producing 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually. So far, however, none of the rubber plants under construction has come into production, and only a few thousand tons a month of new rubber from all sources are being obtained.

The nation's stockpile of rubber amounts to approximately 400,000 tons. Jeffers has estimated that the absolute minimum stockpile requirement is 120,000 tons and that supplies will fall below this point next September unless synthetic construction is stepped up from the present rate.

Last week Nelson gave Jeffers full authority to allocate the dwindling rubber stocks for all civilian and military needs.

WALTON LEAGUE BACKS TRIBUNE ALCOHOL PLAN

The Izaak Walton League of America, "defender of woods, waters and wildlife" and long a battler against pollution of streams, has joined the campaign for production of alcohol for synthetic rubber from sulphite paper mill waste, in which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is now pioneering, it was made known yesterday by its national executive secretary, Kenneth A. Reid.

Reid announced the league's decision when he asked THE TRIBUNE for data on its project to make alcohol for basic tire material from the sulphite liquor now wasted in the manufacture of woodpulp at Thorold, Ont., by the Ontario Paper company, a subsidiary of THE TRIBUNE. He said the league is endeavoring to gather material on the volume of this waste from all paper mills in the country for submission to a committee of the United States senate headed by Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], which is inquiring into the possibilities of the plan.

Members of Sen. Gillette's committee have been told that if all the sulphite liquor now wasted at American woodpulp mills were utilized, enough alcohol would be supplied for making 90,000 tons of rubber annually.

Chicago Food Prices Steady; Increase in Other Cities

Food prices in Chicago remained at the same level between Nov. 17 and Dec. 15, but rose sharply in other cities, according to a report made yesterday by Brunswick A. Bagdon, regional director of the bureau of labor statistics. Chicago prices stood at 129.9 per cent of the 1935-'39 average. Increases elsewhere were 1.4 per cent in Milwaukee, Wis.; 1.6 per cent in Omaha, Neb.; 1.3 per cent in Springfield, Ill., and .8 per cent in St. Paul, Minn.

Irks Constituents

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Picture of Clare Boothe Luce which caused constituents to complain about her headgear.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—What a woman wears on her head has blown up a storm of protest from a new congresswoman's constituents. Rep. Clare Boothe Luce of the 4th Connecticut district, told the National Women's Press club that a picture showing her on the Capitol steps with a scarf tied over her head, had resulted in many letters.

"I represent Danbury—that hat city," Mrs. Luce explained.

Some of the letters, she added, accused her of trying to set a Communist fashion and pointed out that "going around wearing a bandana around your head like a Russian kulak [peasant] is going to promote the rise of Communism."

The Republican congresswoman explained that members are not allowed to wear hats in the house of representatives. She said she put on the scarf as she left.

FOOD INDUSTRY MEETS TODAY TO EASE SHORTAGES

Seeks Remedy in Better Distribution Plan.

The practical advice of the Illinois food industry will be sought by the government today as a meeting in Chicago to organize a state food distribution committee for relieving shortages caused by vast federal lend-lease and military purchases. The meeting, to be held in Hotel La Salle, was called by and will be under the direction of E. O. Pollock, Great Lakes regional administrator of the food distribution administration.

Coincident with the announcement of the meeting, the FDA, which is a branch of the department of agriculture, reported that in November its purchases of foods and other agricultural commodities had a total value of 104 million dollars. These purchases, almost entirely for lend-lease, brought the total volume of buying since the lend-lease program started in March, 1941, to nearly 2 billion dollars.

Four Other States Acting.

When it is organized the Illinois food distribution committee will represent all branches of the food industry. A. E. Stolte, state supervisor of the distribution division of FDA, will join Pollock in directing the conference and a Washington representative is expected.

Other states in the region are holding or have held similar meetings this week. It is expected that by tomorrow the region will be organized to take immediate action on the food shortage problem. Besides Illinois, the Great Lakes FDA region includes Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio.

Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard last week ordered steps taken in coöperation with the food industry, to establish machinery to relieve local shortages arising from maldistribution of supplies.

Provide for Relief.

Pollock said that the business experience of the food trade will be utilized in handling supply problems. Under Wickard's plan, state and, where necessary, area industry committees will receive and investigate shortage complaints, and if they are verified, move supplies to relieve the condition.

The Great Lakes regional administrator disclosed that 35 million pounds of food and feed seeds have been shipped to allied nations in a move to promote increased production and thus reduce lend-lease requirements.

REPORT CANADA WILL HALT GAS TO PLEASURE CARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 13.—The present system of classifying automobile drivers for gasoline ration cards will be revamped before the 1943 ration books are issued April 1 to eliminate nonessential driving, it was learned today.

It was indicated the new plan of classification may abolish some of the present categories, and generally result in a large decrease of gasoline consumption.

Primary object of the plan is to put an end to pleasure driving. There has been criticism in the eastern United States of the present Canadian policy which allows limited quantities of fuel, supplied by the United States for pleasure driving.

OPA OPENS DRIVE ON VIOLATORS OF FOOD COST CURBS

Center Attack on Chicago Area Wholesalers.

Regional headquarters of the Chicago office of price administration has unleashed a sweeping enforcement drive against price ceiling dodgers in the food industry which will pour thousands of dollars into the United States treasury and may shut down the businesses of some flagrant violators, John F. Manierre, regional OPA enforcement attorney, said last night.

Determined to halt increasing complaints from housewives that anti-inflation measures to stabilize food prices at March, 1942, levels have been ineffective, the OPA enforcement staff is now engaged in recouping for the treasury triple damages for all overcharges made by wholesalers and in drafting more severe legal action for wilful violations, Manierre said.

Center Attack on Wholesalers.

The enforcement drive will reach from the canner and processor to the retailer, but the strength of the attack will be centered on the food processor and wholesaler.

Already, the OPA has conducted formal conferences with six Chicago area wholesale grocers previously warned of violations, the enforcement attorney asserted. The merchants were requested to make an audit of their transactions to determine overcharges and to write a check to the United States treasury for triple the amount overcharged.

As yet, the OPA has not requested the justice department to initiate criminal proceedings against any firm in the food industry in the midwest region. However, it was indicated that the punitive provisions of the law will be invoked against a few merchants who have flouted the price control regulations.

Abide by Meat Ceilings.

Manierre said that Chicago area meat packers and wholesalers generally have abided by recent regulations establishing definite ceilings on meat products and that injunctions obtained against a score of packers and wholesalers were effective in halting the piercing of price ceilings.

The OPA official disclosed, however, that retail butchers have had difficulty getting meat because of the limited quotas on meat allowed for civilian consumption.

Increased scarcity of meat for civilian use has forced many butchers to scramble for daily supplies and use various inducements to persuade wholesalers and jobbers to sell them adequate stocks.

Less than one-half of the meat supply available a year ago is now alloted for civilian tables, one meat expert said, and the enforced scarcity will become more serious in February and March. Nationwide meat rationing is not expected before April, Manierre said, altho mounting criticism of meat shortages in coastal states may force the OPA to earlier action.

CHARGES 'HUSH MONEY' TAKEN IN OPA VIOLATIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Rep. C. A. Herter [R., Mass.] said tonight that office of price administration agents were enforcing an "extortion of hush money" in dealing with alleged infractions of price and ration regulations.

Herter said that the agents employed "an arangement whereby the accused culprit is called upon to make a voluntary contribution to the United States treasury in an amout specified by the OPA and receives in return an inconclusive and unenforceable promise that the charges will not be pressed." He added:

"This sort of thing has no sanction either in law or in conscience. Its vice is self-evident. It is extortion of hush money perilously close to blackmail."

Herter said he would introduce a resolution tomorrow calling for an investigation by the house banking committee.

'FUN DRIVING' BAN COVERS CHARITY EVENTS, SAYS OPA

Motoring to Nearby Restaurants O.K.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The office of price administration today specifically banned driving to the President's birthday dances this month in an interpretation of the pleasure driving ban in the east.

OPA said that driving to any place of amusement, even if the affair was for charity, was pleasure driving, and gave the President's birthday dances as examples of the forbidden type of gasoline consumption. The dances are held annually on Jan. 30, President Roosevelt's birthday, with proceeds going to aid the fight against infantile paralysis.

However, driving to a nearby restaurant to eat was listed as permissible. OPA also said an eastern driver may make a nonessential stop if it is on the route of an essential trip. For instance, a person driving home from work could stop for a drink or social visit, so long as the stop took no extra gasoline.

Foresees Easing of Ban.

The possibility that the ban might be relaxed some 10 weeks hence was seen today by Charles S. Phillips, chief of the automotive supplies division of OPA. Phillips estimated at a special senate committee hearing that a winter fuel oil crisis in the 17 state area would be over in 65 or 70 days unless a heavy snowstorm impeded fuel oil and gasoline shipments.

In other states where pleasure driving is not prohibited, Phillips said, rationing boards are reviewing the cases of B and C gasoline ration books, distributed hastily to bring passenger automobile mileage to an average of 5,000 miles a year.

If this limitation is attained, he added, the OPA tire rationing program will be sufficient to keep passenger cars supplied "many months" without reliance on the synthetic rubber program.

Down to 322,000 Barrels.

Phillips said the east's gasoline quota, assigned by the petroleum administration for war thru the war production board, had been reduced from 390,000 barrels a day until it now is 322,000 barrels for both passenger and commercial vehicles.

The eastern shortage has brought the average gasoline ration to less than the 5,000 miles a year recommended by the Baruch committee, Phillips said.

He said OPA inspectors felt the gasoline black market was small, and was based not on the issuance of too many ration coupons to some users, but on stolen books.

He said that so far as OPA is aware transportation has not broken down as a result of rationing, despite predictions that it would.

'SITDOWN' POLICE GUARD IS CALLED OFF IN N. Y. HOME

New York, Jan. 13 [Special].—Police guards who have maintained a constant vigil in the home of Mrs. Sara Bertisch since Dec. 12, when they raided the apartment and found 11 persons playing cards there, disappeared mysteriously last night. This development occurred while she conferred with her attorney on possible legal action.

The vigil had been maintained under a police department rule which attorneys agreed violated constitutional rights. No warrant was issued, but the police occupied her living room 24 hours a day in an effort to force her to move.

Efforts to confirm reliable reports of similar guards in 48 other homes failed. Police officials refused to comment. This reticence was ascribed in some quarters to the fact that "muggings" [strongarm robberies] had increased in midtown areas, and the police did not wish to call attention to the waste of man power in "home guards."

OPA RUSHES AID TO STUDY A NEW OIL RATION PLAN

John Neukom, assistant director of fuel oil rationing for the office of price administration in Washington, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow to discuss a new and revolutionary rationing plan with local dealers. This was announced last night after Neukom wired distributors he would be here.

The new plan, calling for complete elimination of the coupons largely responsible for the breakdown of rationing in metropolitan Chicago, has been worked out and approved by the industry.

Copies of it have been in Neukom's hands and in those of Joel Dean, his superior, for several days. It was understood that Neukom's swift response followed a special appeal to Prentiss Brown, former United States senator from Michigan, who on Monday replaced Leon Henderson as OPA administrator.

Hope to Save Millions.

Neukom is the second OPA representative to visit Chicago in less than a month for an oil rationing inquiry. Henderson first sent Charles H. Abbott, a former whisky salesman, to investigate and report to him.

Frank E. Spencer, president of the Burning Oil Distributors association, who has been fighting the coupon rationing system, which he said had completely broken down, explained that the new plan would save the consumers in the 30 rationed states some 22 million dollars and those of metropolitan Chicago $900,000.

The new plan was evolved by Mel Keim, an executive of the Apex Motor Fuel company.

The dealers have characterized it the "A. B. C." plan.

Distributors' Leader Hopeful.

"We have great hopes that with Leon Henderson eliminated as head of OPA and Brown in his place we will get better action from OPA on all-out suggestions for changing the broken down system now in effect," said Spencer.

The plan calls for issuance of three simple forms to each user—form A, form B, and form C. These would list all rations issued to users and delivered by oil suppliers, perform all the functions now covered by the coupons, and furnish the rationing authorities with all necessary records.

Would Eliminate Small Deliveries.

They also would eliminate, Spencer said, the small deliveries now imperative and thus save on gasoline and rubber and make it possible for the dealers to comply with orders of the office of defense transportation to cut down mileage 25 per cent.

ENJOIN HUSBAND FROM OBTAINING DIVORCE IN RENO

Test Illinois Effect of New Supreme Court O. K.

In the first test of the effect in Illinois of the recent United States Supreme court opinion generally upholding the validity of quick Nevada divorces, Judge Thomas J. Lynch of the Circuit court yesterday issued an injunction to restrain a Chicago husband from going ahead with a contemplated Reno divorce.

The case was that of Louis Solk, 34 years old, now in Reno, and Mrs. Minnie Solk, 28, of 901 Independence boulevard, mother of two children, Aldine, 10, and Minerva, 8.

In May, 1941, Mrs. Solk filed a bill for separate maintenance, charging desertion, which bill is still pending. Solk was ordered to pay $10 a week support for the children, but is now $650 in arrears. A few weeks ago he wrote his wife from Reno that he had begun divorce proceedings.

"Flees" Illinois Jurisdiction.

Yesterday, Mrs. Solk's lawyers, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, appeared before Judge Lynch and contended Solk should not be allowed to benefit from the Supreme court decision.

That opinion, delivered Dec. 21 in a North Carolina bigamy case, held all other states must recognize Nevada divorces, regardless of whether they approved Nevada's six weeks residential requirement. Specifically, the court did not rule on the requirement. Its ruling was based largely on the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution, under which states generally are required to recognize as valid acts of their sister states.

Norman Becker, after citing the Supreme court opinion, said it ought not apply to a case such as Solk's.

"He fled Illinois jurisdiction while a case was already pending and went to another jurisdiction," said Becker. "The Illinois courts have sole jurisdiction, and Solk is practicing a fraud on the Reno court in not notifying it that a court case is pending here."

Judge Lynch Agrees.

"The Illinois courts definitely have jurisdiction in this case," agreed Judge Lynch. "The facts go beyond the Supreme court opinion, and the Nevada courts would not enter a decree if they knew the facts."

Judge Lynch then issued the injunction, with orders that a copy be filed with the Nevada courts for their guidance in the Solk case.

Meanwhile, several judges and lawyers familiar with divorce laws, after studying the Supreme court opinion, agreed that it will not prevent Illinois courts from interfering with obviously fradulent Reno divorces.

"The opinion does not affect Illinois procedure," said Judge Rudolph Desort. "Our courts have held repeatedly that Nevada divorces for Illinois residents are illegal on the ground Nevada courts lacked jurisdiction over Illinois residents. The Supreme court does not attack that contention."

DRAFT TO GET 11 OUT OF EVERY 15 FIT MEN IN 1943

Eleven out of every 15 physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 37 years, regardless of dependency or occupational deferment, will be in the military service of the United States before the end of 1943, Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois director of selective service, said yesterday.

Col. Armstrong, who addressed the Illinois Nurserymen's convention in Hotel La Salle, said the estimate was based on an ultimate military strength of nearly 10 million men.

"There are perhaps 31 million men in the country between 18 and 37 years old," Col. Armstrong said. "A large percentage of these, especially those over 30 years old, are unfit for military service for one reason or another. It is estimated that not more than 17 million will be found available.

"I have seen the estimate of Gen. George C. Marshall [army chief of staff] on the army's requirements for 1943 and I have seen President Roosevelt's estimates. They and probably only a dozen other persons in the country know the exact status of the nation—how many ships can be produced and how large an army can be supplied. The navy, marine corps, and coast guard probably will want about 2 million men."

Martinique Silences Radio on U. S. Request

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Broadcasts by the Martinique short wave radio, which had been sending out "news" from Vichy French propaganda sources even after the Vichy break with the United States, have been discontinued at request of the United States state department, the office of war information said today.

Petrillo to State His Terms for Recordings—Some Time

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—James C. Petrillo offered to trade jobs with any one of seven senators today, kept them laughing and promised to tell the conditions on which he will rescind his ban against radio transcriptions and recordings.

Sen. D. Worth Clark.

But the $49,000 a year president of the American Federation of Musicians balked when the smiling senators asked him to rescind the ban pending negotiation with the broadcasting and recording companies.

The companies, he said, would make so many records in 30 days that they wouldn't worry about a new ban.

Sticks to His Story.

Petrillo was the principal witness at a hearing of a subcommittee of the senate interstate commerce committee, which is investigating the union chief's refusal to let musicians make recordings and transcriptions.

There he heard himself accused of wasting the nation's man power in time of war with pancake turners or union musicians who collect union pay for turning the records now in use, and with standby orchestras that get paid for not playing. He stuck to his story, nevertheless, that union musicians are walking the streets.

The questioning was principally by Sen. D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho], subcommittee chairman; Sen. Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.]; Sen. Ernest W. McFarland [D., Ariz.], and Sen. Charles O. Andrews [D., Fla.].

Ready for Demands.

The senators accused Petrillo yesterday and today of banning recordings without making any demands upon the industry and kept asking him: "What do you want, and from whom?" Today's interrogation:

CLARK—All we can get from you is that you have not made any demands.

PETRILLO—We are ready now to make demands and go into negotiations.

CLARK—Would you consider a request of this committee to lift your ban and then negotiate? You would put yourself in an infinitely better light with the country.

PETRILLO—I've negotiated with these companies 20 years. If we took the ban off they would make records of all the popular tunes in 30 days.

Petrillo's offer to trade his job for a senator's came after he had been asked how many radio stations in New York and Chicago employ no musicians. A New York local official said there was one in New York.

Tries to Be Fair.

PETRILLO—In Chicago I negotiated the contract myself. When I asked $90 for pancake turners there was no objection. So I took 'em. They gave it to me and I didn't turn it down. I try to be fair, but sometimes I make a mistake. But they O. K.'d it.

BINGHAM [Herbert C. Bingham, subcommittee council]—What's your income?

PETRILLO—I get $26,000 a year from the Chicago local as its president, $20,000 from the American federation, and a $3,000 contingent fund.

BINGHAM—That's $49,000.

PETRILLO—Don't bring that up. I just threw my salary up for grabs because I can't take more than $25,000 a year under the income tax law.

CLARK—Would you trade jobs with one of us?

"Not Burglars, Not Racketeers."

MacFarland accused Petrillo of hurting the man power program.

MacFARLAND—We have a man power problem in the United States and you're trying to make it harder. The reason sentiment is against you is because the boys are dying overseas.

PETRILLO—The government is taking care of every union but the musicians. It asks us to play every day gratis. Everything we do don't mean nothing. By God, I'm going to tell you the musicians are working men. We're not burglars. We're not racketeers.

Petrillo predicted that there would be plenty of work for musicians if the ban remained in force two or three years, but said he did not want it to. His protests that the industry he is fighting is wealthy finally brought from Sen. Clark the query:

"Your union has plenty of money, hasn't it?"

Petrillo smiled as he replied:

"About 2½ million dollars."

Buy $235,000 in Bonds at B'Nai Zion Temple

Three hundred fifty persons attended a war bond rally last night at B'Nai Zion temple, 1447 Pratt boulevard, buying a total of $235,000 in war bonds toward the purchase of a bomber. Feature of the rally was the raffle of a pound of coffee. High bidder was Harry Goodman, who paid $15,000 in war bonds. Goodman also gathered the highest individual amount of war bond subscriptions, including the $15,000 in bonds with which he won the coffee. H. D. Heyman was master of ceremonies. B. Harrison Neuman represented the treasury department.

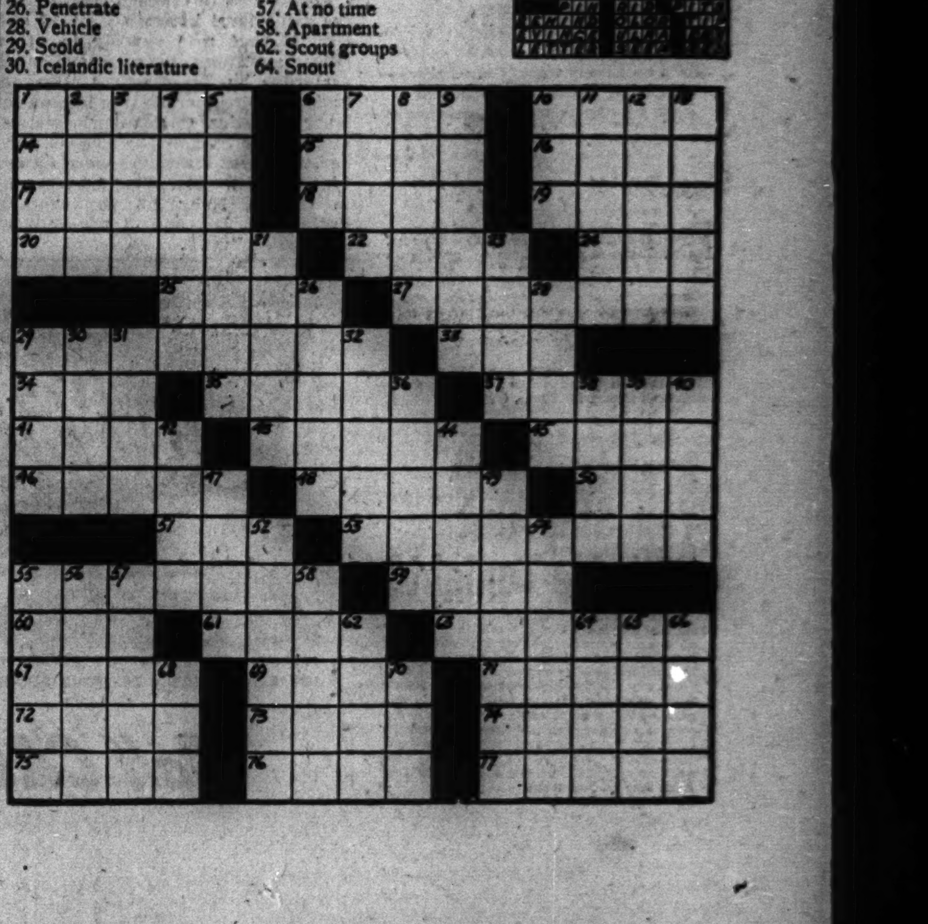
PUZZLE OF WEDNESDAY, JAN. 13, SOLVED



M'KIBBIN GIVEN GO AHEAD SIGNAL IN MAYORAL RACE

G.O.P. Committee United in Indorsement.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The regular Republican organization mayoral campaign behind George B. McKibbin, the new entry who replaced Roger Faherty on the slate, started off yesterday with every appearance of unity.

The committee on candidates created by a caucus of the 50 ward committeemen met in Hotel La Salle and without debate or question indorsed McKibbin. Faherty, whom it indorsed in the first place, appeared before the 11 committeemen and stated his willingness to withdraw at the behest of party leaders for the sake of harmony. This was about the way he expressed his position in a statement Tuesday night:

Faherty Pledges Aid.

"I shall do everything I can to deliver for the party," he said "United effort is vital."

With the unanimous action of the slate makers on record, County Chairman John T. Dempsey announced he had accepted the invitation to manage the McKibbin campaign.

In reply to a question Dempsey said that a meeting of all 50 ward leaders may be held soon but that the session might be put off until after the last day for withdrawals, which is next Tuesday.

Today is the last day for filing petitions at the office of the city clerk and Dempsey hinted that efforts were being made to persuade one or both of the announced nonorganization candidates who have not filed already to withhold their petitions. They are John H. Lyle, former legislator, alderman and Municipal judge, and Robert McCormick Adams.

Both Determined to File.

But both of these candidates told newspaper men that the replacement of Faherty with McKibbin as the organization choice did not alter their own decisions to run. Both said they would file today.

The one anti-organization entry who has filed, Arthur F. Albert, former north side alderman, also said he would remain in the race. If Faherty withdraws before next Tuesday Albert will inherit first place on the ballot, which at the moment is assured Faherty because he filed first.

GOVERNOR RATES HEALTH A PRIME WAR NECESSITY

Gov. Dwight H. Green told the fifth annual conference on industrial health in the Palmer House last night that health and safety of workers is the first concern of employers "after enlarging your factories and establishing your production lines."

The conference, sponsored by the Chicago Medical society, the Illinois department of public health, and the Illinois Manufacturers' association, also heard a paper prepared by Dr. Fred H. Albee of New York City, an authority on rehabilitation of physically handicapped persons, read in his absence by Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher.

Dr. Albee wrote that "the cripple brings to a job a rare kind of loyalty" and declared that the physically handicapped provide a great man power reservoir which would help fill the nation's need for war workers.

BATHING ACTRESS JAILED BY BRAVE (BUT SO RED) COP

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP).—Frances Farmer, blonde movie actress, was jailed today but not—the arresting detective said—before his ears were burning.

Detective Earl Reinbold reported that, accompanied by a policewoman, he went to a hotel seeking the actress on a warrant charging probation violation.

They found her, but Reinbold said she asked to be allowed to take a bath. Finally, he knocked on the bathroom door.

It was flung open, he continued, and Miss Farmer, scantily clad, delivered a tirade.

She was lodged in city jail and ordered to appear in police court tomorrow on a warrant growing out of a recent drunk driving arrest.

Aldermen Defer Action on Superhighway Parcels

The city council finance committee referred to a subcommittee yesterday a proposal to purchase five additional parcels of property for $166,500 to provide right of way for the Congress street super-highway. Three of the parcels, between 500 and 508 South Wells street, are improved with six and eight story buildings, and the other two parcels, in the 500 block on South Market street, are vacant.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Jane Davis, 921 Fair Oaks avenue, Deerfield, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

On what occasion have you been prompted to tell a big whopper?

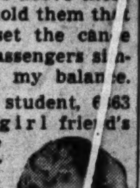
WHERE ASKED.

Broadway and Devon avenue.

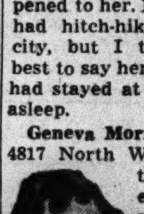
THE ANSWERS.

Paul P. Atkinson, student, 6323 North Paulina street—I probably never would have heard the last of it if I had told the truth about my broken nose. I was doing exercises in the young students' jungle gym when I fell and broke my nose. When the doctor and teachers asked me how it happened, I told them I fell down the steps.

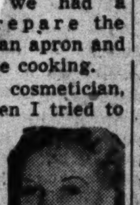
Mary Harrington, student, 6363 Sheridan road—It was too much for me to have to admit to the kids in the camp that I had been frightened by a snake. Camp counselors were supposed to be above those things. I told them that I had upset the canoe and the passengers simply because I had lost my balance.



Bonnie Mae Diebold, student, 6363 Sheridan road—My girl friend's mother called to tell me that her daughter hadn't come home that night and she asked if I knew what had happened to her. I knew she had hitch-hiked to the city, but I thought it best to say her daughter had stayed at my home and was still asleep.



Geneva Morrow, fountain manager, 4817 North Wolcott avenue—One of the worst whoppers I've ever told was when I said I could cook. My husband was anxious to prove to his parents that I could too. When they came from far out of town, we had a woman prepare the whole dinner. I put on an apron and pretended I had done the cooking.



Virginia Lee Dawson, cosmetician, 7007 Sheridan road—When I tried to help keep my closest friend's wedding a secret, I involved myself in a multitude of little white lies. Each led to a bigger one. Out of town trips, telephone calls, and all plans had to be camouflaged. I was glad I could confess after the secret was out.

Jim E. Bendel, student, 6315 Wayne avenue—During an examination, the teacher saw a piece of paper with all the answers fall to the floor. It belonged to a boy who couldn't afford to have one more failure. When she asked who owned it, I raised my hand. It probably didn't teach the other boy much of a lesson, but he made the grade.

MAJORITY BACK ON JOBS IN MART JANITOR STRIKE

A majority of the 200 striking janitors and charwomen in the Merchandise Mart returned to their jobs last night after hearing the pleas of Lt. George Barnes of the police labor detail to work as they wait for the war labor board to decide on their contract.

They met yesterday in their union headquarters at 509 South Wabash avenue, after Thomas Burke, business agent of the AFL Office, Theater and Amusement Building Janitors union, local 25, which represents them, declared their strike was unauthorized.

Burke said that all provisions of a new contract, retroactive to last July 1 and providing an hourly wage increase of from 17½ to 22½ cents per hour, were agreed upon by both company and union. The contract was forwarded to WLB for approval because of the government's wage freezing policy.

The workers who quit Tuesday night were protesting the WLB delay in acting on the contract, union sources said.

EASING OF STATE MARITAL HEALTH LAW PROPOSED

Dr. Cross Asks Legislature to Drop Gonorrhea Test.

BY JOHNSON KANADY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dr. Roland R. Cross.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 13.—Establishment of full time health services in Illinois rural areas and changes in the state hygienic marriage law were included in legislative recommendations made today by Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health.

It was learned that bills embodying most of the features outlined by Dr. Cross are being drawn, and that study is being given his plan to curb the marriage law by striking requirements for laboratory tests for gonorrhea.

However, it was said in state legislative circles that Rep. Edward P. Saltiel [R., Chicago], who fathered the marriage law, is not yet convinced of the need for the change.

Cites Drop in Marriages.

Cross has said that a marked decline in marriages in Illinois last year may have been due to the Illinois law prohibiting hasty marriages.

Commenting on legislation to allow full time public health departments in counties, Cross said that the state's greatest health problem "is the lack of administrative machinery for the establishment of effective full time local public health services beyond city limits."

It was indicated that opposition to such a plan might come from township officials. It was believed home rule might also prove an obstacle before the proposal to give the health department more authority over public water supply systems—another plank in the department's legislative program.

Asks Pasteurization Law.

Cross said he favored legislation to require the pasteurization of all milk on the Illinois open market, and another bill to amend the vital statistics law to make "more practicable the recording of delayed reports of births and issuance of birth certificates on the basis of delayed registration.

The question of who will lead house Republicans in the 63d general assembly was settled today when Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg announced the appointment of Rep. Reed F. Cutler [R., Lewistown]. He succeeds Rep. Fred Rennick [R., Buda].

Rennick will be chairman of the important house executive committee.

10 DAYS REMAIN TO REGISTER FOR CHICAGO PRIMARY

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the Chicago board of election commissioners, yesterday reminded voters they have only 10 more days in which to register for the mayoral primary and aldermanic election Feb. 23, and thus avoid a rush at the deadline Jan. 25. Those who need to register can do so at the election board offices in the city hall until 5 p. m. Jan. 25, or at fire houses from 1 to 9 p. m. on Jan. 22, 23, and 25. The 1,895,001 persons registered from within the board's district for the election last Nov. 3 need not reregister, but must report any change in address. Nearly 1,000 additional registrations and a number of changes of address have been received since Nov. 3.

DISMISS ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST 'GOLF BAG SAM'

Golf Bag Sam Hunt, former Capone gangster who was acquitted in his fourth trial on a charge of murdering Michael Wade, a Negro houseman, last July 4, will not have to stand trial for the wounding of Wade's companion, James Baxter. The state yesterday nol prossed the assault charge against Hunt because of the acquittal. Wade was shot to death and Baxter wounded in a quarrel that followed a traffic accident. Three murder trial juries disagreed on Hunt's guilt.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

H. E. T. writes: A group of college students has just registered with the selective service. We would like some accurate information about deferments for college students. Can a student taking a premedical course secure deferment and for how long? Also, can an engineering student, completing his first year, obtain deferment?"

ANSWER: The national selective service headquarters' directive on student deferments imposes the following restriction, applying to all deferments affecting students enrolled in professional schools in "critical" professions: "A registrant who is in training and preparation as a premedical, predental, prevetinarian, or preosteopathic, or pre-engineering student, etc., pursuing courses in liberal arts or sciences in a recognized university or college, may be considered for occupational deferment after completion of his first academic year in such preprofessional course, and thereafter if he is a full time student in good standing, if he continues to maintain good standing in such course of study and if it is certified by the institution that he is competent and that he gives promise of the successful completion of such course of study and acquiring the necessary degree of training, qualification, or skill." Students in the professional schools must show they are acquiring "the necessary degree of training, qualification, or skill to become a recognized medical doctor, dentist, veterinarian, or osteopath, engineer, etc." Upon graduation or completion of training in one of the professional fields, the registrant will be given the opportunity to become engaged in the practice of his profession in the armed forces, or in a "necessary civilian activity" of an activity necessary to war production, or essential to the support of the war effort. It is expected that this plan will be effective until July 1, 1943, unless sooner amended by the war man power commission.

B. H. S. asks: "Can you give me the basic requirements and qualifications necessary for appointment as an instructor in the navy air corps?"

ANSWER: Physical requirements are minimum uncorrected vision of 12/20 [about 20/30] each eye correctible to 20/20 and be able to pass a rigid physical examination. The applicant must be between 19 and 33 years of age and have a minimum of 50 solo hours of logged flight. If accepted, the candidate will be given up to the one year's instruction in the civilian pilot training program and then assigned to duty as flight instructor.

FIRST ELECTRON MICROSCOPE IN CITY INSTALLED

The Illinois Institute of Technology has purchased and installed the first electron microscope in the Chicago area, according to announcement yesterday by President Henry T. Heald, and new fields of research have been invaded by the institute's staff.

New Electron Microscope.

The new instrument, 100 times more powerful than the strongest optical microscope, is the 41st such microscope constructed. There are 34 in operation in the United States and 7 in England. The institute is one of 12 schools in the United States possessing this new instrument for research work.

The microscope is in the Physics building on the institute's campus, 3325 Federal street, and research work has been started under the supervision of Dr. James S. Thompson, head of the department of physics.

One of the first subjects Dr. Thompson hopes to study with the new instrument is cancer, to which he previously has devoted considerable time. He hopes thru the additional power of the new microscope to bring to light the origin and nature of the growth of the cancer cell.

WIDOW, 48, IS FOUND DEAD.

Mrs. Mary Blade, 48 years old, operator of a restaurant at 63d and Elizabeth streets, was found dead, apparently of heart disease, yesterday in her room at 1245 West 63d street. She was a widow.

I. C. C. EXAMINER SPEEDS TRACTION CASE IN CLASH

Examiners for the Illinois Commerce commission and lawyers for the proposed unified Chicago traction system clashed late yesterday over a commission demand that the taking of testimony in the dragging traction case be ended speedily.

Leslie Salter, one of the examiners, was sharply criticized by Atty. William J. Friedman for insisting the attorneys start their redirect examination of witnesses this morning. Salter was told he was veering from the fair attitude he had hitherto maintained; that counsel wanted at least until Monday to study the record.

The examiner, however, ordered the proceedings resumed without any delay. A session was set for today.

Speed had been emphasized by Salter to the commission's own attorney, William Rufus Morgan, assigned to the case by Atty. Gen. Barrett. Morgan closed his cross-examination in the afternoon only after the commission itself had ruled that certain questions put to James Walker, a witness on valuation, need not be answered.

To the press alone, checkered as it is with abuses, the world is indebted for all the triumphs which have been gained by reason and humanity over error and oppression—James Madison.

FOR WHOM THE BELL TOLLS.

To supplement the 10 year résumé of foreign relations contained in the White Book, or what will be the White Book when it is published with its exhibits, there should be a Blue Book dealing with the field of internal maneuvers over the same period. It would mean more to Americans now than the White Book, which deals with the past. The Blue Book, preferably a morose blue, would project into the future. It will not be issued because it would connect overt acts with their secret purposes.

Mr. Roosevelt in his message to congress had little to say of the planned society and had no invective for the nonconformists. That could be understood. War is the biggest business of the country today, an almost completely absorbing business. Mr. Roosevelt's message was a report on the conduct of the war, a report to the board of directors on this business. But there was another reason for skipping the subject of present day policies and post-war economy.

As Mr. Roosevelt stood before congress in the hall of the house of representatives he could see no Cherokee strip. The Cherokee strip was the seating space into which his accustomed Democratic majority had overflowed. It has been evacuated. The Democratic overflow has receded. The Republicans are back in their seats. Mr. Roosevelt looked at a minority representation which lacked only six votes of electing a speaker and taking control. It was his first sight of such an opposition in Washington. He knew that the new phenomenon represented a popular verdict, an ominous verdict for his style of government. The moment was not one for a characteristic disquisition on things that had been planned that way or for the familiar lacing of the unregenerate. There were too many of them listening and they had too much power.

However, altho the chief of the New Deal feels the constraint of political conditions heretofore unknown to him and will expediently defer to them, the revolution goes on, anticipating future events which will make its success inevitable. Mr. Roosevelt in his first term accepted the phrase, "the Roosevelt revolution," and added merely that it had been a peaceable one. It has been unremitting and unchecked and without an accounting. None of it has been paid for. It is automatically promoted by its unsettled accounts. If the Blue Book were issued there would be a disclosure of plans as schematic, persistent, and long visioned as the Nazi and Japanese war plans treated in the White Book.

The spinal column of the managed economy is the control of credit and of the making of goods; the substitution of public money for private investment and of the quota system of production for management decisions and the demands of the markets; the allocation of capital, and the allotment of orders. All the major projects of the New Deal are related to this structure—TVA, all the power programs, the subsidy and control of crops, the transfer of labor questions from private adjustment to government labor boards, the credit operations of the RFC and other loan agencies, and the conduct of business by executive order.

When a revolutionary speaks of using all the employables of the country in the making of goods for all the people he is talking of an industrial system financed by the government and producing commodities of the character and in the amount specified by governmental assignment. The political verdict is against it but the planners do not despair. War has put their system in operation. They have the industries, the consumers have their ration cards, and promising events are yet to come.

When this war's last gun is fired the industry of the United States stops in its greatest shops. At that moment the country faces the demobilization of millions of men in the armed forces, men seeking reëstablishment in the gainful pursuits from which they were taken. The problem will increase with every enlargement of the armed forces, a reason for taking as many men as possible regardless of military requirements. Industries which shifted to war production will not be ready for returning workers. The people at work will not be needed. The planners can include in their forecast a derangement such as the country has never known.

The demand for work and the demand for goods will be insistent. The revolutionaries believe that the situation will justify the name of chaos and that the general alarm will become a panic. They have already made industry, trade, labor, and agriculture familiar with constraint and direction and the people familiar with controls, limitations, and burocratic orders. Life here has been geared to governmental instructions, allowances, prohibitions, and permissions.

The promoters of the new political, economic, and social order are confident that they can wait without overplaying their hand until peace itself bursts the dream of a return to free enterprise. It would be dangerous to assume that they are wrong. The people waited a long time before they presented Mr. Roosevelt with the opposition in congress which caused him to be conciliatory as he saw its strength. They will not easily escape from what has been prepared for them. It is indeed later than they think.

ILLINOIS MUST PROTECT ITS CITIZENS.

In presenting a resolution for investigation of fuel oil rationing by the Illinois legislature, its sponsors are in effect proposing that the state government investigate the national one.

Perhaps the federal rationing authorities will refuse to give any information to the legislative investigators. This, fortunately, will not hamstring the investigation nor prevent its protecting the people of this state. The information that will show that fuel oil rationing is unnecessary in this area, and, therefore, an imposition on the public, can be found at other than governmental sources.

As the resolution prepared by Sen. Searcy asserts, there is good ground to believe that the rationing of fuel oil in Illinois does nothing to relieve the oil shortage in the east, because transportation facilities are not available to take sufficient oil eastward to create any shortage in this state. Obviously the system of deliveries in small amounts, dictated by the office of price administration, is wasteful of tires and conflicts directly with the truck mileage restrictions of the office of defense transportation. The senseless paper work inflicted on dealers and consumers by the OPA has increased prices to Illinois oil users alone by nearly $1,000,000.

Not all of the oil dealers and oil production officials have been willing to say publicly what they admit privately, for fear of New Deal reprisals. With the state government to back them up and protect them, they will be encouraged to denounce the Washington fakers for what they are. The legislature should pass the Searcy resolution and launch the investigation without delay. It should produce information which will assist the overworked congress in an overdue house cleaning.

UNFIT AND INCOMPETENT.

The obvious impropriety of placing Paving Blocks Ed Flynn in any position in which he speaks for or represents the people of the United States has obscured somewhat the still greater unwisdom of allowing him to function in the particular job to which President Roosevelt has nominated him.

The American minister and personal representative of the President in Australia has most important duties to perform, for which Flynn possesses no qualifications whatever. The job is not one of those positions of honor to which it has been the custom in the past to appoint the fat cats of campaign fund drives. It is a working job, a hard working job, and a most important job to the welfare of the United States.

This nation is engaged in a bitter war in the Pacific. In that war the Australians are at the moment our only substantial allies. Their continent is the anchor of our present line of resistance to the Japanese, the base from which one arm, at least, of the drive back toward Tokio must start.

Obviously, the American representative in Australia occupies a position of the greatest importance. And for these vastly important duties Mr. Roosevelt has nominated a man whose sole experience in the past has been in the field of political manipulation, and in the particularly crooked field of New York City politics at that.

The nomination is made at a time when Flynn has good reason to suspect that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey may try to send him to jail for his part in the theft of the paving blocks from the borough of the Bronx. Diplomatic immunity acquires a new meaning, or at least an almost new one. The same tactics were used once before to rescue the New Deal ex-governor of Pennsylvania after the voters had repudiated him at the polls. George H. Earle was hustled off to a diplomatic post in the Balkans as a grand jury met to investigate the scandals arising out of his administration of state affairs.

The Flynn appointment is, as members of the senate have said, an insult to our Australian allies. It is an even greater insult to the people of the United States that such a man should be named to speak for them. Even the Democrats in the senate cannot stomach the Flynn appointment. Some have openly spoken against it and those who have not have maintained a cold and embarrassed silence. It is hardly possible that the senate will approve of it, but the senators should be on their guard against the use of Flynn as a disreputable red herring to distract attention from other dubious appointments made by the President.

Lame Duck Sen. Josh Lee of Oklahoma has been appointed to the civil aeronautics board and Lame Duck Sen. Prentiss Brown has been appointed price administrator, succeeding the discredited Leon Henderson, sore back and all. The senate is likely to be overcharitable in respect to nominations of ex-senators, on the principle, no doubt, that there, but for the grace of God, go I. But these men have been repudiated by the voters of their states. To approve them for appointive jobs is to flout the wishes of those voters. Lee, in particular, should not be allowed any civil appointment. In the senate he was one of the maddest screamers for war and now that war is here he ought to be in uniform.

TRADE UNIONS AND STUFF.

Mr. Petrillo's appearance before a senate committee the other day was made memorable by his choice of words. If the competition of canned music forces the members of his musicians' union to find work in factories instead of cultivating their art, what, Mr. Petrillo wanted to know, "is going to happen to culture and stuff"?

Some of the senators warned Mr. Petrillo that his opposition to the use of phonograph records for public entertainment was so unpopular that it is endangering the labor movement itself and might lead to legislative restrictions on the activities of trade unions and their leaders. "That could happen," Mr. Petrillo replied.

The words suggest that he regards such legislation as a possibility but not as a probability. Maybe Mr. Petrillo was more aware than were the senators of the difficulty of enacting legislation that would apply to the musicians' union without at the same time interfering with the practices of a great number of other unions.

The essence of the charge against Mr. Petrillo and his union is that they are blocking what the textbooks used to call economic progress, by which was meant the use of labor saving devices. If the painters' union can forbid the use of paint sprays, why can't the musicians prevent the use of canned music in public entertainment? What difference in principle is there between the so-called feather bed rules of the railroad unions and Mr. Petrillo's feather bed rules for musicians?

We are not indorsing Mr. Petrillo. We are not saying that he is right. All we are saying is that if he has offended he is not the only offender, and that if legislative correction is undertaken it can hardly be limited to musicians.

LOOK HOMEWARD, HAROLD!

[Detroit Free Press.]

Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who recently discussed the post-war world before the Detroit Economic club, now goes further and comes out for a United States of the world with a single house of parliament to govern all mankind.

Gov. Stassen comes from the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis where the warring factions have never been able to agree on any community program, let alone a joint municipal government.

No wonder the Italians were scared when American raiders in Tunisia cried "Hi, ho, Silver!" They probably thought those western senators were on the warpath again.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE.

A chronic bronchitis, so what? Well, suppose you cut down on your smoking about 90 per cent. Any doctor will agree that it is an excellent idea. So you put away your rancid dudeen or brûlé-gueule [French for throat-scorcher], and think that every day in every way you will get better and better. Improvement, in fact, is almost immediate.

This mood lasts only 24 hours. You then discover that your amiable disposition has taken a violent turn for the worse, that your friends have become thundering bores, that life and literature have lost their savor, and that the strain of keeping your mind on your work is almost intolerable. Furthermore, you can't write; the word-spinning machine in your brain or at the tips of your fingers has come to a full stop.

If you could lay off for a week or two and escape from everything in your old manner of life, and take up grim physical tasks such as shoveling coal, or running marathon races, or spraying cohorts of enemy troops with a machine gun, or dropping bombs on crowded Japanese cities, you could come thru the ordeal of abstinence from smoking with honors. Under such conditions, for which you yearn, the process of adaptation would be easy, even enjoyable. But fate has not arranged things in that manner; you must run on in the old groove, picking up splinters at every turn.

So you salvage the inflammatory dudeen and load it with the harsh tobacco that you haven't had nerve enough to throw away, and return to the comfort of your affliction. Peace without victory, it's wonderful!

YOUNG MEN MARCHING.

In the dead of the night I hear their tread
When the streets are empty and the town abed;
All night long down the empty street
I hear the echo of marching feet.
The streets of the lonely houses are these
Whence the men have gone forth by twos and threes;
They have gone from us, you may count the toll
By the stars that bloom on the service roll;
Jasperson, Graham, Merilees, Bell,
Common names that we know so well,
Common names as the earth men trod,
But we lift them now to the throne of God.
Ceaselessly marching, they shake the ground;
But who shall stand at the pillow of one
Who lays on the altar her only son?
Yea, One shall stand Who fathoms all loss
Thru hours of agony on a cross.

S'Amuser.

History of the Gold Coast—XXII.

On April 25, 1850, the court found the defendants in "the Sands" case not guilty. It would take the full college of Philadelphia lawyers to unravel the ramifications of the trials, continuances, bills of exception, and legal whatnot that took up the time of courts for the next 13 years. Suffice it to say that Jones and Marsh won when the lake was low and Johnston when it was high, but the former were found guilty of withholding a part of the premises in 1852, and again in 1857, when the accretion was ordered divided, the United States Supreme court having a hand in it.

In the meantime "the Sands," which at first had been occupied by a few boarding houses and groggeries for fishermen, sailors, and canalmen, became the rendezvous for a part of the flotsam and jetsam of the world's most rapidly growing city, a blotch on the shore of the inland sea and an annoyance to the old Puritan element living one block to the west.

William B. Ogden came into the case by purchasing an interest in the claims of one side of the litigation and leasing the entire tract to a number of lumber companies for a term of years. He also formed the Chicago Dock company, the charter for which his attorney, Abraham Lincoln, had secured from the Illinois legislature. He intended that this company would improve the site with a number of slips cut into it from the river. He now had to get possession.

The long legal squabble had been to the interest of the disreputable element which had squatted on "the Sands." Having two landlords, it denied the ownership of both, paid little or nothing to either, and threatened and drove off any one who dared to interfere with them. Ogden put the matter up to Long John Wentworth, who had just been elected mayor for the first time. Wentworth delighted in the opportunity. On the forenoon of Tuesday, April 21, 1857, the sheriff went to "the Sands" with writs of eviction and a strong posse to throw out its denizens and destroy the hovels that encumbered it. The mayor was also present with about 200 policemen under Capt. Yates to maintain order.

After two hours of hard work only about 10 or 12 shacks had been torn down, and it was decided to postpone the demolition of the remainder to the coming Thursday. At 4 p. m. a fire of mysterious origin swept thru a row of about 20 hovels, the volunteer fire department standing by to protect adjoining property. In a few minutes the shanties, shebeens, and shebangs that encumbered the shore were no more and their occupants were fleeing to their friends in other parts of the town. And so passed into history this jungle, whose lurid character has been much exaggerated by the plongeurs of the literary world. Captain John.

ARCTIC THRENODY.

White drifts over hill and plain,
And white drifts by the sea;

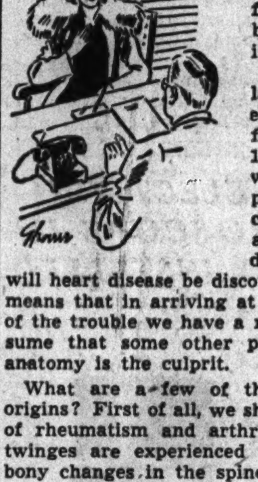
NEURALGIA OF THE CHEST.

When pain is felt in the chest, the pumping organ is probably not at fault. True enough, narrowing of the arteries which supply the cardiac muscle with nutriment may give rise to severe distress. In like manner, angina pectoris is responsible for brief but agonizing attacks.



By and large, however, in only five out of 100 of those who complain of discomfort above the diaphragm, will heart disease be discovered. This means that in arriving at the source of the trouble we have a right to assume that some other part of the anatomy is the culprit.

What are a few of the possible origins? First of all, we should think of rheumatism and arthritis. Many twinges are experienced because of bony changes in the spine. In addition, irritation of the intercostal nerves, which travel along the ribs, may occasion considerable suffering. This is often the case with those who have passed middle life.

But symptoms in this area are not present constantly. They seem to come and go, worse at times than at others. Their fleeting character may be observed for many years. In fact, the manifestations may be aggravated by such movements as stooping, rolling over in bed, or in making any shift in posture. Occasionally, a deep breath or a cough will usher in a short stab.

As a rule, we think of pleurisy only when the patient exhibits other signs of illness, and when the soreness is associated with breathing. Instead of labeling the difficulty "neuritis," we may recall that actual inflammation of the nerve is rare. On the other hand, a neurotic disposition may magnify a mild ache which proceeds from a bony overgrowth.

We can identify a neurosis in a high percentage of these victims. In other words, no organic cause will be found. When asked to locate the site of the "hurt," the patient will usually point to the front or side of the chest, somewhere in the region of the third rib. When pressed upon, the skin may exhibit tenderness over a space as large as the palm.

In such instances, X-ray reveals nothing and it is only when the disorder responds to a mild sedative that we may be reasonably sure of the diagnosis. It is this condition that is commonly referred to as "neuralgia."

Not infrequently, the "starter" is emotional instability which is assisted by poor nutrition or arthritis. In a series of several hundred cases, which were subjected to intensive study, it was shown that most of the patients improved to a point of complete comfort under better nourishment, rest, the application of hot packs, and the use of sedatives. Small doses of bromides or one of the barbituric acid compounds so lowered pain perception that no further disturbance was encountered.

The older plan of providing large doses of vitamin B has given way to generous, general diets. Furthermore, the digestive tract is put in good order. This latter consideration is important because the presence of a peptic ulcer or of gastritis will prove confusing.

THROAT TICK.

A. P. writes: As soon as I go to bed my throat starts to tick. How can I get rid of it?

REPLY.

Breathing may agitate the vocal cords, the epiglottis, or the soft palate. Occasionally the tongue will drop backward and act as a valve which is lifted with each expiration.

SHOULD BE CONTROLED.

Mrs. K. writes: Why does the blood pressure rise during pregnancy?

REPLY.

It should not, except in minor degree. Your physician will give prompt attention to any sizable increase.

WHY WE LACK BEEF.

Onarga, Ill., Jan. 6.—I am a real dirt farmer and I would like to state that the editorial on beef in today's paper is by far too conservative. A beef steer of 900 pounds when put in a corn belt feed lot will, on the average, put on two pounds a day for a short feed of 180 to 240 days.

In my neighborhood there is or will be a shortage of 500,000 pounds of beef for 1943 marketing. There are three major factors for this shortage:

First, and of greatest importance, was the uncertainty as to what Mr. Henderson was going to do concerning beef ceilings. Second is the high price of stockers and feeders on the range, caused primarily by the government buying grass fat cattle which were taken directly to the slaughter houses, thereby reducing the number available for corn belt feed lots. Third is a shortage of man power to do the feeding. A producing live stock farmer is busier during winter months than in the summer. My cattle yard is empty this winter for the first time in several years, as are those of my neighbors.

I see also by today's Tribune Mrs. Clare Booth Luce is living in a $1,000 a month suite and I presume she, too, is all out to win this war, or something.

Whither are we bound?

Edw. H. Miller.

ANY DAY NOW.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—I am just one of the dumb children [63 years old] who have to eat what Leon Henderson says I may buy, go where and when he says I may, sit around in a cold house with half of it closed off from use because he says we have to learn to "take it." I am ill and on a very strict diet, but could eat and enjoy a little butter every day if he didn't have to teach the Europeans what it is for, etc.

Now, some one said he had resigned—but in what year is it supposed to take effect? D. E. W.

COLORED MARGARINE.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 4.—In a recent news item I noted that the government had ordered an astounding amount of vitamin fortified margarine for the use of the army. The stipulation was that it be colored, obviously with the intention of using it as butter. In view of this action, as well as the increasing difficulty in getting real butter at any price, don't you think it is time that our state legislature repealed the law that prohibits the sale of artificially colored margarine? William C. Trumbower.

POT PIE, PERCHANCE?

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Last evening's visit to the corner meat market has given me a brilliant idea. May I apply for the job of ridding the loop of the excess pigeons? W. T. R.

CHRISTMAS CARDS.

Epworth, Ia., Jan. 8.—If you haven't thrown your Christmas cards away yet, look them over. The chances are that 90 per cent of them have no more indication of the anniversary of our Lord's birth than if they came from the Nazi press. Christmas is the day when we commemorate our Savior's birth, the greatest event that history records. Then, why dogs, holly, snow scenes, candles, and about everything you could think of on Christmas cards except the main feature, the birth at Bethlehem? If there is any better example of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out than Christmas cards with Christ left off, I'd like to know.

If the artists and manufacturers who do this work have no more originality, they should go to the old masters, Michelangelo, Fra Angelico, Holbein, and a host of other world famous artists who have glorified this event for all ages.

Rev. Wm. M. Holub.

BATAAN FORGOTTEN ALREADY?

Benson, Ill., Jan. 5.—Congressman George Mahan of Texas has just told Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Price Administrator Leon Henderson that lavish dinners by Washington society folks are uncalled for at a time when housewives scan empty store shelves for food. Congressman Mahan does not need to worry about those of us who are rationed on food. We have given our boys to fight for our country. After that, any sacrifice we are asked to make is nothing. However, I have a rotogravure picture from The Tribune of Nov. 29 showing our boys surrendering after the fall of Bataan. When we remember that these American men went down to death and defeat partly because of a lack of food, we are resentful of the heartlessness of our Washington socialites. Possibly the honored guests at the recent epicurean display in Washington did not know what happened at Bataan and later at Corregidor. A. M. S.

OPA.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Don't let any one tell you that the WPA was discontinued. They just changed the first letter to "O," put white collars on them, and gave them a desk instead of a shovel to lean on. Ninety-five per cent of their ridiculous brain storms have nothing to do with the war effort. M. S.

NO SNOW REMOVAL.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Last year we didn't have much ice and this year the park district won't clean the snow off. The only time we have any skating at Humboldt park is when we clean the ice ourselves.

Skater.

FINDS V-MAIL SLOW.

Wilmette, Ill., Jan. 8.—I wasted much time and money on V-mail, assuming it was beneficial. Since late November I have written air mail letters. They reach an island in the southwest Pacific a week later, whereas some V-mail letters mailed in October have not arrived yet.

TIRE INSPECTOR HOOKED HIM.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 11.—In line with James W. Doyle's "it stinks" communication of Jan. 3, here's another one: I visited an official tire inspection station on Madison street in Oak Park last Saturday morning for the required inspection. The tire numbers were checked and not one second's time was used in inspecting the treads of the tires which, no doubt, should be the objective. Then I was informed that the slip could not be signed unless the front wheels were aligned, which was done. Again, I was notified that the wheels would have to be balanced before the final O. K. Time: 2 hours 40 minutes of waiting. The charge: Correct front end, $1.50; tire inspection, 25 cents; balance front tires, $3; tax, 2 cents; material, 90 cents [four small pieces of lead]; total, $5.67.

TRIBUNE IN THE PACIFIC.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Dec. 8.—I read an issue of The Chicago Tribune at a Red Cross center and enjoyed it very much. It was a Sunday edition of Nov. 24. I read it on Dec. 6, just 13 days after it came off the press. The time in which it got here surprised me, as previously I hadn't seen an American newspaper less than a month off the press. The Tribune was the most popular newspaper in the center.

I would like to say, too, that the hospitality house [Red Cross] in which I read your paper is doing a great deal in making the boys feel more at home. Here service men may read allied newspapers and magazines, listen to phonographic recordings, and at a certain time hear short wave radio broadcasts. A Chicagoan.

Miss O'Keeffe's Paintings to Be on Exhibit Here

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN a discriminating national magazine writes that the Chicago Art institute is to be envied in its coming exhibition of Georgia O'Keeffe's paintings and drawings, then the Society for Contemporary American Art is to be congratulated on obtaining the artist as a "lion." The exhibit will open one week from today, and next Wednesday night the society will have Miss O'Keeffe as its guest at a reception and dinner at the University club, followed by a preview of the exhibit.

Chicago has seen only four of Miss O'Keeffe's works to date since she exhibits only occasionally outside of New York. Therefore it is particularly interesting that the largest and most comprehensive exhibition of her work ever assembled should be shown here. At present the most famous woman painter in the world, Miss O'Keeffe was born in Sun Prairie, Wis., and attended the School of the Art Institute. Usually she prefers to exhibit in the intimate surroundings of the New York gallery of her husband, Alfred Steighlitz. Her paintings command higher prices than those of any other living woman, as much as $10,000 having been paid for one. Miss O'Keeffe will supervise the installation of the 61 pictures herself.

Mrs. John L. Cochran in Charge of Dinner.

As Earle Ludgin, president of the Contemporary American Art society, has been called to Washington, D. C., on government work, the vice president, William Darrow, will act in his place. Mrs. John L. Cochran is in charge of the dinner. Two other active members of the society are in Washington at the present, Mrs. Rudyerd Boulton and Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill II. Two more have departed for service in the navy, Lt. Lester B. Bridaham and Lt. Henry S. Monroe. Lt. Bridaham is on leave as public relations counsel of the Art Institute. Katherine Kuh is assuming his duties.

Members of the society may bring guests to the dinner and preview. Some of those who already have made reservations are Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Moore, the John U. Nefs, Mrs. Theron Cooper, Mrs. Dallas B. Phemister, and the junior William N. Eisendraths.

Opening at the same time as the retrospective exhibit of Miss O'Keeffe is an appropriate collection of religious folk art from the Spanish southwest where Miss O'Keeffe has lived and worked. It comes from the Taylor Museum at Colorado Springs, and will travel from Chicago to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. Also on view for the first time next Thursday will be recent acquisitions to the institute's permanent collection.

Lieut. and Mrs. Harmar Ker Become Parents of a Son.

Lt. [j. g.] and Mrs. Harmar Denny Ker [Marion Gordon] became the parents of a son yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. The baby, their first child, is the first grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gordon and is being named for Mr. Gordon. Lt. Ker is on active duty somewhere in the Pacific.

Col. Anthony Jurasz, medical director of the Paderewski hospital at Edinburgh, Scotland, will remain in Chicago to attend the hospital benefit performance of the movie, "Hitler's Children," next Wednesday night at the Palace theater. He is recovering from the illness that prevented him from keeping a number of speaking engagements here, and will thank Chicagoans on behalf of the hospital that night at the theater. Chauncey McCormick heads the committee in charge of the benefit.

The movie, starring Tim Holt and Bonita Granville, is an exposé of the barbaric political and religious philosophy of Berlin and of the cruelties of the Gestapo and is a film every American should see, Mr. McCormick feels. It will be presented that night only, with seats at $1 each.

Any one purchasing a seat to the Bond concert on Jan. 27 may dine before hand at the Arts club at 6:30 o'clock that night. Orders for tickets, at $1,000 for main floor seats and $500 for balcony seats—in bonds, of course—and reservations for dinner, at $2.50 a person, may be made by calling Mrs. William B. Hale at Superior 7272. More than $1,000,000 worth of first floor seats already has been sold, and advice from the women's division of the Chicago and Cook county war savings staff is that all who want to hear the Chicago Symphony, Hans Lange conducting, with Piatigorsky and Milstein as soloists, should obtain their bonds and seats at once.

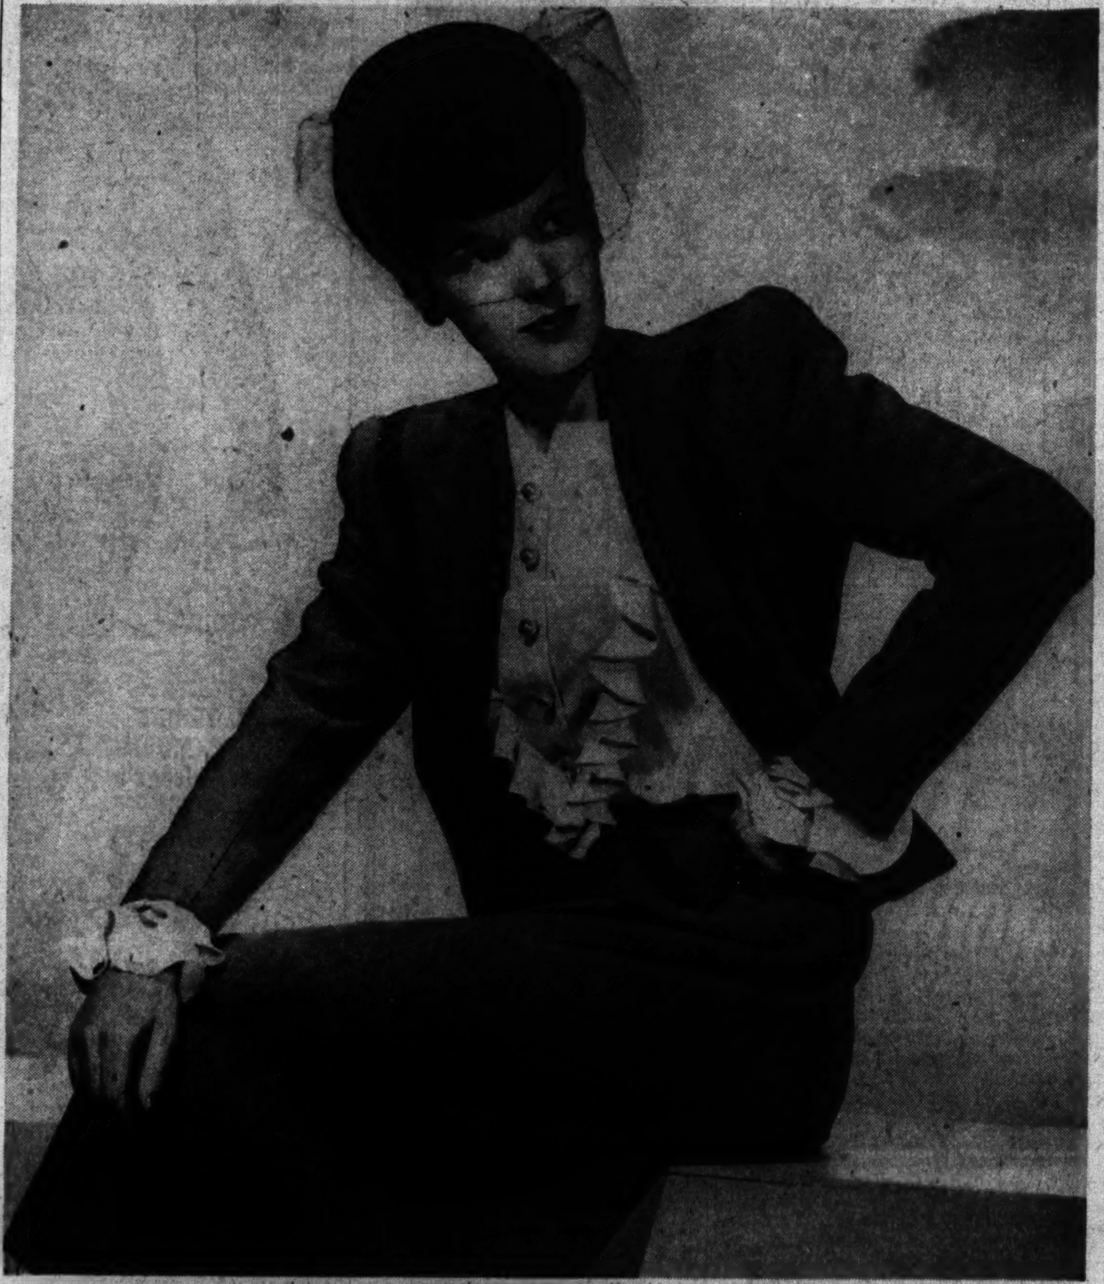
Foreign Relations Council Will Hear Talk on India.

Members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, who will hear Leland Stowe speak on "Russia, Our Ally," on Saturday, will be informed on "The Political Situation in India" next Tuesday by Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar. The India luncheon will be held at 12:30 o'clock in the Sherman hotel. Sir A. Ramaswami is a barrister and economist and is a member of the Indian legislative assembly. The Russia talk will be given at 12:30 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

Mrs. Burwell Dodd and her three children are arriving today from Hartford, Conn., to spend a few days and to help her parents, the Calvin Fentresses, observe their 40th wedding anniversary today.

The annual breakfast of the Sacred Heart alumnae will be held on Sunday at the Camellia House for the benefit of the army and navy chaplains' fund. Mrs. Adam Wolf is chairman of the luncheon. Mrs. Cushman B. Bissell is president of the alumnae.

Smart New Wool Dress Suit Costume



This crisp new pewter gray wool dress suit costume foretells the fashion for spring and can be worn now with long or short fur coat. The soft fabric is easily draped and shirred in the smart new skirt. The dressmaker soft jacket has contrasting red bands slanting from shoulder to peplum edge and red vee bands are used on the skirt. The blouse is of white crepe, with long sleeves that show below the jacket sleeves, and boasts the newest feminine ruffles of the same crepe as the blouse. The costume is available in a Chicago shop. White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Feminine First.

It's a definitely "feminine" first because it's a beauty shop, said to be the first company-sponsored beauty shop in an industrial plant. Open from 9 in the morning to 11 in the evening, the shop in the Chicago factory of the Republic Drill and Tool company, is run exclusively for the girl workers who can now drop in for a finger wave or a manicure during rest periods or after the day's work. The innovation was so enthusiastically received by the girls that every one now is saying: "Why didn't we think of this before!"

The bright idea was carried around in the pocket of Maria Tolva; she thought it up, talked with the officials of the company, and succeeded in linking business to the beauty business. She has furnished the shop in modern, restful style with an abundance of pretty potted plants and growing green things—restful, too. Her operators wear fresh, white uniforms, with their names embroidered on the blouse. Miss Tolva, who owned the beauty shop in the Congress hotel in the pre-war Peacock Alley era, is delighted with her new location . . . likes it "just fine" . . . and says with a determination that leaves no doubt: "These girls in war production deserve and are going to get loop service."

Afternoon at Home.

A woman who maintains a small business establishment in the loop went home early the other afternoon feeling grippy and suspiciously like a flu victim. When she arrived home she was dismayed to find the living room teeming with youngsters who had congregated to do a class assignment. They were very quiet—there was no trouble on that score but the radio was blaring full force. Her first impulse was to shriek: "Turn off that radio." Yet, they were such nice youngsters . . . she was home so little . . . she couldn't always be spoiling their pleasure. No, she would go to her room, shut the door and restrain herself.

In her room she thought she would go quietly mad. The radio blared on and on, drowning out all sounds of voices. At last she could bear it no longer and faltered in her resolution not to be a "crabby mother." She went into the living room to turn off the radio and found the room totally empty! Every one of the kids had left nearly an hour before . . . only the radio had kept her company.

Yearly Ritual.

Signed, "A Reader," and headed "Christmas-Cardiacs," comes a protest to "those executives who keep from year to year an unrevised Christmas card list forgetting what—and whom—some of the names represent." One tired secretary regards it as a yearly ritual, these cards that come back with the imprint of four or five postoffices in widely separated parts of the country. But next year it will be the same thing—expensive, ornate greetings sent to plague the postmasters and to be returned "address unknown."

Engagements

Mrs. Kurt Groener of Shaker Heights, O., and Sidney Wanzer III. of Chicago have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jacqueline, to Edward H. Gustafson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Gustafson of Evanston. Mr. Gustafson, who attended Northwestern university and the University of Michigan, is awaiting his call in the naval reserve.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Houlihan of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean Marie, to Arthur H. Kuhn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn, also of Evanston. Mr. Kuhn, who attended the University of Michigan, recently departed for service in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thurston Siddall of Yates avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Cadet John F. Moriarty of Cleveland, O. Miss Siddall attended Rosary college. Her fiancé, a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, is attending an officers' training school at Camp Lee, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Campbell Hall of Glencoe have announced the engagement of their daughter, Janet Mercedes, to Lt. Frank Michael Blasius of the army, son of Mrs. Nicholas Blasius and the late Mr. Blasius of Idaho Falls, Idaho. The wedding will take place on Jan. 30 in the home of the bride's parents. Lt. Blasius, who attended Idaho State college, is stationed at Fort Sheridan.

Fashion News Being Made in Colors, Details

BY REA SEEGER.

All the new fashions rate the fanfare and excitement of shoppers who are tired of slightly wilted winter wardrobes. New colors, ready to dramatize and contrast a fur or winter fabric coat, are going out with record speed. So are the new grey shades, enlivened with giddy color. New details, the work of ingenious designers hampered with priority restraints on the usual trimmings, are especially telling when the accent trims are of contrasting colors.

The first spring suits are ready for triple duty . . . now, under fur coats; later, with furs, and still later without benefit of furs or extra jackets. Many of them are light in tone, beige, pale yellow, Quaker and smoke grey, raspberry, a giddy pink, pale green, and so on, with, of course, all kinds of the fashion firsts in navy blue.

You're going to see lots of pristine white crêpe in blouses and in a third item of a street suit, sold with the suit. You'll see very feminine ruffles and lace frills on these blouses, and the new long sleeves gathered into narrow band cuffs. These sleeves will show below the wider cuff and shorter sleeves of the new jackets.

Soft printed dresses are as lovely as a box of bon bons, fragile water color tints in rose, lavender, chartreuse, pale yellow, lime green, and soft sapphire blues.

Navy Men Ask Fishing Tackle for Recreation

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

We hope that some of the sportsmen who have extra equipment will be interested in the plea of four navy men, who write from Florida.

"Dear Miss Brown: We are four specialists attached to an air station down here. In normal times we are all Chicagoans.

"In our hours after work we seek relaxation as best we can. Located right on a bay, we spend a great deal of our spare time sending bait to the fish by means of hand lines. We seek revenge and haven't the means, so I hope that among your readers are some who have casting rods and reels, which they have no further need of and would send to us. We will do our best to whip these waters of these fish, which have to date so outrageously taken advantage of our meager hospitality.

"One of the boys is musically inclined. He left his piano at home and would appreciate any instrument which would help him torment us. We have great faith in THE TRIBUNE, which we have long known as a good friend."

Readers interested in helping these young men amuse themselves may contact this department for further information.

Miss R., a south side reader, has a golf bag and clubs, which she will be glad to give to any man who would like to have them. Letters may be addressed to her in care of this department. All mail will be forwarded to her for selection and the recipient will be notified.

Pvt. C. P., who requested hangers, writes: "Because of the excellent response to my recent appeal, I find it impossible to write to thank each contributor individually, so I am taking advantage of the column once more to thank all of the contributors and inform them that we are well supplied."

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

The Light Returning.

Every once in a while it pays to read an annual report. In that very human document, the annual report of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, is the tale of a fat little girl who had been given sulfanilamide by the society clinic as treatment for her eyes, but refused to take it. When asked why, she said her school chums had told her the medicine "would make me fall off." Then she added thoughtfully, "But I figgered that if the medicine was for that you would be giving it to the nurse."

In opposite vein in the report is the letter written by a woman, sightless from birth, whose vision had been restored in one eye:

"Dear doctor:

"It seems only fair to let you know how my eye is doing. I can count paper money. I can put stamps on right side up, and I can answer my switchboard calls without using the Braille equipment. I can act natural and independent getting on and off buses, and people no longer give me their seats as they used to. I can see price tags on counters, altho I do not always recognize the merchandise. In general, the world is more beautiful than I pictured it. I mean dress material, cretonnes, drapes, linoleum and all that sort of thing. I have been surprised to see the immense hills in this locality. I was surprised to see that every one swings his arms and it seems to help in giving balance. That relaxed stillness of the limbs must be what makes a blind person noticeable."

Is This the Army?

A cameraman who went backstage at the Chicago Opera house to take pictures of "This Is the Army" was a trifle amazed when a burly staff sergeant burst into a dressing room to complain of another performer, "I just won't have that fellow in my dressing room. He simply upsets me so before a performance."

Flags.

We hadn't realized until it was mentioned by Clarence Streit, the federal union visionary who looks like a Montana cowboy, that the flag of the United States is the only flag that does not glorify some mystic symbol [the sun of Japan, the hammer and sickle of soviet Russia, the three colors of France, the white cross of Switzerland] or the uniting of ancient kingdoms in Great Britain's flag. Its 13 equal stripes are for the 13 colonies, equal democracies, with no distinction between the stripe of Delaware or the stripe of Virginia, while its 48 stars stand in equal anonymity against the blue field of union.

Sold Out.

"Clearance Sale!" screams the big, bold sign in the window of a dress shop on the northwest side. Alone in the bare window is a nude model.

Hopefully Cultivated.

There has been much talk of the man of the year, the battle of the year, the bright saying of the year, and other singular manifestations of 1942. It remained for the Field Museum News to designate the plant of the year: guayule, now being cultivated as an emergency source of natural rubber. And a very nondescript looking weed it is.

WPA Noonday Music Project Bids Farewell

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Subsidized music took an ironical twist at Haydn's "Farewell" symphony yesterday at Fullerton hall when the Illinois WPA Symphonic ensemble, last remnant of the state music project, used it to say good-by as that project vanished from public view after seven years of music making.

As everybody knows nowadays, Haydn wrote the symphony almost two centuries ago as both hint and rebuke to his dilatory patron, Prince Esterhazy, who lingered at his summer home and so kept his musicians from their beloved Vienna. When those musicians blew out their candles and left the orchestra singly, then by twos and threes, they were conspiring with Haydn's adroitly contrived music to get away from a place they found dull.

It was not like that yesterday. There were no candles, and there was nothing but reluctance at departure, both on the part of the players and their loyal, well treated audience. The ensemble's 31 free noonday concerts, sponsored by the morale division of the office of civilian defense, clung to a self-respecting standard and gave a great deal of pleasure to a great many people. Daniel Catton Rich, speaking for the Art Institute, tried to reassure those people with the hope that similar concerts might be revived "after the war."

Yesterday's farewell was conducted by Albert Goldberg, state supervisor of the music project for more than six of its seven years, and the man responsible for much of its success. It was typical of his work that the performance was quiet, discreet, and effective, and that the bumpy beginning of the slow movement soon smoothed into serenity.

The Stage

By Cecil Smith

WAVES and bluejackets are having a high time up at Madison, Wis., this week, presenting "Look Alive," the first musical revue to include navy participants of both sexes. The show, which will be given tonight for the last time, does not succeed in banishing all memories of "This Is the Army"; nobody concerned with it ever thought it would.

But taking all things into consideration, the production is a triumph over time and circumstances, and the tremendous enthusiasm of Tuesday's opening night audience—which included many naval colleagues of the performers—was a sufficient proof of its validity. The full cast was never assembled all at once until the final dress rehearsal, and preparations were made in half hour periods snatched out of the busy lives of the budding radio operators.

The most topical touches are provided in sketches, written chiefly by WAVES, purporting to give intimate glimpses of life in the barracks and in the code class. The best sketch in the show, however, was considerably less esoteric. It was the "Florodora" sextet in reverse, with WAVES in sailors' uniforms and sailors coyly garbed in the WAVES' Mainbocher creations. Another deft bit was the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," transcribed to include local references and generous passages of naval argot. The romantic duo in this travesty were Edith Kingdon Gould, great-granddaughter of Jay Gould, and Bruce Flaherty, from Endicott, N. Y., by way of dramatic classes at Ithaca college.

A few experienced musicians add a lively touch of professionalism here and there. On opening night some of the loudest whistling of approval from the audience was reserved for Lon Saxon, onetime singer and violinist with Harold Stokes' orchestra, who crooned well in the orthodox manner, and for George Weiser, who plays a trumpet that is both bold and mean.

The task of actually getting "Look Alive" before an audience in satisfactory shape rested upon the patient and gifted shoulders of William H. Purnell, formerly director of the Wisconsin Haresfoot shows, and Richard C. Church, who made a creditable pit orchestra out of an inexperienced group of young Madison civilians.

Certainly there is nothing epochmaking about "Look Alive." But it offers a fine recreational outlet for the hard working naval students, who certainly deserve a little fun now and then, and it also is raising funds for the school's welfare fund.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 13. — Since Bing Crosby sang "Holiday Inn" with Dinah Shore on the air he'd like to have Dinah for his partner in one of his pictures. Bing has three lined up this year. . . . Orson Wells' sudden trip to New York wasn't on official business — just a spur of the moment impulse. He went to the plane to say good-by to Joe Cotten, who was leaving for opening of "Shadow of a Doubt." Joe said, "Gee, I wish you were going along!" Orson said, "Why not?" There was a vacant seat, and he took off. . . . The bait which caused Irene Dunne to sign a Metro contract was "White Cliffs of Dover." However, she'll do two pictures there before they ever get around to "The Cliffs."

Fast Cure.

When Ginger Rogers was home on account of sickness, Mitch Leisen took Ray Milland, Mischa Auer, Don Loper, and some others dressed up in their circus costumes, to the house to call on her. "Well," said Ginger, "the sight of them would either kill or cure you, so I came back to work next day." Incidentally, Ginger's taking time out to send out letters to all her friends, asking them to write their congressman regarding the $25,000 salary ceiling. She incloses a copy of letter she sent — asks you to send them to all your friends, sort of a chain letter idea. That's what I call being interested in what happens to your country.

Men at Work.

Preston Sturges is whipping together a story with a Washington background similar to that of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," only from a comedy angle — how a man can get lost in the maze of burocracy. Already Joel McCrea is up for the lead. . . . Yesterday Sturges was talking to Eric von Stroheim, who's back on the lot as an actor, and he said, "You know, Eric, you were just 10 years ahead of your time." "You're wrong," replied von Stroheim, "— I was 20!" . . . Lucille Ball had an argument with her rationing board, so only got an A card. Now has to travel to the studio with her husband, who leaves at 6 a. m., while she doesn't have to work until noon.

Likes Relaxing.

Alice Faye, finishing her first picture since baby's arrival, wants three months off with husband Phil Harris, but she's set for Bill Lebaron's next. . . . I hear reason Gene Tierney came back from visiting her soldier-husband at camp was because of a little domestic trouble between the two. . . . Palm Springs residents are wondering who the good looking soldier is who's escorting Jean Arthur to the dunes. . . . If and when the stork delivers that package to Madeleine Carroll, I hear she'll be back at Paramount doing another picture. . . . After Sam Wood and the biggies saw the finished picture of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," they've decided to release it in 15 reels.

Around the Town.

Marlene Dietrich and Gabin strolled arm in arm into Romanoff's. Gabin begins a picture; Marlene goes back east in February to do a play. She was bursting with pride over the accomplishments of her daughter, Maria Manton. . . . Michael Arlen tells me his young wife will be heading this way in 10 days. . . . Maria Montez putting on a thick Spanish accent to impress Sir Charles Mendl. . . . Billy Gaxton leaving in a hurry to see "Random Harvest." He's got to catch up on all Metro pictures, now that he's working there. I have a hunch when they get a load of Mr. Gaxton's brand of comedy, they'll ask him to "Linger Longer, Billy!."

More Ramblings.

Nice cocktail party Verbena Hebbard gave for Comm. Miers of the British navy, here on two days' leave — extended to five when he came down with jaundice. He wears the V. C., the D. S. O., and a bar which means he got the D. S. O. twice.

I wonder what will happen to spare ribs after meat rationing gets under way. We lovers of barbecued ribs and of baked ribs and kraut will probably have to sacrifice some other part of our meat ration in order to have them, for there are lots of bones in spare ribs, and the weight of these bones counts in our total 35 ounce ration!

Of course, we can make up the difference by eating more of the unrationed meats which include liver, heart, other organ meats, and many "variety" cuts.

There are many other rationed pork cuts which afford a lot of good meaty flavor without making much of an impression on the meat ration. A pound of pork serves six persons in this tasty dish.

Pork Casserole.
[Serves six.]

1 pound ground pork
2 onions
1 cup cooked macaroni
1 cup cooked tomatoes
1 cup grated cheese
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
½ cup bread crumbs

Chop onions fine and brown with pork in skillet. Drain off fat. Add macaroni, tomatoes, cheese, salt, and pepper. Turn into baking dish, cover with crumbs, and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

There are many lessons to be learned from the Chinese in their methods of cooking pork with vegetables. Here's a modification of a Chinese specialty which again makes a pound of pork serve six.

Diced Pork with Vegetables and Almonds.
[Serves six.]

1 pound lean pork, cut in small dice
2 cups celery, cut diagonally
2 cups diced carrots
1 pound green beans
¼ cup meat drippings or oil
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chicken broth or bouillon
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup blanched almonds, browned lightly in oil
Boiled rice

Cook carrots and green beans in boiling salted water until almost tender. They should be slightly on the crisp side. Put pork in skillet with meat drippings or oil and cook until golden brown. Add celery, salt, carrots and beans, and broth or bouillon. Cook gently until meat is tender, with a cover on the skillet. This shouldn't take more than 10 minutes. Blend corn starch, soy sauce, and cold water. Add to mixture and stir until thickened. Add almonds and serve at once with boiled rice.

Victory Scrapple.
[One loaf.]

1 pound pork
1 quart water
1½ cups cornmeal
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon chopped celery leaves
¼ cup minced parsley
½ teaspoon sage
1 egg
Cracker crumbs
Lard or meat drippings for frying

Simmer meat in water until tender enough to slip from the bones. Cool and grind. Measure remaining liquid and add enough water to make a quart. Bring broth to a boil; add cornmeal slowly, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and meat. Adjust seasonings to taste. Add pepper if you like. Cook 20 minutes; then pour into a loaf pan and chill until firm. Slice, dip in beaten egg, and then into cracker crumbs. Fry in lard or other fat until crisp and brown on both sides.

Critics' Poll Names 'Mrs. Miniver' as Best Movie of 1942

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—"Mrs. Miniver," a drama of war time English family life, was selected as the best picture of 1942 in a nation-wide poll of newspaper, magazine, and radio movie critics, the Film Daily, motion picture trade paper, announced today.

The movie, starring Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, and Teresa Wright, and produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, topped "How Green Was My Valley," "Kings Row," "Wake Island," "Pride of the Yankees," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "One Foot in Heaven," "Suspicion," "Woman of the Year," and "The Pied Piper," voted in that order as the 10 best feature productions of the year.

Adaptable Dress Pattern

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

If you have been looking for an adaptable pattern, with which you can do just about anything, here it is. Its lines are so simple, length giving, and flattering, that it may be made in a wide variety of fabrics, plain or printed. It's a grand under-coat dress in print, crêpe, or lightweight woolen, and it is just as suitable for wash materials as it is for late winter and early spring fabrics.

Style No. 2076 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material for dress with three-quarter length sleeves; or 3½ yards of 35 inch for short sleeved model.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The Clotilde pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

Lucky is the declarer who can find a play that will insure his contract against any position of cards. The unfortunate thing is that many of these opportunities are not recognized. South, in today's deal, almost missed the boat.

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Double	4 clubs	Pass
5 clubs	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

East passed over one heart to "trap" the vulnerable opponents. North had a close question to decide over the two club response, whether to jump in no trump and thus announce his great honor trick strength, or to give a vigorous club raise. The latter course would have been better, but when East doubled three no trump [unwisely, as it turned out] the North-South partnership was guided in the right direction.

West made an opening lead which was unfortunate from his team's point of view, namely, his fourth best spade. Dummy played low, East won with the queen, and tried to cash the king. Declarer ruffed and immediately took out trumps, then cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Now the spade jack was led from dummy. Declarer had had the vague idea of ruffing the spade jack, then attempting to pass a heart into East's hand, which would force a heart return up to dummy's A-Q. But when East covered the spade jack with the ace, declarer "saw the light," and made a much safer play, not only safer, but simpler. He merely tossed a losing heart on the trick.

Now success was assured. East either had to return a heart to dummy's major tenace, or lead another card that could be ruffed in dummy while declarer discarded his own remaining heart loser.

The strip play would not have worked. If declarer had ruffed the spade jack and then led a heart, intending to duck, West could have squashed this plan by putting in the eight spot [or the 10 on declarer's 9] thus forcing the queen and giving the defenders two heart tricks.

Good Morning!

KIND: Murder "comedy." Find the comedy.

ACTING: Dick Foran, Carol Bruce, Johnny Downs, and some others perform capably. The Ritz brothers are there too, alas.

DIRECTION: So so.

SETS, SCENERY, PHOTOGRAPHY: Adequate to the story.

STORY: Visiting "acts" to a stock musical comedy company performing in a barn theater on the farm of Bill Edwards [who loves the leading lady] keep getting killed. . . . Naturally it becomes difficult to obtain talent. But the police insist. . . . They want to nab the murderer in the act. . . . "The Jolly Jesters" are picked up in a café and brought to the theater. . . . The show goes on. . . . A lot of ridiculous this-es and thats lead to the discovery of whodunnit.

MUSIC: No good.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Well, I heard SOME laughs. . . .

See you soon.

Thru the Looking Glass

Huddled, as most of us are these chill days, in warm clothes that more often than not are somber in color, we all like a lipstick shade that has brilliance as well as richness. The bright lipstick is like the new hat; it dresses up the old costumes and gives the drooping spirits a boost.

But one thing we should always look for in the winter lipstick, aside from the absolutely essential vividness of color, is creaminess of texture. The skin of the lips, like the skin of the body, is often irritated by cold weather. It splits and peels, and the loveliest lipstick's effect is lost. The really creamy lipstick serves as an emolient as well as a scarlet coat; it helps, in at least a small way, to prevent and to soothe lip irritation.

One of our favorites in the crop of new shades—and the crop is smaller this year than for many years past—is a good all around wearable crimson. It has the undertones of richness needed with dark clothes, but it has vividness too, and "crimson glory" is a good name for it.

Above all, it has creaminess. It's positively buttery in texture and goes on in a satin smooth coat. It adheres well, too, and doesn't feather around the edges. It's apparently got a really good emollient base. Our experience has been that it protects lip skin that's thin and inclined to tear in cold weather, and even helps soothe such skin when winter damage has been done.

It's not expensive, either!

Crocheted Antimacassar

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A quaintly charming antimacassar is this one done in filet crochet, depicting a picturesque Dutch boy and girl. These protective tidies are a boon to chairs and davenports, since they are as attractive as they are utilitarian.

For instructions in crocheting the antimacassar of the Dutch boy and girl, No. 1244, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing costs, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Consumer information chairmen of the Chicago OCD had their first lesson yesterday in the proposed system of commodities point rationing, and took home to their communities a simple explanation of how it will work. Charles Laue, regional director of the information department of the OPA, was the teacher at a luncheon meeting held at the Home Arts guild. Mrs. William H. Stanley presided.

Mrs. William H. Stanley.

Mr. Laue told the women how to use the rationing books. The lesson was supplemented by an illustrated pamphlet explaining the point rationing system, which Mrs. Stanley's committee had prepared, with the coöperation of the board of education and the National Brewers' association. The pamphlet is said to be the first one prepared for any civilian defense group since the rationing plan was proposed.

Another class on this subject will be held on Jan. 27 at 1:30 o'clock at the Peoples Gas company auditorium when chairmen unable to obtain tickets to yesterday's session will be accommodated.

The sewing division of the AWVS is organizing a group to sew and mend for service men at Abbott and Tower halls. Women interested in serving with this unit or others in the sewing division should communicate with Mrs. E. V. Syrcher, chairman, in room 434, 160 North La Salle street. Yarn for afghan squares and discarded sewing machines also are urgently needed, according to Mrs. Syrcher. Arrangements will be made to pick up the machines.

Members of the Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women have organized to conduct a registration of college women who have had training in teaching. The need for these women, now inactive, is acute because schools have lost teachers to the army and navy and to war industries.

School administrators are asking for teachers to fill second semester vacancies, as well as for the coming year. Women interested in this vital phase of war time needs should write for a registration card. The card involves no obligation, but gives the administrators information as to those women available. Write to Mrs. Edmond H. Hoben, room 539, 410 South Michigan avenue, for necessary form to be filled out and returned to her.

Mrs. A. V. Gruhn of Wilmette will give a tea today for members of the Wilmette unit of the Association of Army and Navy Wives. Plans will be discussed for further expansion and coördination of the group's program.

WAAC recruits will be examined today in the new WAAC medical center, adjoining the induction office on the 6th floor at 166 West Van Buren street. This will mark the opening of the center. Heretofore the women were examined at Presbyterian hospital.

Three women doctors will conduct the examinations in the five rooms composing the center. The Gray Ladies of the Red Cross and Air Force Aids will do auxiliary work.

Club Board to Meet.

Second district board members will hold a conference at 1:30 o'clock at Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters, 30 West Washington street.

Boy's Delight in War No Sign of Abnormality

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Perhaps the last few days' columns on parents' questions in wartime may not have included the one that has been recurring to you. You may find it in those we have chosen today from "The Children in Wartime," a booklet arranged by the Child Study Association of America. The first question and its answer follow:

"My 11 year old son seems delighted at the war. His walls are full of maps; he gets the news eagerly. He and his friends talk constantly about going out and 'blasting' Hitler. 'Just my luck,' he says, 'to live where there's no fighting. Boy! Would I love to have an air raid!' I find it hard to believe he is really so bloodthirsty. Is there anything I ought to do about it?"

Remember, there is invariably a thrill at the thought of real danger. It would be less than human not to be excited and stimulated. In many children the love of adventure is strong and quite natural and is not as "bloodthirsty" as it seems.

The sight of the aggressive, primitive male animal, when he happens to be our own son, is likely to shock his mother, altho rarely his father. But your son is not abnormal, and the kinds of feeling he is expressing are for many, both younger and older, certainly natural right now.

As for the second question, well, I can venture to say that it has probably occurred to more thoughtful parents than almost any other disturbing and not easily dealt with query. Both the inquiry and an answer follow:

"What about the radio? Aren't we all overdoing it? Wouldn't it be better for the children not to listen so continuously? Along with the exciting and often distressing war news, they are also getting the exciting dramatic programs. It all adds up to a pretty heavy diet of excitement. Yet the children seem to be drawn to it like moths to the flame."

Children are well aware of exciting things happening in the world around them, and radio offers one way for them to take part in these happenings vicariously. One of our greatest problems is to help children feel that they have a share in all this, that they play a part in it.

The radio, addressing as it does each listener directly, makes the children part of the great world outside. There are limits, of course, and a steady, nonstop stream of radio should be avoided. In fact, the children themselves often turn off the radio when they have had enough. Children and adults, too, can be appealed to for some moderation in this respect.

First District Club Women Plan Annual Benefit Party

The annual card party of the 1st district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be given at 1 o'clock tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman. In conjunction with the benefit, a bazaar and food sale will be held. A large part of the district's philanthropic and educational work, which is now largely in the field of war service, is financed by means of the annual party.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Serbian Poppyseed Coffee Cake.
[Three large rings.]

2 cakes compressed yeast
2 cups scalded milk, cooled to lukewarm
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
Grated rind of 1 lemon
8 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 pound softened lard or other shortening

Soften yeast in the cooled milk. Add sugar, salt, lemon rind, eggs, and flour. Use enough flour to make a stiff dough. Roll out on floured board into large rectangle about 12 inches wide. Take about 2 tablespoons of the softened lard and rub over entire surface of dough. Fold in half and press edges of dough together. Roll out and fold in shortening repeatedly until all shortening is used. Roll out three or four times more and shape into ball. Place in large greased bowl and cover. Store in refrigerator overnight. Remove dough from refrigerator and let stand 20 minutes. Divide into three parts. Roll out each portion to ¼ inch thickness and spread with filling. Roll up as for jelly roll. Bring edges together and gash part way thru the ring at 1 inch intervals. Brush with melted fat and place on greased baking sheet. Let rise in warm place for 20 minutes. Then bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven for 45 minutes to an hour or until well browned and done. Confectioners' sugar icing may be spread on the warm cakes, if desired.

Poppyseed Filling.

½ pound ground poppyseed
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
¼ cup milk

Cook all together 10 minutes. Set aside until cool. If desired a nut or other filling may be used in this coffee cake for either part or all of the dough.

WHEN GRANDMA COOKED

The exacting recipes of today's gayly covered, streamlined cookbooks are a far cry from those of olden days when grandma whipped up many a tasty morsel from a "pound of this" and a "pinch of that," mixed well with a "quarter of a stone of flour." We also know that quality products were just as important then as they are today, and that grandma was just as interested in getting the best for her money as are today's homemakers. That's why we say you can always be sure of quality if you buy Wilson's Certified Products.

Menu

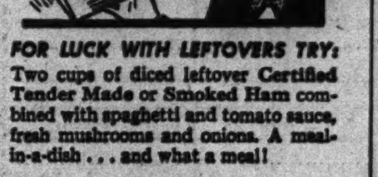
HERE'S HEADLINE NEWS
When you can buy the best in hams—a Wilson's Certified Tender Made or a Certified Smoked Ham—for no more than you've been accustomed to paying for ordinary hams . . . then that's headline news! And today's price ceilings make it possible for you to do just that—

THINK OF IT—
You pay no more, yet you get the same high quality products that have always carried the Wilson name—and be assured that despite war-time demands Wilson products remain unchanged in nourishing quality and goodness.



Sweetbread-Ham Rolls: Soak 1 large pair sweetbreads (unrestricted) in cold water 20 minutes. Drain. Drop into sufficient boiling water to cover. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 peppercorns, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 stalk chopped celery. Simmer 20 minutes. Drain. Plunge into cold water. Drain, remove skin and membrane. Break into 4 parts.

Add sweetbreads to 1 cup thick cream sauce (made of 3 tablespoons Clear Brook Butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup liquid made of cream and sweetbread stock). Chill until sauce is firm. Roll in sifted bread crumbs. Wrap in ⅛ inch thick slices of Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham. Fasten with toothpicks and broil slowly.

Taste-tempting, too, when served with broiled orange slices or sliced potatoes, dipped in melted butter, then broiled.

FOR LUCK WITH LEFTOVERS TRY:
Two cups of diced leftover Certified Tender Made or Smoked Ham combined with spaghetti and tomato sauce, fresh mushrooms and onions. A meal-in-a-dish . . . and what a meal!

A cup of diced bits of leftover Tender Made Ham in your favorite muffin recipe! And watch them disappear when your family sees them!

Yours till next week,
George Rector

Drayton, in charge of the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation, was ordered yesterday to appear in Probate court Feb. 1 in connection with a petition to discover assets of Eugene Lanthorne, alias James O'Connor, who was slain Dec. 28 by G-men in the roundup of the Touhy gang.

Spencer J. Drayton.

The action was instituted by Atty. Joseph T. Harrington in behalf of Lanthorne's sister, Miss Mabel Lanthorne, 4043 Drexel boulevard, administratrix of Lanthorne's estate. She alleged that the FBI is withholding at least $3,000 taken from Lanthorne's person. She described the money as his personal property. Edgar F. Thoma, assistant to the probate judge, entered the order against Drayton without comment.

Among Seven Who Fled.

Lanthorne was shot to death in a Leland avenue apartment with St. Clair McInerney. The two had escaped from Stateville prison last Oct. 9 with Roger Touhy, Basil Banghart, Edward Darlak, William Stewart, and Matthew Nelson. The latter five have been recaptured and are back in Stateville prison with the exception of Banghart, who is in Alcatraz.

In another development in the Touhy case, Robert L. Hunter, president of the Illinois civil service commission, reported to Gov. Dwight H. Green that no evidence of bribery had been found in the commission's investigation of the prison break.

Guard Says He Was Dazed.

He also reported that the commission had discharged Herman Kross, a guard, over whose post the seven convicts had escaped. Kross was slightly wounded. Hunter reported that Kross "was armed with three rifles and a pistol, but according to his testimony he was unable to shoot or give an alarm, and was dazed, sick, and confused."

Meanwhile, in Joliet, State's Atty. James E. Burke of Will county was studying a letter from V. W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, recommending that Touhy be tried under an old statute for aiding his confederates to escape. Under this statute, he would be liable to the same term being served by any one he assisted to escape.

Marriage Told

CAROLE GALLAGHER.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP).—Western Film Actor Dick Forain said today he and Actress Carole Gallagher, 19 years old, were married on New Year's day at the Flemington, N. J., home of his parents, former State Senator and Mrs. Arthur Foran. Miss Gallagher is the daughter of Lasher Gallagher, Los Angeles attorney. Foran formerly was married to Ruth Hollingsworth. They had two children, Pat, 4, and Mike, 3.

ROBBER, 19, GETS YEAR TO LIFE ON NINE OFFENSES

Chief Justice John A. Sbarbaro assailed the indeterminate sentence law yesterday in pronouncing sentence of a former "graduate" of the Illinois Training School for Boys near St. Charles on nine charges of robbery.

Frank La Nasa, 19 years old, was cited by the judge as a typical example of the menace to the public because of inadequate imprisonment laws. La Nasa's criminal record showed that he served a year in the training school for auto theft and that after his release he was arrested and served 15 days in the county jail preliminary to a period of probation.

He was sentenced to one year to life in the state penitentiary by Judge Sbarbaro.

Police arrested La Nasa after he and two companions held up and robbed Mrs. Bernice Comise, 529 West 46th street, wife of John Comise, a Municipal court bailiff, on Dec. 10, as she sat alone in her automobile at 55th and State streets. In fleeing, La Nasa was wounded when chased by Policeman Thomas Bells and later was found in an alley by a taxi driver and taken to police headquarters.

City Relief Cases Decrease 2,046 During December

The number of cases and persons receiving relief in Chicago dropped again in December, G. J. Klupar, commissioner of welfare administration, announced yesterday. The decline of 2,046 from 36,805 in November to 34,759 marked the 28th consecutive month in which the case load decreased. During the last three months, Chicago's relief case load showed an overall decline of 18 per cent.

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY WOMAN AS BABY KIDNAPER

Selection of a jury to try Mrs. Ann Tyrrell Lussier, 29 years old, for the abduction Nov. 24 of Gary Stewart Botsford, 3½ months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Botsford, 523 Ash street, Waukegan, was completed yesterday in Lake county court at Waukegan.

Eight women and four men were sworn in before court adjourned for the day. All but two of them are parents. Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady said the jury would be segregated in a Highland Park hotel between court sessions.

Mrs. Lussier, wife of an army sergeant, is charged with abduction of an infant, punishable on conviction by a one year to life prison sentence, fixed by the jury. Her attorney, Paul M. LaRose of Zion, indicated he would plead "legal insanity" as a defense.

The child was taken from its baby buggy on a downtown Waukegan street and held for 25 hours while an intensive search was made of northern suburbs. Mrs. Lussier was arrested at the home of a relative in Zion, with the baby in a handbag she was carrying. She has been in the Lake county jail since her arrest, unable to furnish $20,000 bond.

U. S. WILL BUILD 335 HOUSES NEAR ORDNANCE PLANT

A tract of 41½ acres of farm land adjacent to the Savanna ordnance depot, 13 miles north of Savanna, Ill., on which the federal public housing authority will build 335 houses for ordnance workers, became the property of the United States yesterday for $4,149. The housing projects will cost approximately one million dollars. Federal Judge William J. Campbell entered judgment in a condemnation suit providing for the payment of $1,970 of the amount to Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Stanger, who owned 19 acres of the tract, and the balance to the Ellen Lundy estate.

SENTENCE WIDOW AND HANDY MAN IN HAMMER DEATH

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 13 [Special].—The wife of a war worker and the handy man on their farm were sentenced today in connection with the murder of her husband, Fred D. Simpson, 37 years old, whom the woman later sobbed had "treated me just like a princess."

Fred R. Hagen, 48, hired man on the Simpson farm near Emmett, Mich., was sentenced to life imprisonment on his guilty plea to a charge of murdering his employer early Sunday by beating him with a hammer.

The wife, Mrs. Helen C. Simpson, 30, mother of two young children, pleaded guilty to being an accessory after the fact and was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term ranging up to five years.

Mrs. Simpson claimed that Hagen forced her by threats to help in hiding the crime, but both were said to have admitted carrying on intimate relations for eight months during Simpson's absences.

However, Mrs. Simpson sobbed in court that she really had loved her husband and that she hated Hagen.

AUTO KILLS MAN; WOMAN PERISHES IN A COLLISION

Joseph Keller, 59 years old, 2030 Cullom avenue, a tannery foreman, was struck and fatally injured yesterday by an automobile on Ashland avenue near Webster avenue. He died of a skull fracture on the way to a hospital. Warren Banks, 22, of 221 South Clinton avenue, Oak Park, was held pending a coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Nellie Kohler, 71, of 2135 South Michigan avenue, was fatally injured when the Checker cab in which she was riding collided with a motor truck at Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road. The impact hurled her from the cab. The chauffeur, Ben Glist, 1435 South Lawndale avenue, and Charles Brown, 526 West 45th street, driver of the truck, were injured.

George Eldred, 72, a machinist, 7619 Bosworth avenue, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile in front of 1848 North Western avenue. The driver was Max Trieger, 37, of 4228 Grenshaw street.

A coroner's yesterday returned an open verdict in the death of Duncan MacPherson, 75, of 5432 Kimbark avenue, a retired lumberman, who was found dead Tuesday on the street in Oak Forest. The jury could not determine whether he had been killed by a car or in some other manner.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 24 persons had been killed in Cook county traffic accidents since Jan. 1. During the same period, 392 persons had been injured by autos in Chicago.

Employes Save Trucks in $35,000 Terminal Fire

Employés of the Wolverine Express, Inc., 2340 South La Salle street, braved flames and smoke to move several motor trucks from loading platforms yesterday when fire, started by an overheated coal stove, swept thru the firm's warehouse and terminal building. The loss, estimated at $35,000, included damage to 50,000 pounds of copper wire stored in the warehouse. Wentworth avenue surface lines cars crowded with early loop bound passengers were rerouted for nearly an hour.

Police Don Women's Garb to Trap and Nab Suspect

Sergt. Robert Koch and Detective L. B. Ultes of the Elgin police force donned women's attire to track down Lloyd A. Miller, 27 years old, 822 St. Johns street, a war worker bound over to the Kane county grand jury yesterday on a charge of assault with attempt to rape. Miller's bond was fixed at $10,000 and he was removed to the county jail in Geneva. Police said Miller signed a statement admitting rape attempts and instances of window peeping. Miller's 58 year old wife, Meldora, told States Attorney Charles G. Seidel her husband had been mentally ill.

Full dinner pail

The men who forge America's weapons go not hungry to their toil. Nor do they, like the slave laborers of Nazidom, fill their stomachs with chaff and sawdust. Some foods we eat sparingly that there may be enough for our fighting men. But their place is filled by other foods of which we have an abundance. Our American dinner pail carries the finest bread mankind has ever known. Bread of a creamy goodness. Delicious to the taste. Rich in nourishment. Fit food to keep America strong.

To enjoy bread at its finest, try Silvercup. Compare it for flavor, fragrance, freshness and food value with any other bread you have ever tasted.

LOYOLA BEATS WEST. MICHIGAN QUINTET, 39-38

Great Lakes Whips St. Joseph, 60-32.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 13 [Special].—The Loyola university Ramblers of Chicago matched Western Michigan's basketball team, rally for rally, tonight to score a 39 to 38 victory. It was the second defeat in 10 starts for the Kalamazoo quintet, and Loyola's fifth triumph in nine games.

Loyola set up an 8 to 4 lead at the start, but the Broncos came right back and drove to a 14 to 8 advantage. Loyola tied it at 18 all, and held a 22 to 20 half time margin.

Opening the second half Jack Dwan and Bob Tietz collaborated in giving Loyola a 29 to 21. Western Michigan then put on a counter-rally with Harold Gensichen and George Slaughter leading the scoring and the Broncos went in front, 32 to 31.

Ramblers Put on Pressure.

Here Loyola launched its last attack, running its total to 39 points with three minutes left, on the shooting of Tietz, Jack Stanton and Bill Durkin. Gensichen rolled in two baskets and Harold Lang scored his only basket for Western Michigan just ahead of the gun.

Western Michigan's next game is with De Paul Saturday in one of the games of a double header in Chicago Stadium. The other game will send Northwestern against Notre Dame. Lineups:

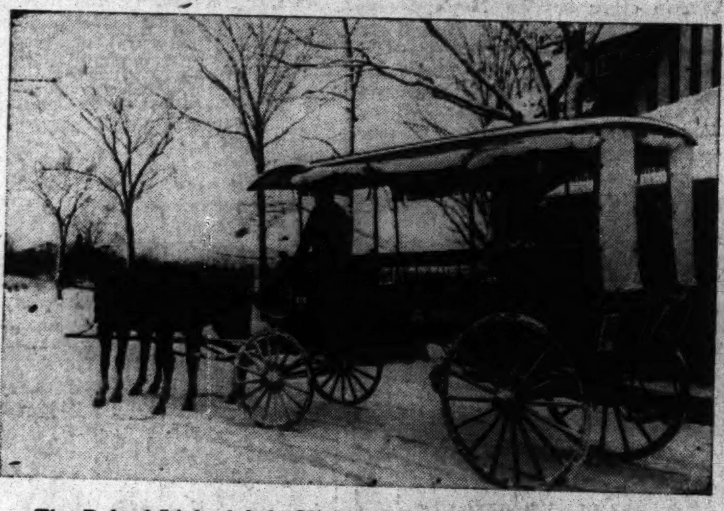
MOON MULLINS—USING HIS HEAD

Grandfather Would Approve



The Bob o' Link club in Highland Park is the first in the Chicago area to prepare against transportation problems for the 1943 season by purchasing the above bus and team of horses to meet members at nearby railroad points.

President George S. May of the Tam o' Shanter Country club and his daughter, Dorothy, take the driver's seat to give other members' daughters a trial spin in the tally-ho coach which the club will use this season.

Tally-Ho! Gas Ban or No, in Spring a-Golfing They Will Go

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The good old days of golfing transportation, as the town's oldsters recall them, will return to at least two clubs in the Chicago district during the 1943 season, and their early example may well be followed by dozens of others confronted with the dilemma of gas and tire rationing.

Pioneer in this return to the coaching mode of travel is Bob O' Link, the all-men's club located in Highland Park. Last fall, President William M. Dewey and the board of directors decided to adopt horse and buggy transportation, and forthwith purchased an equine-powered bus of the type that used to meet you at the train when you were bound for a summer resort hotel.

Tam O' Shanter Follows Suit.

Bob O' Link's idea was followed by George S. May, president of the Tam O' Shanter Country club, Howard street and Caldwell road. Mr. May rummaged around the town, and finally came up with a handsome coach of the tally-ho school. It will seat eight passengers comfortably on the top deck, with space for four more in the cab below. Tam O' Shanter is not going to wait for the golf season to start, but will put its fancy equipage to work pronto, to carry members to winter sports activities at the northwest side club.

Just the other day, President May finally corralled a team of horses that will collaborate as a team. A few weeks back, he thought he had a likely pair after a visit to the stockyards, but both steeds came down with temperament when they were hitched up in double harness, and refused to speak to each other, let alone work together. The new duo, however, is clicking just dandy, and the only problem now is to name them. Early nominations in this department have included Bunker and Bogey, Scotch and Soda, and Hogan and Nelson.

It Meets All Trains.

The Tam tally-ho will meet all trains at the Edgebrook station of the Milwaukee railroad, and also will pick up passengers at the Touhy and Central avenue bus terminals. Temporarily, Greenkeeper Ray Didier has been nominated for the job of coachman.

The horse-drawn buses of the Bob o' Link type, which will meet members at the North Western and North Shore railroad stations in Highland Park and the Deerfield station on the Skokie Valley route, are not new to Chicago golfers. Recently, Chick Evans recalled the same buses as used years ago in reaching Exmoor, Onwentsia, Skokie, and Flossmoor. He particularly remembered the bus which picked up Glen View members at the Old Avenue House in Evanston.

They Do a Bit of Shopping.

President Dewey has made no choice of an official reinsman for the Bob o' Link coach, altho it is understood that Scotty Fessenden, Bill Cagney, and Harry Newby all have been shopping for toppers and scarlet duds and coaching horns.

A few days ago, the following ode was found in the vicinity of the Bob o' Link locker used by Fessenden, sometime poet laureate of the club:

"We're off to shoot a snappy round
O'er Bob O' Link's sleek terrain
In a coach and two, as we used to do,
We're back to Old Dobbin again.
Who knows? We may tee the gutty ball,
Ere the war is history—
But the grand old game will be just the same
In Nineteen—Forty—Three."

INDIANA QUINTET GAINS POWER IN RETURN OF KILBY

HAWKS SEEK TO KEEP MONTREAL IN FIFTH PLACE

A Victory Tonight Will Help Cup Chances.

Games Tonight

Detroit at New York.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks, something less than radiant at having taken their first shutout of the season in Boston Tuesday night at the hands of the league leading Boston Bruins, tonight will try to do better, much better, in a match in Montreal with the fifth place Canadiens.

The Hawks really are more concerned about beating the Canadiens than the Bruins, even tho the Montreal lads are two and a half games behind the Chicagoans. The reason for this is that two teams, the fifth and sixth placers, are to be eliminated from Stanley Cup playoffs. The Hawks, who are pretty smart at figures, calculate that the surest way for Chicago to get in the hockey world series is to keep the Canadiens in a battle with the New York Rangers for fifth and sixth places and nothing better.

Montreal All Excited.

Somehow the Canadiens aren't at all sympathetic with the Hawks' arithmetical soundings. In fact, all of Montreal is agog over the Canadiens' behavior their last two times out. Last Saturday night they extended a 7 to 2 thrashing to the flashy Toronto Maple Leafs and the next night they came right back to administer a 7 to 4 tanning to the New York Rangers. And, according to bulletins from the province of Quebec, Dick Irvin's boys are all set to serve a similar dish to the Hawks in tonight's match.

The Hawks, traveling without their high point scorer, Max Bentley, who is home a-mending from two injuries suffered here last Sunday night, probably are not too sure of victory tonight, tho they scarcely can blame the 3 to 0 Boston shutout on Max's absence. They have been in Montreal twice this season without toting away a victory. On Nov. 12 the Canadiens whipped them, 5 to 2, and a 2-all tie was the result in a game played there on Christmas night.

Doctors Restrain Max.

Earl Seibert, Hawk defense star, suffered a gash in his forehead in the Boston game, but expects to keep playing. Max Bentley, in Chicago, was all for joining the team in Detroit, but club physicians squelched the thought. Max has a cracked thumb and a bruised thigh.

In the Wake of the News

HENRY IBA, coach of the Oklahoma Aggies, and Ev Shelton of Wyoming are credited jointly with the introduction of the block system to basketball. . . . Around Oklahoma it's an adage that if you can score 30 points you can beat the Aggies. . . . Iba's tight defensive style seldom yields an opponent that many. . . . One of his budding stars is 7 foot Bob Kurland, freshman center from St. Louis county, Missouri. . . . Ed Van Every, the veteran New York boxing writer, authored the movie "Coney Island." . . . Byron [Whizzer] White is attached to the navy intelligence division. . . . Carl Brumbaugh, the old Bear quarter back, who was a contemporary of Bronko Nagurski, rates Mike Holovak of Boston college second only to the big Bronk as a pile driving full back. . . . Basketball is the only varsity sport left on the Allegheny college calendar. . . . Keenness of competition in Western conference basketball is revealed by the fact that in only 23 of the 37 years since titles were first recognized has there been an undisputed champion. . . . Purdue leads the list with six, followed by Wisconsin, 5; Chicago [yes, Chicago!], 4; Minnesota, 2; Illinois, 2; Ohio State, 2, and Michigan and Northwestern, 1 each. . . . Iowa and Indiana are the only two members who have yet to win undisputed crowns. . . . Purdue has been victorious in eight of the 24 games in conference history in which the winning team has scored 60 or more points. . . . The sports arena at Chanute field, Illinois, has a larger seating capacity than Madison Square Garden. . . .

Del Bissonette, the old National league first baseman who now manages the Hartford Eastern league club, is working as a lumber checker in an army camp up Maine way. . . . Lt. Joe Finch, captain of the 1940 Northwestern university track team, who was killed in the sinking of a destroyer in the Solomons area, twice was a member of the Western conference track squad in the annual meet with the Pacific coast. . . . Finch, whose university record for the high hurdles still stands, was commander of the Wildcats' Naval R. O. T. C. unit in his senior year. . . . The Canadian-American Baseball league ended the 1942 season with cash in the bank for the first time in its history. . . . Red Kress, the Louisville manager, has a new pitcher named Cress. . . . Gabe Paul, Cincinnati's director of publicity, admits that Lonnie Frey was the National league's best second baseman last summer but Gabe may be a trifle biased.

WEST ALLIS, WIS., TEAM WILL SEEK SILVER SKATES

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The West Allis, Wis., Skating club was the last to file an entry for the 26th annual Silver Skates derbies which will be held Saturday and Sunday afternoons in Garfield park. Altho several of the club's skaters had sent in individual entries, the secretary of the West Allis organization forwarded a complete list which was received Monday.

Six of the 12 boys and girls from West Allis will compete in the preliminaries which will be held Saturday afternoon. These age classes — boys' midget, juvenile, and junior, and girls' junior — are for skaters under 16 years of age. These classes will report to the number clerks in Garfield park between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. Saturday. The first preliminary race will start at 2 o'clock.

West Allis Members Listed.

The other age classes — boys' intermediate, men's senior, and girls' intermediate and senior — report for preliminary events Sunday. Their racing numbers will be issued between 10 a. m. and 12 noon and the first event will be held at 1 p. m.

Milwaukeean Seeks Skates.

Curt Dibb of Milwaukee is another of the skaters from Wisconsin seeking the men's senior Silver Skates championship. This 2 mile race and the girls' senior mile have attracted the largest fields in several years.

Steve Gadus, a Chicagoan, won the men's senior Silver Skates championship last year. He represented Scott field, Illinois, as he already had entered service. Chicago will depend on a number of excellent senior men to defend its reputation against the out of town skaters. In the group are Chuck Edwards, Irving Janet, and Marvin Thomson of the Northwest S. C.; Marshall Klemundt, Don Schillne, Alex Aquilino, and Max Kargol, C. Y. O.; Ralph Lenhardt, Barrett S. C., and James De Swarte, Champaign-Urbana S. C.

REISER, DODGER OUTFIELD STAR, TAKEN BY ARMY

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 13 (AP).—Harold [Pete] Reiser was sworn into the army today at Jefferson Barracks. The 22 year old Brooklyn center fielder and heavy hitter passed his physical examination and was accepted for general service. He will be inducted next Wednesday after the usual seven day furlough.

Reiser recently was reported suffering from a double hernia, but a medical officer at the reception center said examinations showed him to be physically fit.

Because of family dependents, Reiser, who was married less than a year ago, was classified 3-A until shortly before Christmas when he was changed to 1-A.

MAYOR HOST TO 150 AT CITY PREP FOOTBALL DINNER

Mayor Kelly last night was host to more than 150 coaches, officials, and newspaper men at a banquet celebrating the ninth annual city high school title football game in the Blackstone hotel.

The mayor expressed his gratitude to all who aided in the production of the game. He said more than $100,000 was realized for the service men's centers thru the game, ninth in an annual series which he founded in 1933. Kelly reiterated his intention of sponsoring a championship high school basketball game under conditions similar to the football game.

HAPPY AGAIN, SAYS YANKEE STAR AT RENO

He'll Join Up Despite 3-A Rating.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 13 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee baseball star, reported today he planned to enlist and, at the same time, disclosed he and his wife, Dorothy, had patched their marital differences.

Arm in arm and smiling happily, the New York Yankee outfielder and his wife said they had agreed to agree. She had almost completed legal residence in Reno for a contemplated divorce.

"We're very happy about it," said Mrs. DiMaggio.

"Everything is straightened out," said Joe.

Hasn't Decided on Branch.

They have an infant son, Joseph III., 14½ months old.

Joe's decision to enter service means the Yankees will lose their greatest star.

May Turn to Navy.

Married, and with a child, DiMaggio has had a deferred classification of 3-A. Permission to enlist will be necessary from Joe's draft board.

Joe may enlist in a naval branch. He comes from a family of fishermen and was reared in the atmosphere of the sea. His younger brother, Dominic, outfielder with the Boston Red Sox, enlisted last year in the coast guard.

Cub Officials Re-Elected for Another Year

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The stockholders of the Cubs, officially the Chicago National League Baseball club, met yesterday in the chummy Pink Poodle room at Wrigley field and altho no dividend checks were passed out the customary annual business was successfully conducted.

The main item on the program, except for the treasurer's report, was the election of officers for the ensuing year and the balloting worked out so perfectly that the club printer will not have to run off a new job of letter heads.

P. K. Wrigley, controling stockholder, was continued in office as president, as were Vice President Charles [Boots] Weber, who has retired to California; Treasurer Earl W. Nelson, and Secretary Miss Margaret Donahue.

10 Per Cent Attendance Boost.

James T. Gallagher, remained as general manager, and altho he regretted the absence of dividends he was able to point with pride to the fact that the 1942 season developed an approximate 10 per cent increase in Wrigley field attendance.

While at home last season the Cubs attracted slightly fewer than 600,000 cash patrons, which while not enough to put the cap on the red ink bottle, was sufficient to raise the 1941 turnstile business by about 10 per cent. For a good part of the increase Gallagher thanks the Cardinals who wandered into Wrigley field last September while finishing off their pennant winning job.

The directors were reëlected as follows: P. K. Wrigley, Mrs. Ada E. Wrigley, Paul Harper, Frank Ellis, George Goetz, J. T. Gallagher, C. A. Weber, George Frazer, and Gilbert Scribner.

Larry French Pays Visit.

Lt. Larry French, graduate of the Pirate, Cub, and Dodger baseball schools, tarried in Chicago yesterday en route from his California home to the Brooklyn navy yard where he will go into active duty. The veteran southpaw who topped off an excellent season with a one hitter against the Phils on Sept. 23, declared he had put his favorite pitching weapon—the screw ball—in moth balls for the duration.

AMUNDSEN AND WALLER DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

Crane Tech Juniors Beat Washburne.

The Waller and Amundsen High school basketball teams split a City league north section double header yesterday at Amundsen. The Waller juniors won, 60 to 39, to gain their second straight league victory. Amundsen won the senior game, 50 to 49, also its second straight. Don Kenny made 16 points for the Amundsen seniors and John Turlo paced the Waller juniors with 20.

The Crane Tech juniors routed Washburne, 42 to 23, in a west section game at Crane. The losers did most of their scoring in the last quarter, Crane's margin being 38 to 9 at the end of the third period. Wally Schousen made 15 points for Crane.

Parker took a pair of decisive victories over Chicago Vocational in the Parker gymnasium, the juniors' score being 48 to 19 and the seniors' 66 to 30. Bob Windich of Parker made 24 points in the senior game.

Wedding Plans Set

The Florida spring training romance of Chief Specialist Bob Feller of the navy and former pitching star of the Cleveland Indians will culminate Saturday night in his marriage to Miss Virginia Winther of Waukegan.

Three hundred have been invited to the wedding in the First Methodist church of Waukegan. The bridal party will include six bridesmaids, the maid of honor, the best man, and six ushers. Rev. H. B. Rhodes will perform the ceremony at 7 o'clock. A reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin P. Winther, 325 Glendenning place.

Feller and his bride-to-be are in Van Meter, Ia., where they will attend the funeral today of Bob's father, William Feller.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Most of the professional football favorites of the last few years are on the 1942 National league All-Star team announced yesterday. There are such old standbys as Danny Fortmann, Sid Luckman, Wee Willie Wilkin, Don Hutson, Cecil Isbell and their like.

But nowhere on the first eleven is the name of Sammy Baugh to be found. Sammy is on the second team. A fellow could be pardoned for thinking maybe this is his punishment for failing to show up for the Pro bowl game in which the Washington Redskins were beaten by the All-Stars. But it's not so.

Sammy Is Too Versatile.

A committee of nine writers voted on these 1942 All-Stars and made their selections on the basis of performance during the regular season. They submitted their nominations before the Redskins whipped the Bears for the title on Dec. 13.

Baugh failed to make the first team because his versatility was too widely acclaimed. The thinker, passer, and kicker for the world champion Redskins officially is a left half back, even tho he calls the plays. Baugh received three first team votes and three second team votes at left half back. He received three first place votes for quarter back.

Because the vote on Baugh was split, Cecil Isbell of the Packers became the No. 1 left half back, and Sid Luckman of the Bears was elected quarter back with six first place ballots.

Fifth Straight for Fortmann.

Yet here was Baugh with a combined total of six first place and three second place votes. The National league officials went into a huddle and ruled it was against the purpose of the All-Star teams to select men out of position.

Fortmann was singled out for the fifth straight year and received eight first place votes. Like Luckman, Bulldog Turner was picked for the second consecutive time. Lee Artoe, tackle, and Gary Famiglietti, full back, raised the Bears' total to five of the 11 places.

87th Street to Battle Custer Boxers Tonight

The 87th Street Naval Training school amateur boxing team, which recently held Camp Grant to a draw, will meet Fort Custer in a Service Men's league match tonight at Fort Custer. Chief Petty Officer James Kelly, who will accompany the sailor boxers to the Michigan reservation, said seven men will represent the 87th street station. These follow:

Cole will be paired with Ed Douglas, Febro with Jerry Cavett, Estrada with Lou Drish, Fields with Willie Glenn, Reitzner with James Thelmer, Le Flore with Art Kember, and Boone with James Anders.

Two other Service Men's league matches scheduled for tonight between the University of Chicago radio school and Navy pier, and Fort Sheridan and Camp Grant have been canceled. Both Fort Sheridan and the navy school forfeited the engagements.

Rabbit Season in Illinois to End Tomorrow

BY BOB BECKER.

Contrary to the rumor that seems to be going the rounds among hunters, the Illinois rabbit hunting season will not be extended this year. The season on cottontails will close tomorrow night.

Asked about this report Robert C. Sparks, chief inspector of the department of conservation, said it would be impossible for the department to authorize such a change because it can be accomplished only by a revision of the state game code, duly approved by the state legislature. [A change in the game code to permit fishing thru the ice would have to be established by the same routine.]

Want Longer 1944 Season.

Sparks added that the department of conservation has considered the idea of extending the rabbit season next year. This change [calling for 15 more days of hunting] will be asked for in a revision of the present game code.

Altho Illinois rabbit hunters may not expect extra time for their season until 1944, the duck hunters in this state and everywhere from coast to coast are the ones who have plenty to talk about these days, for already the authorities who regulate waterfowl hunting are being urged to permit American hunters to harvest the 1943 waterfowl crop next fall. Field and Stream has sounded the first gun in this campaign by urging the production of sufficient shotgun ammunition for hunters next fall.

Waterfowl Too Plentiful.

As farmers [and western hunters] know, there is such a thing as having too many waterfowl for the good of agriculture. We have a hunch that the men who watch over our waterfowl already are seeing the handwriting on the wall in what is happening in Colorado and what has happened in far western states. When great concentrations of ducks [our duck population has reached the 100,000,000 mark] can't find enough to eat on lakes and streams they go into fields and eat valuable food crops, just as they now are doing in certain parts of the Platte basin in Colorado.

RICHARD CROOK FUNERAL TO BE HELD SATURDAY

H. R. [Dick] Crook.

Funeral services for Harold Richard [Dick] Crook, supervisor of physical education for the Chicago public schools since 1925, will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in the chapel at 2118 Lawrence avenue. Interment will be in Memorial park.

Mr. Crook died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 5964 North Hermitage avenue. He would have been 61 years of age Saturday. He is survived by his wife, Anna, two sons, James and Richard, and a daughter, Jane.

He was born in Manistee, Mich., attended the Seattle, Wash., High school, and graduated from Amherst college in 1907, where he played end for three years on the varsity football team and was named by Walter Camp on his All-American second team in 1906.

ACCUSES FRIEND OF CHECK RAISING IN $99,875 SUIT

Heir of Charles H. Morse Plaintiff in Case.

An unusual suit seeking the recovery of nearly $100,000 was disclosed in the Circuit court yesterday when Judge Walter J. La Buy issued a temporary injunction tying up the financial accounts of Robert M. Hoffman Jr., part owner of a wall processing company.

Plaintiff in the case is Richard M. Genius Jr., 35 years old, of the Lake Shore club, grandson of the late Charles H. Morse, a founder of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., and an heir to the Morse fortune. Young Genius' mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Morse Genius, left nearly $3,000,000 at her death in 1928. His father, Dr. Richard M. Genius, a physician, died in 1941.

Genius charged that Hoffman, 38, of 621 East Main street, Barrington, a friend and business associate, raised his personal checks from trifling amounts to large sums, and filled in and converted blank signed checks to his own use. One check for $15.05 allegedly was raised to $6,115.05, the bill said. In all, $99,875 allegedly is involved.

Hoffman Denies Charges.

"This is astounding!" exclaimed Hoffman last night when informed of the suit. "If the charges are true, the action should be criminal instead of civil. But they're 100 per cent false. I've done lots of confidential work for Genius, and we quarreled two weeks ago, but I never thought he'd take reprisal like this."

The suit was filed Tuesday by Atty. Herbert C. De Young of the law firm of Miller, Gorham, Wescott & Adams, and was suppressed by Judge Julius H. Miner so that it did not become publicly known until yesterday.

It recited that Genius met Hoffman in 1936, that they became friends thru a mutual interest in miniature trains. Hoffman is said to own a costly collection of miniature locomotives and to have a full size private coach on his Barrington grounds. In 1937 Genius paid Hoffman's expenses on a European trip, and gave him $200 for another trip to Haiti.

Charges Several Checks Altered.

Some time later Hoffman organized a wall processing company, based on a wall cleaning formula he had invented. Genius invested $8,500 in it. In 1940, it is alleged, Hoffman began receiving small sums by check from Genius, and some of these, it is charged, were raised. Some of the alleged checks boosts were from $19 to $219; from $86.50 to $486.50; from $30 to $630; from $31 to $3,031. In addition, blank checks allegedly were converted.

The suit asserted that Hoffman deposited $77,075 of Genius' money to his personal account in one bank and $12,500 in another bank. Genius, it was said, did not discover the alleged check transactions until Dec. 29. He asked an accounting and recovery.

HOUSING SOUGHT FOR 3,000 MORE IN U. S. JOBS HERE

More than 10,000 of the approximately 30,000 workers being moved out of Washington in the government's decentralization program eventually will be located in Chicago, Amos G. Hewitt, manager of the office of decentralization, and Fred W. Vincent, assistant manager, said yesterday on their arrival here to investigate suitable living quarters.

Homes and apartments, both furnished and unfurnished, are needed for approximately 3,000 workers in war and treasury departments to be brought here from Washington between Jan. 15 and Feb. 1, Vincent said.

"We have plenty of single rooms already listed with the ODS office at 366 West Adams street in the former Carson Pirie Scott building," Vincent said, "but we need more houses and flats."

It was learned yesterday that some 900 workers in the Carson Pirie Scott wholesale department have been absorbed in government bureaus here. The building, at Market and Adams streets, was leased to the government for use by the war and treasury departments.

Old Time Printers to Have Reunion Dinner Saturday

The Old Time Printers' association of Chicago will hold its 58th annual reunion and dinner-dance Saturday evening in the Tally-Ho room of the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue. The affair will commemorate the 237th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. At 1 p. m. tomorrow members of the association will place a wreath on Franklin's statue in Lincoln park. Charles J. Flynn is president of the association.

CHICAGO'S GAS LITTLE AFFECTED BY PIPE BLAST

Domestic consumers of natural gas in the Chicago area will not be affected by an explosion and fire that destroyed a small section of a 26 inch natural gas pipe line seven miles from Warrensburg, Ill., yesterday, George A. Ranney, chairman of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, said last night.

A reserve supply of natural gas prevented a curtailment in the Chicago area, Ranney said. He added that the fire had been extinguished and service would be restored within a few hours.

The supply to a number of industrial users in the Chicago area was curtailed. These were "interruptible customers" that purchased natural gas when the utility had a large supply on hand. All turned to other fuels immediately. Some industrial plants in the Tri-City area [Davenport, Ia.; Rock Island, and Moline] were forced to use oil or coal.

Farmers in that region said the fire was visible for 10 miles.

LOWELL'S $260,000 ESTATE GOES TO AIDS AND KIN

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13 (AP).—Because the bulk of the estate of A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard university, was given away to public institutions or charities during his life time, Caleb Loring announced today that the educator's will, disposing of more than $260,000, contained only a single public bequest.

Filed in Suffolk Probate court today, Dr. Lowell's will contained private bequests to associates, employes, servants, and relatives, and bequeathed to the state of Massachusetts' trustees of public reservations an estate known as Cananmet, comprising 130 acres of land in the towns of Mashpee and Falmouth. The trustees were given $10,000 in addition, to provide for the upkeep of the property.

To his secretary, Nora A. Dwyer, Dr. Lowell bequeathed $10,000 outright and $3,000 annually for life.

OBITUARIES

Emil Skaugh.

Funeral services for Emil Skaugh, for more than 50 years in charge of building maintenance for the A. C. McClurg company, will be held today at 2 p. m. in the chapel at 4041 North avenue. He died after a brief illness last Monday in his home, 901 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park. Born 84 years ago in Larzik, Norway, Mr. Skaugh went to sea at the age of 14, serving as a crew member on Norwegian merchant vessels that carried him over many seas to every continent. In addition to the widow, Mrs. Annette Skaugh, he is survived by three sons and a daughter.

William B. Hanner.

Funeral services for William B. Hanner, 83 years old, former Norwoork Park merchant who died Tuesday night in his home, 7232 Ibsen street, will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday at St. Alban's Episcopal church, Geneva. Mr. Hanner, who operated a store 33 years before his retirement three years ago, and Mrs. Hanner observed their 63d wedding anniversary last week. Besides his widow he is survived by a daughter and a son, Maj. William O. Hanner, former minister at the Geneva church.

Mrs. Bertha M. L. Mann.

Mrs. Bertha Mary Lambert Mann, 65 years old, former Batavia High school principal and school teacher, died Tuesday in the Geneva Community hospital. She had been ill since the death of her husband, William Eugene Mann, a retired business man, Sept. 4. Mrs. Mann resided at 152 1st street, Batavia. She is survived by a son and a daughter.

Thomas M. Jewell.

Thomas M. Jewell, 74 years old, former rolling mills superintendent for the Wisconsin Steel company here, died yesterday at Orlando, Fla., of a heart attack. Mr. Jewell, who retired several years ago, is survived by his widow, Estelle.

Clarence Burnham.

Clarence Burnham, 57 years old, former Chicago civil engineer who worked on the Panama canal five years during its construction, died yesterday at Provo, Utah, where he was working on a steel plant construction job. He is survived by his widow, Edith, two sons and a daughter. Funeral services will be held in Chicago.

Bethel B. Tatum.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP).—Bethel B. Tatum, 79 years old, former Miami publisher, died yesterday. He was owner of the Miami Metropolis, which was purchased by James M. Cox and became the Miami Daily News. Tatum was active in the development of Miami and Miami Beach.

Capt. E. W. Broadbent.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 13 (AP).—Capt. Ernest William Broadbent, 53 years old, commanding officer of the United States naval training school at Indiana university, died today. He was a native of New Bedford, Mass., and was graduated from the United States Naval academy in 1912.

Mary Elizabeth Hammond.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13 (AP).—Mary Elizabeth Hammond, 77 years old, sister of the late mining engineer, John Hays Hammond and aunt of Col. Natalie Hays Hammond of the Massachusetts women's defense corps, died here today.

Charles T. Gunn.

Funeral services for Charles T. Gunn, retired Lake Forest merchant and civic leader, will be held today in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he died Tuesday night at the age of 69. Mr. Gunn was born in Scotland and came to Lake Forest in 1873. From 1897 to 1926 he operated a grocery in the suburb. He was a member of the Lake Forest park board for many years and was an organizer of the first planning commission and zoning board. He moved to Florida in 1930. Surviving are his widow, Catherine; three daughters, and a son.

Franklin Magill.

Funeral services for Franklin Magill, secretary and treasurer of the Magill Weinsheimer company, printing firm, will be held at 11 a. m. Saturday in the chapel at 1253 North Clark street. Mr. Magill, who was 72 years old, died yesterday at Wesley Memorial hospital. He had been a resident of Chicago for about 40 years. He resided in the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Culbertson, Perry, Mo.

George L. Fries.

George L. Fries, during his boyhood a circulation distributor for THE TRIBUNE, died unexpectedly yesterday in his home at 7251 Crandon avenue. He was 83 years old. During the Chicago fire, he sold papers for 50 cents a copy. Mr. Fries was retired after 42 years of service with the Illinois Central railroad. He is survived by his widow, Carrie, and a daughter, Mrs. Irene Burhorn. Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in the chapel at 2024 East 75th street.

ARTHUR LOWRIE, RAVINIA PARK'S MANAGER, IS DEAD

Funeral services for Arthur M. Lowrie, general manager of Ravinia park, who in his 40 years' service there transformed it from a vaudeville garden to one of the world's leading temples of music, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the chapel at 27 North Sheridan road, Highland Park. He was 69 years old.

Mr. Lowrie, a native of Philadelphia, Pa., came to Ravinia in 1904 and took charge of building the concert stage. He said he would stay two weeks. But he remained to make Ravinia park his life's work and arrange the appearance there of the world's leading artists and conductors. He died last night in Highland Park hospital after an illness of only a week.

Mr. Lowrie made his home in Ravinia close to the park that was his main interest. He had been in the theatrical business since he was 14 years old, and spent his winters as a music scout, searching for talent for the summer park programs. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Louise Shields Lowrie, and a son, Arthur M. Jr., who resides at home.

WOMAN, 86, FOUND DEAD.

vs.
UNITED STATES ELECTRIC POWER CORPORATION, Defendant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF BALTIMORE CITY
Docket 76A-791
No. A21887

To the holders of the Common Stock of UNITED STATES ELECTRIC POWER CORPORATION:

Notice is hereby given that, in accordance with an Order of the Circuit Court of Baltimore City (Maryland), dated December 24, 1942, each holder of the Common Stock of United States Electric Power Corporation is entitled to receive the sum of 5.7c per share, less the charges hereinafter set forth, and that payment thereof will be made in accordance with the provisions of Section 101 (a) of Article 23 of the Annotated Code of Maryland on or after March 8, 1943, to such shareholders who have proved their claims by the presentation of their stock certificates at the principal office of the MARYLAND TRUST COMPANY, Calvert & Redwood Streets, Baltimore, Maryland.

Said Order also provides that said Maryland Trust Company shall be entitled to deduct the following charges for its services in this distribution:

(a) A charge of 40c for each transaction involving stock received from any one stockholder, made up of one or more certificates registered in the name of such stockholder, except that for transactions involving 10 shares or less the charge will be 15c for each transaction, and for transactions involving from 11 to 15 shares, the charge will be 20c per transaction.

(b) An additional charge of 10c for each change of ownership involved, where the non-negotiable receipt and check for initial distribution are to be made to the holder of the stock in a name different from that appearing on the stock certificate or certificates surrendered.

Said order also provides that unless the total amount of any distribution to any holder is greater than the charges deductible by said Maryland Trust Company from the amount of such distribution as above set forth, such holders shall not be required to pay such charge and they shall not receive the amount of such distribution.

Copies of the aforesaid Order and of the Report and Petition of the undersigned Receiver on which said Order was passed, are on file in the Circuit Court of Baltimore City Docket 76A, Folio 791, in a cause entitled "HARRY E. KATZ, et al. v. UNITED STATES ELECTRIC POWER CORPORATION", and in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in another cause entitled "HENRY J. RIPPERGER, as Receiver of United States Electric Power Corporation, v. ARTHUR C. ALLYN, et al.", Docket E87-20.

Reference is made to the said Order and Report and Petition, and the proceedings in said two causes, for all information with respect to these receivership proceedings.

Stock certificates presented by persons other than the registered holders thereof should be accompanied by stock transfer powers with signatures guaranteed by a bank or trust company, or by a member of the New York, Chicago or Baltimore Stock Exchange, all as required by the rules of the New York Stock Exchange with respect to delivery of certificates of stock in negotiable form.

Payment will be made by check drawn to the order of the owner of the stock, and a non-negotiable receipt will be issued to such owner, which will entitle him or his registered assignee to receive, without presentation thereof not less than three years after the first distribution, his pro-rata share of all surplus assets not theretofore distributed.

The Order of Court above referred to provides that there may be an additional charge of 10c per check for each check to be issued to the holders of record of such non-negotiable receipts at the time of the second and final distribution and that a charge of 25c per transfer may be collected from the person presenting a non-negotiable receipt for transfer after the first distribution for making such transfer into the name of another person.

BECAUSE OF THE LARGE NUMBER OF STOCKHOLDERS, AND BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS NO STAFF, IT WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE RECEIVER OR FOR THE RECEIVER'S COUNSEL TO ANSWER INDIVIDUAL INQUIRIES. THE STOCK CERTIFICATES MAY BE SENT TO THE MARYLAND TRUST COMPANY AT ANY TIME BUT THERE WILL BE NO ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF THE RECEIPT OF SUCH CERTIFICATES EXCEPT IN THE FORM OF THE CHECK AND NON-NEGOTIABLE RECEIPT BE SENT TO THE RESPECTIVE HOLDERS OF STOCK AFTER MARCH 8, 1943.

HENRY J. RIPPERGER, RECEIVER OF UNITED STATES ELECTRIC POWER CORPORATION.

PUT 90 MILLION CANADIAN ISSUE ON SALE TODAY

Is Biggest Foreign Loan in Years.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—The largest foreign government financing in the United States since before outbreak of the war in Europe in 1939 will be undertaken tomorrow when a nation-wide group of 134 banking houses will offer a new 90 million dollar issue of Canadian government bonds in three units.

Morgan Stanley & Co. will head the group offering 30 million dollars of 5 year 2½ per cent bonds at 100; 30 million of 10 year 3s at 100½, and 30 million of 15 year 3s at 98½.

Largest Registered Since April.

The issue will be the largest registered with the securities and exchange commission since the 100 million dollar American Tobacco loan last April. There has been no foreign government financing in the United States market in any large amount since a 40 million dollar Canadian loan was sold in 1938.

Proceeds from the new sale, together with treasury funds on hand, will be used to retire the currently outstanding 100 million dollars of 5 per cent bonds due in 1952.

CHICAGO HOUSING NOTES SOLD.

The Chicago housing authority yesterday sold $8,300,000 of six month notes and $9,900,000 of one year notes to the Chemical Bank and Trust company, New York, the lowest of several bidders for the issue. The bank's bid for the six month notes was equal to an annual interest basis of 0.63 per cent, and on the one year notes 0.77 per cent.

Proceeds will be used by the authority to retire $17,645,000 of outstanding short term obligations and to finish four war housing projects now about 90 per cent completed.

The projects, for which only war workers with incomes less than $2,100 are eligible as tenants, are the Frances Cabrini homes, Lawndale Gardens, and Robert H. Brooks and Bridgeport homes.

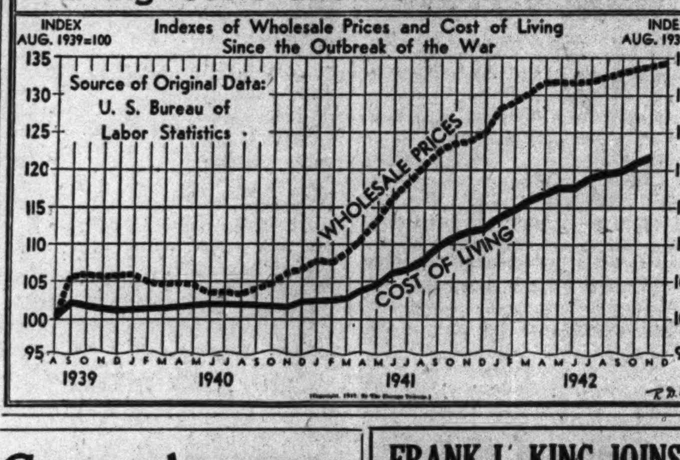
CANADIAN GRAIN HAUL TO MEXICO BY RAIL BANNED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The interstate commerce commission today banned the use of United States rail facilities for hauling grain in carloads between Canada and Mexico.

In an order served on all railroads the commission said that it appeared that "an unusual movement by railroad of grain, in carloads, from points in a foreign country thru the United States to points in another foreign country, may result in shortage of railroad equipment and congestion of traffic."

The order did not name Canada and Mexico, but the United States has no rail connection with any other foreign country.

Living Costs and Wholesale Prices



Court Asserts Power to Kill Solvent Firms

New York, Jan. 13 [Special].—On the ground that there has been a "complete and irremediable failure of corporate purpose and of corporate management" for Fiscal Fund, Inc., United States District Judge Paul Leahy in Wilmington, Del., today ordered liquidation of the investment trust and appointed Howard F. McCall as receiver.

Wording of the order and of the court's findings of fact gives the Fiscal Fund case an importance out of proportion to its $640,000 of remaining assets and 1,350 shareholders, it was said in Wall street. It was said that under the decision it is conceivable that other investment trusts which are too small for economic operation—or other corporations which no longer are carrying out the "corporate purpose"—might be wound up, even tho still solvent.

"It is uneconomic," Judge Leahy said in his findings of fact, "to continue Fiscal Fund, Inc., as a going investment company. It would be unequitable to the beneficiary shareholders. It is within the powers of the United States District court to order the liquidation of a solvent company where, as in the instant case, equity and justice so require."

The case arose from a request by the securities and exchange commission that a receiver be named for Fiscal Fund.

"From the evidence adduced by the commission at a hearing on Jan. 7, 1943," the judge said, "it is clear to me that there has been a complete and irremediable failure of corporate purpose and of corporate management.."

UTILITY 'DEATH' RULE UPHELD BY APPEALS COURT

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—The so-called "death clause" section of the public utility holding company act of 1935—limiting operation of registered holding companies to a "single integrated public utility system"—was upheld as constitutional today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court affirmed a securities and exchange commission order directing North American company, of New York city, to divest itself of all securities of 80 companies in 17 states and the District of Columbia with the exception of a public utility system known as the "St. Louis system."

FRANK L. KING JOINS CALIFORNIA BANK AS TOP VICE PRESIDENT

Frank L. King.

For the last 12 years he has been a senior officer of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, with the title of controler, and has been active in the affairs of the American Bankers association and the Controlers Institute of America.

King is a member of the A. B. A. committee which assisted in developing the plan of coupon ration banking soon to be adopted thruout the country, and is president of the Chicago chapter of the controlers institute.

Arch W. Anderson, president of the California bank, is a former vice president of the Continental.

SOUP PACKERS AUTHORIZED TO USE MORE CANS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—More canned soups will be packed in metal cans for the armed forces, lend-lease, and civilians during 1943.

The war production board today authorized soup canners to use unlimited numbers of cans for packing seasonal soups, such as asparagus, pea, spinach, and tomato soups, and 75 per cent of the amount of cans used in 1942 to pack nonseasonal soups, such as chicken, consomme, clam or fish chowders, and vegetable soups.

This superseded an order issued Dec. 9, 1942, restricting the use of cans for packing soups to 50 per cent of the amount used in 1942.

81 Warned of Violations in Sale of Anti-Freeze

Eighty-one business places in Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska have been served with warning notices for alleged violation of OPA regulations governing sale of anti-freeze solutions, John C. Weigel, regional OPA administrator, announced yesterday. The warnings included 12 in Chicago and 11 in Chicago suburbs.

Beveridge Plan Termed Below U. S. Standards

The post-war benefits offered British workmen under the Beveridge plan are meager judged by the standards of the American wage earner, H. A. Behrens, Chicago insurance executive, said yesterday.

Behrens said the proposals of William Beveridge, British economist, have been described in Great Britain as "revolutionary," but fail to approach the benefits already enjoyed by American workmen. The amount of the benefits proposed are small and would be distasteful to the average American because they take the form of a dole, he said.

Official of Insurance Firms.

Behrens, who is chairman of the Continental Casualty company and president of the Continental Assurance company, made this comment in analyzing the Beveridge proposals:

"If the British workman had all the things in the way of earnings, retirement provisions, low cost of hospital and similar insurance that the American workman has, he would consider himself quite free from want. He would be glad to exchange all of the provisions of the Beveridge report and much more than these for the freedom from want of the American worker. The additional benefit of freedom of opportunity which is ours in America is something almost entirely unknown to him. Vice versa, if an American were asked to exchange what he has in this country for what the Beveridge report offers, together with British earning levels, he would feel that he had been insulted."

Explains Difference in Plans.

To illustrate the difference between social security plans in the two countries, Behrens quoted provisions of the Beveridge plan calling for the payment of $8.08 a week in the case of disability of a man with a wife not gainfully occupied and without children. A payment of this amount would be double that now provided, but still would be far below that available to the American workman thru government social security benefits augmented by the workman's own insurance, he said.

Behrens said the Beveridge report indicated the government would have to meet about half the cost of the British payments, the employer and employé contributing the rest, and said the government's share would rise in future years to 60 per cent. "If there is such a thing as political pressure it may ultimately become 100 per cent," he said.

"The cost of any such dole as provided in the Beveridge report with benefits more nearly approaching American standards would run into many billions of dollars—my guess is well over 15 billion per year," Behrens said. "It would mean draining 7 billion dollars more a year from the earnings of citizens and an additional increase in taxes of not less than 8 billion a year, and from there on up."

Patterson Will Address N. U. Tech Dinner Jan. 25

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, will speak at a dinner given by the Technological institute of Northwestern university on Jan. 25 in the Union League club. About 500 Chicago area business men interested in and responsible for war production are to be invited.

CANADIAN STEEL STRIKE SPREAD CALLED BY CIO

Scheduled to Hit 5 Plants Today.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13 (AP).—A strike by the CIO United Steel Workers of America that has closed one of Canada's steel producing plants, and is scheduled to close another tomorrow, threatened to spread tonight to four smaller steel manufacturing companies at Trenton, N. S.

Five thousand union men struck yesterday at the big Dominion Steel and Coal corporation at Sydney, N. S., and 5,000 more voted to strike at 7 a. m. tomorrow at the Algoma Steel corporation in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Affects Large Output.

Steel control authorities here estimated these two strikes would cut off nearly two-thirds of Canada's steel production.

At Trenton, N. S., O. P. Strensrud, general manager of the Dominion corporation's plants there, announced the Trenton local of the USWA had notified him three plants would be struck tomorrow. Hugh Patterson, Trenton local president, also announced the Dominion Wheel and Foundry plant would be struck. It is not a subsidiary of Dominion Steel.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP).—Saying they were content to "let the government make the next move," union representatives of 10 of the 16 locals involved in a wildcat strike of about 19,000 anthracite miners, in protest of a union dues increase, reported at a special meeting tonight that their membership had decided to continue the walkout. Two locals voted to return to work, two had held no meetings, and two were not represented.

Sign for Six Day Week.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP).—An agreement providing a six day work week for more than 75,000 soft coal miners in western Pennsylvania with time and one-half pay for the sixth day was signed today by the western Pennsylvania Coal Operators association and the United Mine Workers of America.

The agreement, similar to the "Moses plan" adopted several weeks ago by the steel company owned "captive" mines, will add from $10 to $20 a week to the miners' pay-check.

Wage Increase Authorized for Caterpillar Workers

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The war labor board today approved a Caterpillar Tractor company wage increase of 6 cents an hour to the 1,596 salaried employés at Peoria, Ill., to compensate for a change in method of payment from a monthly salary to a weekly rate based on hours worked.

Tired Business Men Told They Must Rest—for Nation's Sake

Industrial and business executives who find themselves overworked, tired and rundown, and who wish to conserve their health to be better equipped to meet wartime problems, should "slow down," take adequate rest periods and learn to let assistants do some of the work. This admonition was given last night by Dr. Walter Alvarez of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., in an address to several hundred business leaders at the Palmer House.

"Every able executive in industry today is a tremendous asset not only to his company but to the country as a whole," Dr. Alvarez said. "The mortality of executives and other overburdened brainworkers, and the incidence of serious degenerative diseases among them, appear to be considerably higher than they are among men who work with their hands."

Outlines Health Steps.

To executives gathered for a program arranged by the Chicago Medical society, the Illinois state department of labor and the Illinois Manufacturers association, Dr. Alvarez outlined the following health mandates:

1. Slow down.
2. Take a month's vacation, or at least a short rest period now and then.
3. Delegate authority to others.
4. If you cannot sleep a soporific will be helpful.
5. Do not smoke too much.
6. If you do play, do not play too intensely.
7. Don't get angry.
8. If you are gaining weight, avoid fats and sugar.
9. If your heart muscles are not so good, walk and live at a slower pace.

Nervous Breakdowns Common.

Nervous breakdowns among executives are common, Dr. Alvarez said, because such men not only work too long hours in the office but most of their time outside is taken up with talking shop and making contacts which will be helpful in their business.

"The usual executive is a man who lives intensely and lustily and does strenuously whatever he sets out to do," Dr. Alvarez said.

How is a man to know when his nervous system is beginning to break down? Some of the common symptoms, according to Dr. Alvarez, include a sense of impaired health and energy; getting up tired in the morning; "playing out" by noon; feeling a need for forcing the brain or feeling a sense of tension in the brain.

In addition, there come insomnia, increasing irritability, impatience, ill humor, and "a desire to snap people's heads off."

PETTIBONE NAMED NEW PRESIDENT OF C. A. C.; SUCCEEDS MELLINGER

Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, yesterday was elected president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. He succeeds Aubrey H. Mellinger, president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, who was president of the association for two terms.

Holman D. Pettibone.

Pettibone will be installed at the annual meeting of the association to be held at noon Jan. 27 in the Palmer House.

The new president for many years has been active in Chicago civic affairs. He is general chairman of the U. S. O. fund campaign for the Chicago area. Pettibone has served as a director and officer of the association for several years. Eleven other officers and 19 directors of the association also were elected yesterday.

Freeport Sulphur Creates Fund for Rehiring Fighters

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Freeport Sulphur company told its employés today that it had set up a special reserve fund to assure return of men on leave for military service to their jobs after the war. The company plans to undertake special renovation and other work, if necessary, to provide employment.

TRACK SEIZURE AWAITS STUDY, SENATORS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Action on requisitioning the trackage of four railroads in Illinois, Kansas, and Oregon has been delayed pending completion of a WPB study of rails needed for scrap purposes, Laurence M. Lombard, counsel for the WPB's conservation division, told a senate committee today.

Ralph Jewel, special railroad abandonment adviser to the office of defense transportation, said the rails involved included 139 miles between Forsyth and Mackinaw junction and Decatur and Danville, Ill., branch lines of the Illinois Terminal railroad.

Expressing dissatisfaction with the unsettled status of the lines, Senators Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], chairman of the committee appointed to investigate railroad requisitioning, and Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.] told the officials they did not favor leaving the question in such a state that "you can tear these rails up when you want."

Standard to Concentrate on Newspaper Advertising

Standard Oil company [Indiana] will continue to make newspapers its major advertising medium during 1943 as a result of a survey just completed on wartime readership of newspaper advertising, Edward G. Seubert, president, announced yesterday. The ads will emphasize the necessity for car conservation, describe the part played by service station dealers in war economy, and give facts on the new "war tire" made from scrap rubber.

HARRIS RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF BANK AT AGE 75

H. W. Fenton Chosen as Successor.

Albert W. Harris, dean of Chicago bankers, yesterday resigned at the age of 75 as chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank at the annual meeting of the bank's board of directors. He will continue as a member of the board, but will take a less active part in the affairs of the bank which he has headed since 1913 when he became president.

The board elected Howard W. Fenton, president of the bank since 1923, as chairman to succeed Harris and filled a number of other key positions.

Frank R. Elliott, vice president since 1919, was elected president; Frank McNair, vice president since 1920, was elected executive vice president, and Stanley G. Harris, vice president since 1934, was made chairman of the executive committee.

M. H. McLean Resigns.

M. H. McLean, vice president for many years and a brother-in-law of A. W. Harris, resigned.

The board also announced the following changes in personnel:

Max C. Greigg and Vincent Yager, former assistant vice presidents, were elected vice presidents, and Milton C. Burkhart and Kenneth V. Zweiner, assistant cashiers, were elected assistant vice presidents. Roy M. Frisby, former assistant secretary, was elected assistant cashier. A. Newell Rumpf, Richard H. Wayne, and Roy A. Johnson were made assistant cashiers. E. J. Altgelt was appointed New York representative. Maurice K. Heald was appointed assistant controler and Delbert N. Urick assistant auditor.

All Other Officers Reëlected.

All other officers and managers were reëlected, including officers on leave to serve with the army and navy.

Prior to the directors' meeting the stockholders held their annual meeting at which only routine business was handled. All directors were reëlected.

A. W. Harris retired at his own request as chairman. Born in Cincinnati in 1867, he one of the last of the group of bankers which brought fame to Chicago banks several dec-

A $300 Tax Becomes a $31,500 Tax

In the last twelve years, the federal tax on an estate of $200,000 has risen from $300 to $31,500.* Corresponding tax increases have been made on estates of other amounts.

The new Revenue Act of 1942 is the latest in a series of upward revisions of estate taxes that have been made at intervals for more than a decade. The new Act, in conjunction with previous revisions, has therefore altered the effect of many wills. In short, such wills may no longer reflect the original intentions of their makers.

Whatever the tax liability of your estate may be, revision of your will in line with the actual conditions and tax requirements of today is highly advisable. To that end, our Trust Department will be glad to confer with you and your attorney at your convenience.

Name Fenton Successor; Elliott New President.

ades ago. He entered the employ of N. W. Harris & Co., predecessor to the Harris bank, in 1888.

Fenton was born in Indianapolis in 1877. He started work with N. W. Harris & Co. in 1895 and continued with the successor company.

Elliott, the new president, who has been with the bank 42 years, represents the fourth generation of a family actively in banking. He was born in Jacksonville, Ill., in 1878.

McNair was born in Greenville, Pa., and since 1903 has been identified with the Harris organization.

Stanley G. Harris began with the Harris organization as a messenger in 1912 and in 1930 was elected a director.

Other Banks Elect Officers.

English Walling, former secretary, and Frank G. Anger, former assistant secretary, were elected vice presidents of the Industrial National bank. Directors also elected as cashier Robert N. Vieracker, former auditor, and the following assistant cashiers: Muriel M. Hanna, former assistant secretary; Howell E. Hammer, former manager of the savings department; Joseph W. Mahoney, former manager of the division of accounts, and William B. Shapiro, former manager of the insurance finance department.

Directors of the Northwest National Bank of Chicago elected Cushman B. Bissell chairman of the board and T. R. Aalborg second assistant cashier. Three new directors of the Central National Bank of Chicago were named: Lt. Comm. John Ashby, William F. Uecker, and Paul W. Tatge.

East Side Trust & Savings bank directors elected Harold J. Green president and N. A. Uddman cashier. Mutual National Bank of Chicago created two new positions of assistant trust officer and Charles S. Schillo and Milton Olson were appointed to fill them.

INT'L MINERALS ENDS 7½ MILLION REFUNDING STEP

Louis Ware, president of International Minerals and Chemical corporation, which has general offices in Chicago, yesterday announced the company had completed a refunding program which will retire present debt and increase the working capital.

The operation involves the issuance of $7,500,000 of serial debentures with interest rates ranging from 2½ per cent to 4 per cent to the First National Bank of New York, New York Trust company, Bankers Trust company, Aetna Life Insurance company, Travelers Insurance company and the Atlantic Coast Line company.

Present bank loans and debentures amounting to about $6,700,000 will be retired.

ICKES SAYS WAR COULD WIPE OUT SMALL BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes said today that with "the major portion of war production contracts going to a few large corporations" the country now faces "the brutal fact that the war can be the final, crushing blow to small business."

"Should the small business man go we will all go," he told the senate small business committee which today sought specifically to enlist government coöperation for small mine operators.

"No man's aid is too small to be spurned," Ickes said. "The fundamental fact and problem that we face is that both mineral resources and business talents lie idle. They must be brought together."

MARKUPS FIXED FOR CEILING ON DRESSED HOGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—The office of price administration, revising its price ceiling regulation on dressed hogs, today set specific markups which packers and wholesalers may use in computing ceiling prices. Retail prices for pork are not affected by the order.

The new regulation, effective next Tuesday, replaces maximum permitted prices for dressed hogs which were based on individual packers' and wholesalers' prices charged from Feb. 7 to March 9, 1942. Previously, uniform ceilings were placed on pork cuts, but not on hogs.

Today's order sets up 13 different permitted markups for each of two different styles of dressed hogs—packer style, which has the head cut off and the leaf fat out, and shipper style, which includes these items. The different markups vary with the weight and type of hogs.

January Egg Futures Dip to Seasonal Low at Close

January egg futures closed 0.05 cent a dozen lower at a new seasonal low of 37.05 cents on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Old contract January onions overcame a weak opening and advanced 1 cent a 50 pound sack to their ceiling of $1.72, while January potatoes were off 1 cent at $3.03 per 100 pounds. Other futures were unchanged.

Crane Company to Receive E Award for War Output

The army-navy "E" award for war production will be presented later this month to Crane company, Chicago, it was announced yesterday. Fifteen hundred employés will attend the ceremony.

People and Events

James H. Black, who joined Sprague Warner-Kenny corporation last October, has been elected vice president, Nathan Cummings, president, announced yesterday. Black formerly was president of United Buyers corporation.

Ward K. Ensminger has been elected a vice president of Rand McNally & Co. and executive in charge of the company's New York office.

Elmer W. Hammell, formerly of Fred E. Busby & Co., has been appointed vice president of Caswell & Co.

Hardwick Moseley, who has been in charge of the Chicago office of Houghton Mifflin company, has been made head of the firm's New York office. He is succeeded in Chicago by John Storm, formerly with Bobbs-Merrill company.

LAWYER TELLS OPA TO CUT OUT OBSCURE TERMS

Asks Simpler, More Readable Orders.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Irving C. Fox, general counsel of the National Retail Dry Goods association, today told the war time convention of that group that "there is no reason why office of price administration orders cannot be written in much simpler language."

"Many retail merchants thruout the length and breadth of the country think and speak in the simplest homespun language," Fox said.

Not Even Favored by Courts.

"There is a fable in the OPA that orders must be written in legalistic terms, but even the courts do not favor this legalistic language."

Fox said that after a recent conference with OPA officials concerning a proposed order a group of retail merchants studied the regulation and agreed that its 21 pages could be reduced to two pages without losing any of its clarity or meaning.

OPA Official Defends Need.

Defending the need for government questionnaires, Dr. J. Kenneth Galbraith, deputy OPA administrator, told the convention:

"I would not want to defend all the questionnaires that have been issued by the government any more than I would want to answer them all.

"But I do know that you cannot determine whether a price is too high or too low without finding out, and finding out means looking at the costs. There is no other way to get costs without asking for them."

HOG PRICES SET RECORD JANUARY HIGH SINCE 1920

The "freeze" order which halted increasing corn prices prevented a widespread liquidation of hogs, it was said in the stockyards yesterday. However, this assurance to farmers that their production costs would not rise also contributed to the shortage of hog supplies on the markets as farmers held back to put more weight on the hogs. Prices as a result reached a 23 year high for January.

Lambs advanced 15 to 25 cents to the highest winter levels in 14 years. The $16.15 top equaled last year's peak, established in June.

Little change occurred in prices for steers and yearlings, which averaged second highest on record for January. Steady prices were paid for most other cattle.

GAINS IN STOCKS LAID TO DEMAND FOR INVESTMENT

Handful of Shares Lifted a Point or More.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—Stocks generally edged higher today in a steady market and only a few leaders declined. Light but persistent investment demand was credited for much of the minor advance, fractional in most cases, but which lifted a handful of shares a point or more.

Brokers reported hesitance on the part of market followers pending developments in Washington on tax matters.

Discuss Tax Proposals.

What effect "pay-as-you-go" proposals and the variety of other levies suggested would have on security values was argued again in board-rooms as new measures were dropped into the legislative hopper.

From a quiet opening volume increased, then tapered off to a total of 632,500 shares against 633,281 Tuesday.

The advances aggregated enough to counter-balance the scattered losses and raise the Associated Press average of 60 stocks .1 of a point to 42.0. Each division of the average—industrial, rail, and utility—showed the gain. Of 757 issues traded, 351 were higher, 177 lower, and the rest unchanged.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on turnover of 21,000 shares. Of 100 shares traded, 48 advanced, 27 declined, and 25 were unchanged. Among the volume leaders were Chicago corporation, unchanged; Commonwealth Edison, up ⅛, and RCA, down ¼. Borg-Warner declined ⅛ from the New York close in the final half hour.

RAIL BONDS SOAR.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP).—A strong rally in railroad bonds today carried prices to the highest average levels in nearly two years in the most active bond market session in more than three months.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails advanced 0.3 of a point to 66.4, the highest since May 6, 1941, when the average price reached 66.5.

SUPPLY OF BEEF CATTLE ON FEED GAINS 5 PER CENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13 (AP).—The agriculture department reported today that the number of beef cattle on feed for the country as a whole on Jan. 1 was between 5 and 6 per cent larger than a year ago. No estimate of the total number on feed was given, however.

The number on feed in the 11 major corn belt states, where much of the nation's beef cattle supply is fattened, was estimated to have been 8 per cent larger than a year ago and the largest on record for Jan. 1.

CORN FUTURES DIP AS CEILINGS GO INTO EFFECT

Wheat Sags; Wickard Acts to Aid Mills.

The corn futures market on the Chicago Board of Trade remained depressed yesterday as the office of price administration's surprise ceilings on futures and cash prices based on the highest levels of Monday went into effect. The cash corn market, however, was firm and had one of the largest daily turnovers this season, with corn booked to arrive from the country estimated as high as 750,000 bushels and shipping sales of more than 200,000 bushels.

Other grain futures also continued unsettled, altho oats were able to advance small fractions. Price movements were moderate and trading quiet compared with the feverish activity and sharp breaks on Tuesday when the corn ceilings were announced.

Corn 3 Cents Under Ceiling.

At the close, corn was off ⅜ to ¾ cent a bushel, or more than 3 cents below the new ceilings for the deliveries. Wheat was down ⅛ to ⅝ cent, rye unchanged to ⅜ cent lower, oats ⅛ to ¼ cent higher, and soy beans, ¼ to ⅞ cent lower.

There were no sales of No. 1 yellow cash corn. No. 2 yellow sold at 99½ cents a bushel, or 2¼ cents below its ceiling. The only cash variety reported to have reached its maximum was No. 4 white at $1.08. Cash handlers said they were dissatisfied and confused as to the method to be followed under OPA regulations for determining ceilings on cash corn grades which were not sold Monday, particularly the white varieties.

Wheat futures trading was light and nervous. The OPA action on corn apparently tended to unsettle confidence on the theory that ceilings also might be placed on this grain. OPA spokesmen, however, said that no ceilings were being considered for other grains, and that in the case of wheat, supplies owned by the Commodity Credit corporation that could be released at parity would keep prices in check.

Wickard Acts on Sales.

These assurances were confirmed after the close of the market by the announcement that Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard has authorized the sale of government owned soft wheat at prices designed to stabilize the grain at levels which would enable millers to operate under flour ceilings. The wheat will be offered at parity, or 23 cents a bushel above the 1942 loan value. This represents a price of $1.55 a bushel for No. 1 soft red wheat at Chicago.

Wickard also authorized the Commodity Credit corporation to call grower loans on soft wheat in Missouri and east of the Mississippi river in the event the sale of government grain does not make sufficient supplies available at prices in line with flour ceilings.

Men! Women!

$25 for 30 Days Costs Only 75c

Now women as well as men may borrow from $10 to $300 on the strength of their jobs. Both office and factory workers are entitled to "while you wait" service if they phone ahead or come in with proper identification and evidence of employment. Even war workers on new jobs are eligible. Based on our monthly rate of 3% on balances of $150 or less and 2½% on that part of the unpaid balance above $150, the cost on short term loans, as illustrated above, is quite reasonable.
